SOLON DEMANDS NEW INQUIRY IN AMERASIA CASE

Hickenlooper Says Hidden Elements May Exist In 1945 Incident

DECLINES DISCUSSION ON POSSIBLE NEW EVIDENCE

WASHINGTON April 22.—(AP)—Hinting at new evidence, Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa) .oday demanded a thorough investigation of what he called the "very mysterious" 1945 Amerasia case involving secret government documents.

"I think there are some elements of evidence which heretofore have not been known publicly," Hickenlooper declared.

He made the statement after being told by reporters that Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.) had predicted that the Amerasia case is about to break wide open and would disclose an important Soviet espionage ring.

The case first came to light five years ago with the arrest by the FBI of career Diplomat John S. Service and five other persons. They were charged with illegal removal of government documents for use in the magazine Amerasia a publication devoted to news of far eastern affairs.

Service later was exonerated and returned to duty in the state department. A grand jury also refused to indict two others. Two of those arrested were fined, and there was no action against the sixth defendant.

Hickenlooper declined to discuss just what he has in mind in the Air Force Exhibits Thundering Bombardment To Impress 'High Ups'

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla., April 22. —(AP)— The air force laid down a thundering bombardment with its new type attack weapons today to impress President Truman and the military high command.

The chief executive turned time and again to high military leaders grouped around him to remark on the destructive potentiality of U. S. air power.

This second display of post-war might for the president was carried on against a backdrop of worsening relations with Soviet Russia over the shooting down of an unarmed American plane.

Before flying back to Washington, Mr. Truman and the nation's top brass went by the giant climatic hanger to have a look in on tests of American planes and equipment carried out under Arctic conditions.

There was little doubt of the seriousness with which the president regarded the war games yesterday at Fort Benning and today at Eglin.

Climaxing an hour-long performance here, the air force gave a terrifying contrast of the fire power of World War II's European theater star, the B-17, and the giant six-engine B-36.

A B-17 loosed six 500-pound bombs in the target area a mile away from the stands. Behind it sped the B-36 intercontinental bomber spewing more than 120 of the 500-pounders that kept the stands rocking for a full three minutes.

KREMLIN'S CHIEF TARGET IS U. S.

Acheson Issues Urgent Plea For National Unity; Sees Threat Ahead

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson in an urgent plea for national unity, said tonight the United States is the Kremlin's chief target in a drive for "dominion over the entire world."

"We are faced with a threat—in all sober truth I say this—we are faced with a threat not only to our country but the the vicilization in which we live," he declared.

But, Acheson said, if all Americans unite to demonstrate a "burning and fighting faith" in freedom, they can "carry the free world forward to strength and security."

The secretary sounded that warning in a nationally broadcast address to the American Society of Newspaper Editors at its closing session here.

The United States will "go on trying to find a common ground for agreement" with Russia, Acheson said, but he asserted no agreement is possible until the Soviets abandon "the idea of aggression."

"That real and present threat of aggression stands in the way of every attempt at understanding with the Soviet Union," he said. "And the word 'aggression' includes not only military attack, but propagnada warfare and the secret undermining of free countries from within."

Declaring there is "no quick or easy way to subdue an evil force . . . no miracle that will make it disappear from the earth," Acheson laid down a program in which he said every citizen can join to check and defeat the global Communist drive.

FILE CHARGE ON W. C. SIMMONS

Held For Negligent Homicide In Bowser Death In Auto Crash-Fire

William C. Simmons, 22, of West Monroe, was in the parish jail yesterday morning charged with negligent homicide in connection with the early Wednesday morning death of Mrs. Daisy Bowser, 38. His bond was set at $5,000, a sheriff deputy said.

Mrs. Bowser was fatally burned shortly before 1 a.m. Wednesday when a car in which she was riding overturned and ignited on Spell Road near the Brown Paper Mill plant in West Monroe. Simmons was driver of the car.

Charges of negligent homicide were filed against Simmons after a five-man coroner's jury, meeting Friday afternoon, ordered the case put before the grand jury.

In their verdict, the coroner jurors stated that "the deceased, one Mrs. Daisy Bowser, came to her death as a result of accidental burns while being trapped in a car and that the driver of the car left the scene of the accident after having struck a match to light a cigarette and carelessly threw the match down into or near the car from which gasoline was escaping. We therefore recommend that William C. Simmons be held for grand jury investigation."

Appearing at the inquest Friday afternoon, Simmons testified that both he and Mrs. Bowser were intoxicated when the car he was driving a 1938 model Chevrolet sedan, overturned into a ditch.

"I attempted to pull Mrs. Bowser from the car," Simmons told jurors, but she pushed me away. I kinda got mad and jumped from the overturned automobile, lit a cigarette and flipped it away.

"The next thing I knew, the car was on fire. I got nervous and scared and ran off," Simmons concluded.

Other witnesses called for the inquest were: Edna Spell, a witness to the accident; Bill Barr and Emmett McDanields, who arrived at the scene shortly before firemen; Wayland Taylor, John Paul Riddle, owner and operator of the Blue Tavern night club, John W. King, employed at the Blue Tavern, and A. W. Simms owner of the car Simmons was driving.

Several of the witnesses testified that Simmons and Mrs. Bowser had visited the Blue Tavern shortly befetheac cidento ccurr ed. ro fore the accident occurred.

Comedy Strips—Funny Or Not—Provide Bitter Debate

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—The country's editors asked themselves and their comic artists today whether comic strips laden with sex and crime will some day make them answerable for "damage done to American youth."

Two of the top artists, Al Capp of "Li'l Abner" and Milton Caniff of "Steve Canyon" defended their craft as being one in which virtue always is conspicuously rewarded. Caniff had the last word:

"The editor is the key to the whole thing, he can tell us what's wrong, he can leave the strip out of the paper, he can cancel it."

But the debate was hot and the wit barbed as editors aired their "grave concern" over unfunny funnies in a forum at Asne's annual meeting.

James S. Pope, managing editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, led the assault for the editors along with Norman Isaacs, managing editor of the St. Louis Startimes. A questionaire circulated by him to follow editors, Pope said, showed them bothered by these problems:

Many editors are worried about the detailed picturization of crime. One editor of a successful daily carries no crime or detective strips.

Sex: There was concern but less than expected. The problem of "sly and smirking sex has been greatly improved, Pope said, perhaps because of the public reaction against newsstand comic books.

Propaganda: A "tremendous uprising" of editors against any form of comic-strip propaganda was revealed. "Editors seem to want to pick out their own targets for editorial crusades," Pope suggested.

And: the comics are not funny.

Al Capp was belabored for the accentuated hips and thighs of the female inhabitants of his mythical mountain town, Dogpatch. He protested that "women do have figures and they're beautiful—people like to see beautiful girls properly dressed — and artists like to draw them."

Isaacs retorted that Cap should underline his own phrase, "properly dressed." Unabashed, Capp explained:

Free Wine Inebriates Parisians

PARIS. April 22. —(AP)—More than a thousand gallons of bright red wine poured down the gullets of thirsty Parisians and visiting foreigners on Montmarte today—and the results were inevitable.

The wine was distributed free by a society of Bordeaux wine makers who have been touring Paris the past three days to introduce a new light-colored wine that matures fast and can be sold quickly without long aging.

The great pouring started at 4 p.m. In practically no time police ambulances were hauling loads off the hill, men who no longer could walk or talk.

They were still doing it at 8 p.m. But at that time the party was over. No more free wine was being served and only a half dozen stretchers were lined up awaiting ambulances.

The whole city was invited and a large part of it came. All that was required was a glass. The wine was poured from large casks lined up in the Place Du Tertre, a little tree-dotted square surrounded by shops and restaurants.

SOUTHERN R. R. PLANS TO CLOSE ENTIRE SYSTEM

South's Largest Line Says If Strike Threat Remains Closure Will Be Ordered

LOCOMOTIVE FIREMEN ARE DEMANDING EXTRA MAN

By Norman Walker

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—The Southern Railway System announced plans today to close down its entire, 8,000-mile system by next Wednesday to meet a strike threat of locomotive firemen.

The Southern is the largest rail system in the south. It serves every state and major city in the area east of the Mississippi river and south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, except West Virginia. It has 38,000 employes. Ernest E. Norris, the Southern's president, announced that an embargo will be ordered Monday if the strike threat for next Wednesday by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen is still pending.

The union has called the strike for 6 a. m. Wednesday on the Southern and three other major railroads to back up a longstanding demand for assignment of a second firemen to help run multiple . engine Diesel locomotives. The strike would also apply to steam locomotives.

A nationwide telephone strike is set for the same time Wednesday morning in a dispute between the C. I. O.'s communications workers and Bell phone companies.

Norris said the Southern Railway system's embargo will bar acceptance of any freight or pass-

FIVE BURGLARIES ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Carpenter Tools, Typewriters, $53 Cash Taken In Twin Cities

Burglar's loots Friday night included three carpenter's tool boxes from different construction jobs in Monroe, four typewriters and an adding machine from Monroe Office Equipment Company and $53 at Dumas Grocery store near Cheniere.

Monroe police said the three tool chests were valued at about $500.

Entrance to Monroe Office Equipment was gained by breaking out a window on the southeast side of the building. The burglars broke a lock on an inside north door for their exit.

W. C. Salley informed police that his carpenter's tools valued at $225 were taken from a job on Thomas street.

Another carpenter, Jack Armstrong, reported that his kit containing tools valued at $200 was taken from 1603 Georgia street. At 4301 South Grand street, James Watts reported that his tool box was stolen from a shed. Investigating officers said evidently the party had a key to the shed since there was no sign of a break.

The Ouachita parish sheriff's department reported Dumas Grocery was burglarized of $53 in cash sometime between Friday noon and 10 a.m. Saturday. Deputies said the burglars entered the building with a key or were locked up in the store when it closed.

Monroe police described the typewriters from Monroe Office Equipment as Underwood portables identifiable by the following serial numbers: 1835463, 18358558 1837032, 1894129. The adding machine was a hand operated model with the serial number 42205.

Anyone with knowledge of these machines is requested to contact the Monroe police department.

Report Bullet Holes In Raft In Baltic Sea

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sunday, April 23.—(AP)—A Swedish State Police Officer at Visby, on the island of Gotland, was quoted today as having said a rubber life raft was picked up in the Baltic Sea last Thursday appeared to have been hit by bullets.

Earlier the official Swedish News Agency T. T. had quoted the captain of a Swedish fishing vessel which picked up the second raft as having said there was a big hole in the middle of it "with ragged edges, probably caused by fire. There was also a large number of small rifts, most of them rectangula.. and about one by two inches big."

U. S. naval authorities in London have not definitely identified either of the two rafts found in the area as having belonged to a U. S. navy Privateer patrol bomber plane missing over the Baltic since April 8.

Both rafts were sent to the U. S. navy base at Port Lyautey, Morocco, North Africa, where the Privateer had been stationed.

FOG STYMIES HUNT OF CRASHED PLANE

35 Americans Aboard Transport Which Fell In Rugged Area Of Japan

TOYA, Japan, April 22.—(AP)—Thick fog late tonight stalled the search for a U. S. Air Force transport which crashed about midnight Friday, in the mountains southwest of Tokyo with 35 Americans aboard. The hunt will be resumed Sunday.

All 27 passengers and eight crewmen were officially listed as missing. They included Frank E. Pickelle, head of the Japanese occupation's foreign trade division, and three other occupation officials returning from a trade conference in Manila.

The four-engined C-54, en route from the Philippines to Tachikawa Airfield near Tokyo, made its last radio report at 11:08 p. m. Friday as it was preparing to cross the coast. It reported rain and rising gusts of wind.

Scene of the crash was in the rugged Tanzawa mountains, about 35 miles southwest of Tokyo and about 15 miles southwest of the airfield.

Air force officers said there was no doubt that the plane actually crashed. Some Japanese and Americans in the area were reported to have heard a crashing sound or seen a burst of flame in the rainy, black night, but their stories were too vague to be of much help to searchers.

Planes which criss-crossed hundreds of miles throughout Saturday were prevented by bad weather from finding any clue.

Air Show At Selman Today Promises Plenty Of Thrills

The Cole Brothers air show heralded as one of the greatest of aerial performances, will be seen at Selman field this afternoon at 3 p.m. when widely-known, death-defying stunt fliers will perform. They come here direct from Miami, Fla., where they have participated in the All-American Air Maneuvers. Two and one half hours of entertainment will be given, the show being sponsored by the North Monroe Lions Club, and net proceeds will be devoted to the club's charitable projects.

There are promised nine breath-taking acts, stunt flying, wing riding, parachute jumping, comic acts, the sensational "Bat Man" stunt and other thrilling performances.

The Lions Club will be assisted by troop 13, Boy Scouts, who will aid in parking cars and the civil air patrol will have charge of concessions.

The club hopes to be able to have a helicopter and jet fighting plane here from the base in Austin, Tex.

Those buying advance tickets are asked to drive to the first road off DeSiard at the old bus station, where city buses make a turn on their return cityward trip. This will leave the other road into the field open for those who must stop at the gate to buy tickets, and who otherwise would cause delay and unnecessarily long lines.

The Louisiana Baptist Children's Home boys and girls will be guests of the affair. President Fran Brennan, of the North Monroe Lions Club, urges each and every member of the club to be at the Selman main entrance at the railroad crossing.

Sudden Flare Hinges On Dispute Between Western Electric, 104 Installers

TIEUP WOULD BE 2 DAYS AHEAD OF TRUCE ENDING

NEW YORK, April 22. —(AP) — An isolated dispute in the midwest threatened today to spark a coast-to-coast tieup of telephone installation services on Monday.

The threat came from Ernest Weaver, president of division 6, C.I.O. Communication Workers of America, representing 10,000 installation workers in 43 states and the District of Columbia.

He said the strike would be called unless Western Electric Co., manufacturing and installation unit of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., adjusted a dispute in Indiana.

If it comes, the strike would be two days before the end of a 60-day truce obtained by President Truman in an overall wage fight between various C. W. A. divisions and A. T. & T., pparent company of the nationwide Bell system.

Because of the truce, Weaver said his union would not do any picketing before Wednesday, thus precluding the likelihood that the rest of the C. W. A.'s 200,000 members would be kept off their jobs Monday.

The sudden strike threat, temporarily overshadowing overall telephone contract negotiations stemmed from a relatively minor disagreement at South Bend, Ind.

There, 104 telephone installation workers struck on March 27 when a crew according to the union, was denied pay after it refused to walk more than half a mile through a muddy field to work on a television tower.

Sympathy walkouts flared yesterday at scattered points across the country.

Weaver said that if talks today with the Western Electric representatives are "any real indication of the company's attitude, you can bet your bottom dollar that we will walk out Monday."

And, he added, "We will stay out until we win reasonable con-

ITALY MAY BREAK PEACE AGREEMENT

Accuses Russia Of Blocking 1948 Proposal To Give Trieste To Italy

ROME. April 22. —(AP)—Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza hinted to parliament today that Italy might break her peace treaty rather than forfeit "Italian lands" at Trieste.

He accused Soviet Russia of blocking the 1948 proposal of the United States, Britain and France to hand over to Italy all of Trieste free territory, including that occcupied by Yugoslavia.

Declaring many states behind the Iron Curtain already have violated their peace treaties, Sforza told the chamber of deputies:

"That which the others have violated for evil we are raedy, if necessary, to repudiate for good."

He also declared failure of the three western powers to live up to their 1948 pledge would weaken Italy's participation in the Atlantic Pact.

The Italian Foreign Minister spoke at the end of a two-day debate whose importance was highlighted by Russia's demand on the three western powers for withdrawal of British, American and Yugoslav occupation forces from the strategic territory at the head of the Adriatic.

Communist and leftist sympathizers, timing their tactics with Moscow, demanded that Trieste be abandoned as an "Imperialist" navy base. They said the government's reliance on western pledges was a failure.

Communists in three Italian cities last night attacked student demonstrators demanding the return of Trieste to Italy.

Comedy Strips—Funny Or Not—Provide Bitter Debate

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—The country's editors asked themselves and their comic artists today whether comic strips laden with sex and crime will some day make them answerable for "damage done to American youth."

Two of the top artists, Al Capp of "Li'l Abner" and Milton Caniff of "Steve Canyon" defended their craft as being one in which virtue always is conspicuously rewarded. Caniff had the last word:

"The editor is the key to the whole thing, he can tell us what's wrong, he can leave the strip out of the paper, he can cancel it."

But the debate was hot and the wit barbed as editors aired their "grave concern" over unfunny funnies in a forum at Asne's annual meeting.

James S. Pope, managing editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, led the assault for the editors along with Norman Isaacs, managing editor of the St. Louis Startimes. A questionaire circulated by him to follow editors, Pope said, showed them bothered by these problems:

Many editors are worried about the detailed picturization of crime. One editor of a successful daily carries no crime or detective strips.

Sex: There was concern but less than expected. The problem of "sly and smirking sex has been greatly improved, Pope said, perhaps because of the public reaction against newsstand comic books.

Propaganda: A "tremendous uprising" of editors against any form of comic-strip propaganda was revealed. "Editors seem to want to pick out their own targets for editorial crusades," Pope suggesied.

And: the comics are not funny.

Al Capp was belabored for the accentuated hips and thighs of the female inhabitants of his mythical mountain town, Dogpatch. He protested that "women do have figures and they're beautiful—people like to see beautiful girls properly dressed — and artists like to draw them."

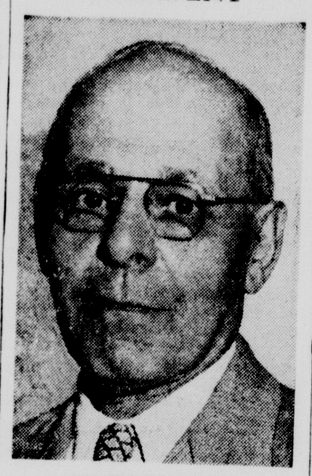

Isaacs retorted that Cap should underline his own phrase, "properly dressed." Unabashed, Capp explained:

Free Wine Inebriates Parisians

PARIS, April 22. —(AP)—More than a thousand gallons of bright red wine poured down the gullets of thirsty Parisians and visiting foreigners on Montmarte today—and the results were inevitable.

The wine was distributed free by a society of Bordeaux wine makers who have been touring Paris the past three days to introduce a new light-colored wine that matures fast and can be sold quickly without long aging.

The great pouring started at 4 p.m. In practically no time police ambulances were hauling loads off the hill, men who no longer could walk or talk.

They were still doing it at 8 p.m. But at that time the party was over. No more free wine was being served and only a half dozen stretchers were lined up awaiting ambulances.

The whole city was invited and a large part of it came. All that was required was a glass. The wine was poured from large casks lined up in the Place Du Tertre, a little tree-dotted square surrounded by shops and restaurants.

Raft Has Markings Of Lost Plane's Squadron

LONDON, April 22.—(AP)—The U. S. Navy announced today that a yellow liferaft found in the Baltic last Sunday had the same markings as those issued to the squadron of the Privateer plane that has been missing since April 8.

It has not yet been determined, however, whether it belonged to the Privateer, which the United States charges was shot down by Russian fighters. The raft is being sent to Washington for further examination.

SOUTHERN R. R. PLANS TO CLOSE ENTIRE SYSTEM

LOCOMOTIVE FIREMEN ARE DEMANDING EXTRA MAN

By Norman Walker

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—The Southern Railway System announced plans today to close down its entire, 8,000-mile system by next Wednesday to meet a strike threat of locomotive firemen.

The Southern is the largest rail system in the south. It serves every state and major city in the area east of the Mississippi river and south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, except West Virginia. It has 38,000 employes. Ernest E. Norris, the Southern's president, announced that an embargo will be ordered Monday if the strike threat for next Wednesday by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen is still pending.

The union has called the strike for 6 a. m. Wednesday on the Southern and three other major railroads to back up a longstanding demand for assignment of a second firemen to help run multiple engine Diesel locomotives. The strike would also apply to steam locomotives.

A nationwide telephone strike is set for the same time Wednesday morning in a dispute between the C. I. O.'s communications workers and Bell phone companies.

Norris said the Southern Railway system's embargo will bar acceptance of any freight or pass-

FIVE BURGLARIES ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Carpenter Tools, Typewriters, $53 Cash Taken In Twin Cities

Burglar's loots Friday night included three carpenter's tool boxes from different construction jobs in Monroe, four typewriters and an adding machine from Monroe Office Equipment Company and $53 at Dumas Grocery store near Cheniere.

Monroe police said the three tool chests were valued at about $500.

Entrance to Monroe Office Equipment was gained by breaking out a window on the southeast side of the building. The burglars broke a lock on an inside north door for their exit.

W. C. Salley informed police that his carpenter's tools valued at $225 were taken from a job on Thomas street.

Another carpenter, Jack Armstrong, reported that his kit containing tools valued at $200 was taken from 1603 Georgia street. At 4301 South Grand street, James Watts reported that his tool box was stolen from a shed. Investigating officers said evidently the party had a key to the shed since there was no sign of a break.

The Ouachita parish sheriff's department reported Dumas Grocery was burglarized of $53 in cash sometime between Friday noon and 10 a.m. Saturday. Deputies said the burglars entered the building with a key or were locked up in the store when it closed.

Monroe police described the typewriters from Monroe Office Equipment as Underwood portables identifiable by the following serial numbers: 1835463, 18358558 1837032, 1894129. The adding machine was a hand operated model with the serial number 42205.

Anyone with knowledge of these machines is requested to contact the Monroe police department.

Report Bullet Holes In Raft In Baltic Sea

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sunday, April 23.—(AP)—A Swedish State Police Officer at Visby, on the island of Gotland, was quoted today as having said a rubber life raft was picked up in the Baltic Sea last Thursday appeared to have been hit by bullets.

Earlier the official Swedish News Agency T. T. had quoted the captain of a Swedish fishing vessel which picked up the second raft as having said there was a big hole in the middle of it "with ragged edges, probably caused by fire. There was also a large number of small rifts, most of them rectangular and about one by two inches big."

U. S. naval authorities in London have not definitely identified either of the two rafts found in the area as having belonged to a U. S. navy Privateer patrol bomber plane missing over the Baltic since April 8.

Both rafts were sent to the U. S. navy base at Port Lyautey, Morocco, North Africa, where the Privateer had been stationed.

FOG STYMIES HUNT OF CRASHED PLANE

35 Americans Aboard Transport Which Fell In Rugged Area Of Japan

TOYA, Japan, April 22.—(AP)—Thick fog late tonight stalled the search for a U. S. Air Force transport which crashed about midnight Friday, in the mountains southwest of Tokyo with 35 Americans aboard. The hunt will be resumed Sunday.

All 27 passengers and eight crewmen were officially listed as missing. They included Frank E. Pickelle, head of the Japanese occupation's foreign trade division, and three other occupation officials returning from a trade conference in Manila.

The four-engined C-54, en route from the Philippines to Tachikawa Airfield near Tokyo, made its last radio report at 11:08 p. m. Friday as it was preparing to cross the coast. It reported rain and rising gusts of wind.

Scene of the crash was in the rugged Tanzawa mountains, about 35 miles southwest of Tokyo and about 15 miles southwest of the airfield.

Air force officers said there was no doubt that the plane actually crashed. Some Japanese and Americans in the area were reported to have heard a crashing sound or seen a burst of flame in the rainy, black night, but their stories were too vague to be of much help to searchers.

Planes which criss-crossed hundreds of miles throughout Saturday were prevented by bad weather from finding any clue.

Air Show At Selman Today Promises Plenty Of Thrills

The Cole Brothers air show heralded as one of the greatest of aerial performances, will be seen at Selman field this afternoon at 3 p.m. when widely-known, death-defying stunt fliers will perform. They come here direct from Miami, Fla., where they have participated in the All-American Air Maneuvers. Two and one half hours of entertainment will be given, the show being sponsored by the North Monroe Lions Club, and net proceeds will be devoted to the club's charitable projects.

There are promised nine breath-taking acts, stunt flying, wing riding, parachute jumping, comic acts, the sensational "Bat Man" stunt and other thrilling performances.

The Lions Club will be assisted by troop 13, Boy Scouts, who will aid in parking cars and the civil air patrol will have charge of concessions.

The club hopes to be able to have a helicopter and jet fighting plane here from the base in Austin, Tex.

Those buying advance tickets are asked to drive to the first road off DeSiard at the old bus station, where city buses make a turn on their return cityward trip. This will leave the other road into the field open for those who must stop at the gate to buy tickets, and who otherwise would cause delay and unnecessarily long lines.

The Louisiana Baptist Children's Home boys and girls will be guests of the affair. President Fran Brennan, of the North Monroe Lions Club, urges each and every member of the club to be at the Selman main entrance at the railroad crossing.

WALKOUT STARTS

Sudden Flare Hinges On Dispute Between Western Electric, 104 Installers

TIEUP WOULD BE 2 DAYS AHEAD OF TRUCE ENDING

NEW YORK, April 22. —(AP) — An isolated dispute in the midwest threatened today to spark a coast-to-coast tieup of telephone installation services on Monday.

The threat came from Ernest Weaver, president of division 6, C.I.O. Communication Workers of America, representing 10,000 installation workers in 43 states and the District of Columbia.

He said the strike would be called unless Western Electric Co., manufacturing and installation unit of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., adjusted a dispute in Indiana.

If it comes, the strike would be two days before the end of a 60-day truce obtained by President Truman in an overall wage fight between various C. W. A. divisions and A. T. & T., pparent company of the nationwide Bell system.

Because of the truce, Weaver said his union would not do any picketing before Wednesday, thus precluding the likelihood that the rest of the C. W. A.'s 200,000 members would be kept off their jobs Monday.

The sudden strike threat, temporarily overshadowing overall telephone contract negotiations stemmed from a relatively minor disagreement at South Bend, Ind.

There, 104 telephone installation workers struck on March 27 when a crew according to the union, was denied pay after it refused to walk more than half a mile through a muddy field to work on a television tower.

Sympathy walkouts flared yesterday at scattered points across the country.

Weaver said that if talks today with the Western Electric representatives are "any real indication of the company's attitude, you can bet your bottom dollar that we will walk out Monday."

And, he added, "We will stay out until we win reasonable con-

ITALY MAY BREAK PEACE AGREEMENT

Accuses Russia Of Blocking 1948 Proposal To Give Trieste To Italy

ROME, April 22. —(AP)—Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza hinted to parliament today that Italy might break her peace treaty rather than forfeit "Italian lands" at Trieste.

He accused Soviet Russia of blocking the 1948 proposal of the United States, Britain and France to hand over to Italy all of Trieste free territory, including that occcupied by Yugoslavia.

Declaring many states behind the Iron Curtain already have violated their peace treaties, Sforza told the chamber of deputies:

"That which the others have violated for evil we are raedy, if necessary, to repudiate for good."

He also declared failure of the three western powers to live up to their 1948 pledge would weaken Italy's participation in the Atlantic Pact.

The Italian Foreign Minister spoke at the end of a two-day debate whose importance was highlighted by Russia's demand on the three western powers for withdrawal of British, American and Yugoslav occupation forces from the strategic territory at the head of the Adriatic.

Communist and leftist sympathizers, timing their tactics with Moscow, demanded that Trieste be abandoned as an "Imperialist" navy base. They said the government's reliance on western pledges was a failure.

Communists in three Italian cities last night attacked student demonstrators demanding the return of Trieste to Italy.

AGREEMENT ON LEOPOLD NEAR

BRUSSLES, Belgium, April 21.—(AP)—Only one point was reported today to stand in the way of agreement by Belgium's three major parties on bringing King Leopold back from exile. But political observers said that dispute may still cause a deadlock which would leave the country's stormy royal question unsolved.

The disputed issue is whether Leopold is to be permitted to reside in Belgium or must return to virtual exile once he delegates his royal powers to his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin.

All parties agreed last night on a compromise solution calling for Leopold to return and to turn the throne over to his son temporarily. This compromise was suggested by Leopold in a speech recorded from his exile near Geneva, Switzerland, and broadcast to the Belgians last week.

But the strongly pro-Leopold social Christian (Catholic) party of Premier-Designate Paul Van Zeeland hope that Baudouin's tenure will be strictly temporary and will lead to full restoration of power to Leopold. Apparently they would prefer that Leopold stay in Belgium while his son rules.

The Socialists, bitterly opposed to the king who surrendered his country to Germany in 1940, want the delegation of the powers to Baudouin eventually to be permanent. They are, therefore, opposed to the king's residence in this country after he turns the throne over.

Acceptance of the compromise—except for this vital point—came after a seven-hour conference on leaders of the Catholic social Christians, the Socialists and the Liberals. They are scheduled to meet again today to discuss the matter of the king's future residence.

The compromise agreement provides that a new government coalition would be formed, probably including social Christians and Liberals. The new government would ask parliament to pass a law authorizing the king to delegate his royal powers temporarily to Prince Baudouin.

The agreement also would permit the king to resume his royal functions only with the approval of about two-thirds of parliament.

Perez, Backing States Rights, Opposes Long

Often-Rumored Break With Administration Seems At Hand

By Edmond LeBreton

BATON ROUGE, La., April 22.—(AP)—With some of the dramatics of an old-time political debate, the States Rights Democratic issue this week moved on to the stage of Louisiana's senatorial campaign.

A grass-roots meeting—the annual convention of the Louisiana police jury association, bringing together members of the parish governing boards—provided the setting. The principal roles were played by Sen. Russell Long, who is seeking re-election, and Leander H. Perez, national director of the States Rights Democratic committee and a potent south Louisiana political leader, District Attorney of St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes.

When both had spoken, political observers concluded that the often rumored break between Perez and the administration of Gov. Earl K. Long, whom he helped elect, was here and that Perez was definitely in the opposition to Senator Long. This opposition has yet to endorse a "united front" candidate, but Perez seemed to have advanced a state-wide issue, if all elements opposed to the Long faction could agree on it—States Rights Democrats versus the national party leadership.

Sen. Long told the police jurors that he expected them to be "unhappy" with the party because of the F. E. P. C. legislation fight, but he suggested that the south should wage its battle inside the party, rather than sacrifice the influence it wields through Democratic senators and representatives in powerful congressional posts. He again put himself on record as opposing F. E. P. C.

Perez, although he was not on the program of the convention, hastened to Baton Rouge and the next day delivered from the same platform a violent attack on what he called "Benedict Arnolds" who had taken over the party leadership. "Who wants to lie in bed with them," he inquired.

The dramatics were in Baton Rouge, but politics went on elsewhere as well.

In New Orleans the Voters Organization, which has the objective of encouraging Negro voting, announced endorsement of Sen. Long.

There are no official figures on the number of Negroes registered as Democrats in Louisiana, nor on the number affiliated with the voters organization or the peoples defense league of which it is a part. Politicians guess the potential Negro vote in the senatorial primary in the neighborhood of 40,000.

Also in New Orleans, W. H. "Little Eva" Talbot took issue with what he said was an implication by Sen. Long that the States Rights Democrats were trying to lead the south out of the Democratic party. They should be considered instead, he said, a faction within the party, with aspirations to lead it.

Talbot, who also was instrumental in Gov. Long's successful campaign, was a States Rights leader in 1948 and afterwards was denied his seat as Democratic national committeeman from Louisiana.

While the States Rights Democratic issue erupted in Louisiana, it was rumbling also in the three other states which gave their electoral votes to the States Rights presidential ticket in 1948.

In South Carolina, a party convention opened with a keynote speech stressing no retreat from the position of 1948. In Alabama control of the Democratic executive committee is an issue in next month's primaries. In Mississippi, during a recent test, the States Rights Democrats made good their claim to be considered within their own state the official Democratic party and to use its emblems, but the pro-Truman faction has threatened a new attempt in United States court to obtain the right to use the name "Democrat."

Mrs. Drewry Given Two To Four Years

ATHENS, Ga., April 21. —(AP)—Attractive 45-year-old Mrs. Kathleen Merry Drewry was sentenced tonight to two to four years in prison for the pistol shooting of her ex-husband's sweetheart.

Mrs. Drewry's attorneys immediately filed a motion for a new trial and the judge set July 8 for a hearing, releasing the dean's ex-wife on $5,000 bond.

Mrs. Drewry had unfolded a lurid story of the dean's abnormal sexual demands" on her before their divorce last summer, then she told of intimate relations with the educator after the divorce, and charged him with a "sordid love affair" with 26-year-old Miriam Thurmon, his bride of a month.

Weilding an old family pistol with both hands, Mrs. Drewry fired five shots into the dean and Miss Thurmond.

Mrs. Drewry said, I don't think there's anything to say now."

Her conviction tonight was for shooting Miss Thurmond. She faces a second count of assault with intent to kill the dean.

Often-Rumored Break With Administration Seems At Hand

By Edmond LeBreton

BATON ROUGE, La., April 22. —(AP)—With some of the dramatics of an old-time political debate, the States Rights Democratic issue this week moved on to the stage of Louisiana's senatorial campaign.

A grass-roots meeting—the annual convention of the Louisiana police jury association, bringing together members of the parish governing boards—provided the setting. The principal roles were played by Sen. Russell Long, who is seeking re-election, and Leander H. Perez, national director of the States Rights Democratic committee and a potent south Louisiana political leader, District Attorney of St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes.

When both had spoken, political observers concluded that the often rumored break between Perez and the administration of Gov. Earl K. Long, whom he helped elect, was here and that Perez was definitely in the opposition to Senator Long. This opposition has yet to endorse a "united front" candidate, but Perez seemed to have advanced a state-wide issue, if all elements opposed to the Long faction could agree on it—States Rights Democrats versus the national party leadership.

Sen. Long told the police jurors that he expected them to be "unhappy" with the party because of the F. E. P. C. legislation fight, but he suggested that the south should wage its battle inside the party, rather than sacrifice the influence it wields through Democratic senators and representatives in powerful congressional posts. He again put himself on record as opposing F. E. P. C.

Perez, although he was not on the program of the convention, nastened to Baton Rouge and the next day delivered from the same platform a violent attack on what he called "Benedict Arnolds" who had taken over the party leadership. "Who wants to lie in bed with them," he inquired.

The dramatics were in Baton Rouge, but politics went on elsewhere as well.

In New Orleans the Voters Organization, which has the objective of encouraging Negro voting, announced endorsement of Sen. Long.

There are no official figures on the number of Negroes registered as Democrats in Louisiana, nor on the number affiliated with the voters organization or the peoples defense league of which it is a part. Politicians guess the potential Negro vote in the senatorial primary in the neighborhood of 40,000.

Also in New Orleans, W. H. "Little Eva" Talbot took issue with what he said was an implication by Sen. Long that the States Rights Democrats were trying to lead the south out of the Democratic party. They should be considered instead, he said, a faction within the party, with aspirations to lead it.

Talbot, who also was instrumental in Gov. Long's successful campaign, was a States Rights leader in 1948 and afterwards was denied his seat as Democratic national committeeman from Louisiana.

While the States Rights Democratic issue erupted in Louisiana, it was rumbling also in the three other states which gave their electoral votes to the States Rights presidential ticket in 1948.

In South Carolina, a party convention opened with a keynote speech stressing no retreat from the position of 1948. In Alabama control of the Democratic executive committee is an issue in next month's primaries. In Mississippi, during a recent test, the States Rights Democrats made good their claim to be considered within their own state the official Democratic party and to use its emblems, but the pro-Truman faction has threatened a new attempt in United States court to obtain the right to use the name "Democrat."

Plane Dispute With Russia

U. S. authorities think Soviet aviators shot down the navy plane long missing in the Baltic area. Moreover, they believe the attack came over the open sea, not over Russian-Latvian soil as the Soviet Union has charged.

Our officials unquestionably are measuring their words carefully. They would not make so grave a charge if they weren't reasonably sure of their ground.

To us in this country it would have been bad enough were the Russian story correct: that Soviet flyers had fired upon an American plane which was flying illegally above Soviet territory. We would not attack a foreign plane under similar circumstances.

But a brazenly brutal assault upon a defenseless plane observing all territorial restrictions is of a far worse order. Yet no one can pretend there is really any surprise in this behavior. In this day of the police state, callousness toward human life is common.

From their first seizure of power, Russia's leaders have relied upon a variety of sub-human practices to maintain themselves entrenched.

Even by their own bestial standards, however, it was a colossal piece of effrontery to decorate the four Soviet airmen who fired upon and apparently knocked down the missing navy plane. The ceremony obviously was rigged for American consumption. The Russians not only are brutal; they're proud of it.

What's the answer to this kind of depravity? Should we, as Senator Bridges suggests, arm patrol planes to the teeth and send them out in search of trigger-happy Russians? Then we might quickly touch off a world war nobody wants.

Much as we might like to exact a human price from Russia for its cruel action, we can't do this. As the military, political and moral leader of the free world, we have a responsibility to act firmly but correctly in all matters affecting international relations and the peace.

This does not mean appeasing or knuckling under to Soviet bullying. If Russian aviators continue to go beyond their borders in search of trouble, they should get the response in gunfire that they deserve. For it would then be plain they want war.

But, lacking convincing evidence on that score, we should seek to avoid tempting the Russians to show us how crudely primitive they are. If there is ultimately to be any conflict with the Soviet Union, at least let it not come from our being goaded into action by some possibly avoidable incident. In those circumstances the question always would exist whether or not the struggle could have been averted.

Fence The Highways

State Representative Percy Roberts of East Baton Rouge parish points out in an article in the current issue of the Louisiana Police Jury Review that 11 persons died and 29 were injured in Louisiana in 1949 as a result of accidents in which automobiles hit livestock on the highways. Those who plan to oppose a compulsory fencing law may well study the entire article.

It is difficult to understand how in this day and age anyone in public office can be opposed to fencing of highways—statutory compulsion of fencing. The most careful driver in the world may meet death through roaming livestock and, as has happened, death may come to a number of persons through such an accident no matter how careful a driver may be. Cows will start straight into the path of a car as it is almost upon them and all the honking in the world won't change a cow's course. Pigs will dash suddenly and at full speed from underbrush on the side of a road directly in front of a car with no chance for the driver to swerve or stop—this writer has had this happen. Sheep will follow the leader—if the leader decides to cross the highway, the whole flock will trail along regardless of oncoming cars. Horses and mules, apparently grazing peacefully, suddenly will dash in front of a car. There never has been and never could be any sound reason to permit individuals to graze livestock on the highways.

There are 18 parishes in Louisiana in which compulsory fencing has been established to at least some degree, but in only a few parishes is the ban on highway roaming of livestock parishwide. (In some parishes individual wards have bans.) The problem is one that should be handled by statewide law, not only because the ban against roaming livestock should be in effect in every part of every parish, but because if the ban is under statewide law, enforcement of it will come under the parish sheriffs—which is where it belongs.

Probably none of the 11 who died in 1949 in Louisiana in automobile-livestock accidents would be dead today if there had been a statewide fencing law—an enforced law. Probably none of the 29 injured would have suffered a scratch. No one knows how many have died or been injured in the same way in previous years for records are not available. But, all of them died needlessly and because Louisiana still, in this respect, is a backwoods state.

There is more money in circulation than ever, and its velocity hasn't been slowed, either.

Puncuation is important. In Hollywood, for example, they use a comma after a marriage ceremony instead of a period.

Scientist says the average woman knows less about men than she thinks she does. But it will take more than science to convince her.

Atlas, the legendary figure presumed to be holding up the world, has lost his job. The American taxpayer has taken over.

Target Practice

"The Princess Margaret Clan" leads young London's social life. . . . Unlike Princess Elizabeth, she enjoys being considered a social "leader". . . . The clan met recently for a "pink champagne party" in London's 21 Club. . . . Their ages range from 20 to 31. . . . Their tastes vary from boogie-woogie to the classics. . . . They all dance well and go to the Thittr at least twice a month.

The "men" in the Clan include: The Marquis of Blandford (heir to the Duke of Marlborough), aged 23. . . . Tom Egerton, who is the eldest and shyest. An ex-gaurds officer, son of a retired naval man. . . . Margaret spent a week end at his folks' home last summer. . . . He has been considered one of Mayfair's most eligible bachelors since. . . . Then there's the Honourable Julian Fane, 22 and a playwright, and Lord Ogilvy, 23, an officer in The Scots Guards.

The gels in the Clan: Margaret's best girl friend, Sharman Douglas, dghtr. of the U. S. Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, and Lady Rosemary Spencer-Churchill (22), youngest sister of Blandford. . . . Smallest in the group is Margaret, who wears 2 1-2 inch heels when she goes dancing with some of these youths, all being over 6 ft., the exception being Egerton, who is just under.

The ambition of every deb: To tag on, somehow or other, to a poddy at which Princess Margaret happens to be.

Jeeves, fetch meh a whuskynsodah. Ah'm Soooooo Bawwwwwdd!

The current issue of Henry Luce's Fortune mag features a savage sum-up of Charles Luckman. . . . One of the bitterest critiques ever written. . . . It doesn't even let him get up off the floor—he is kicked every time they knock him down. . . . The reader wonders why Fortune editors would attack a businessman so ruthlessly with so many outlaws at large, who rate that space.

Very brave of Fortune to stick their thumbs in Charles Luckman's eyes now. . . . Why didn't they do it when he was in charge of Lever Bros. advertising?

John Crosby, the radio sentinel, reports being puzzled and disappointed after being confronted by Samuel Goldwyn of Hollywood the other teevy eve. They met via the "Who Said That?" program, where Crosby found that Goldwyn didn't "shine forth, either as a statesman or as Mr. Malaprop." Mr. G. denied ever saying such things as "Include me out!" or "I can tell you in exactly two woids. Im Possible!" . . . Crosby's wonderment and disappointment came from once reading Alva Johnston's piece about Goldwyn's malapropisms in a long ago Satevepost. . . . We recall it well. . . . It was crowded, with nearly all the Goldwynisms published here first, rewrites from the old Mefoofsky gags, plus a great number offered via staffers and others fired by Mr. Goldwyn.

Well, this is the 25th wedding ann'y for the Goldwyns and a good time for the column to throw itself on their mercy. . . . Arthur Brisbane once noted: "Repetition Makes Reputation". . . . The constant publicity apparently didn't retard Mr. Goldwyn's success. . . . Or Alva Johnston's, who once got a lot of good money (from the Satevepost) for counterfeiting.

Robert Montgomery, the star and radio commentator, has been using Frank Costello and other men-about-the-underworld as targets in a compaign for lawnorder. . . . His attacks have been constant—so the rumors buzzed that Mr. Montgomery might need a bodyguard. . . . The other night someone asked him about that. . . . "Maybe you are right," said Robert. "I'm sure I'm being followed."

You're right, Bob. You've been followed for several months. Bodyguards hired by certain targets to make sure nothing happens.

Music! Music! Music!: Mr. Caesar Petrillo, czar of the Musicians' Union (the man who convulsed newsreel audiences when he stumped the experts on a senate committee), is trying to get away from it all. . . . He is holidaying at the Roney-Plaza Hotel, where he dozes on the hotel grounds in a huge chair. . . . Yesterday his snooze was completely wrecked when a pair of gittar players (in hill-billy attire) started serenading him with an alleged act.

"I'll betcha ain't even union members!" he groaned, as he handed them a dollar to "get the hell away and leemee alone!"

Mr. Driscoll's syndicated notes on Our Town mentioned the passing of a showman the other edition, one of the meanest Broadwayites of them all. . . . "Yet," says the journalist, "because his facial expression was always serious, many people thought him mean."

He means actors, actresses, stagehands, ushers, waiters, busboys, authors, directors hatcheck girls, taxi drivers and beggars.

Before an upstate group a month ago (we just got the clippings) a reformed drunk (now an exec on a New York daily) made a speech. . . . "The radio rabble-rousers," he is quoted, "are a menace to the nation!" . . . The reason the people fear we are facing "a cataclysmic war" he orated, is that they do not read fully their factual newspapers, which do not color the news.

"When Eisenhower says there is no war in the foreseeable future," he added, "when Gen. Marshall, Truman and Churchill all say the same thing, why don't we believe them? Instead we hear two or three rabble-rousers on the radio, who are causing all the trouble. They do not know any more about the world scene than we do."

He apparently never reads his own front page. . . . Eisenhower changed his mind weeks after the above statements), and Truman declared a month ago: "I can see no peace!" . . . Mr. Churchill never said there is no danger of war. . . . Mr. Pop-off's own newspaper is packed with fears of another war, confirming this dept's warnings of three years. . . . The real menace is this kind of newspaper official, who keeps people misinformed.

We assume he ie is assigned to soliciting ads. Not reporting news.

From the same uninformed exec's own newspaper yesterday: "San Francisco (AP): This is how Secretary of Air Stuart Symington sees the cold war: Russia considers war inevitable. Russia can deliver a surprise atomic attack on any part of the U. S.' Against such a blow, the U. S. is defenseless."

Echoing the long-ago words of this Rabble-rouser menace.

JIMMIE FIDLER

HOLLYWOOD, April 22.—Understand that Johnny Coy and Candy Montgomery have blue-penciled their long-planned marriage—and that the reason for their rift is a gentleman named Pat O'Connor. . . . Add Pat O'Brien to your list of movie stars who own oil wells; he's a heavy stockholder in a new Texas field. . . . Stewart Granger, the British screen Romeo, is telling pals that he will apply for U. S. citizenship as soon as he can settle his personal affairs in England.

Janet Leigh will make that long-expected altar-trek with Arthur Loew, Jr., on August 1, with Elizabeth Taylor handling the matron of honor chores. . . . Time out for actress Ann Blyth, bedded last week by poison oak and this week by a tonsilectomy. . . . Wotzis about Bob Topping and Lana Turner marching out of a Hollywood nighterie in a huff when the owner tried to overcharge them (in thier opinion) for a bottle of liquor? . . . I hear that Somerset Maugham, the famous English novelist, will be "Sir Somerset" next time King George unsheathes his ceremonial sword. . . . New Yorkers who are keeping tally on Frank Sinatra's trans-Atlantic phone calls to Ava Gardner are more than skeptical about his reported urge for a reconciliation with his wife.

Denise Darcel and Peter Crosby, who recently announced wedding plans, have reconsidered. . . . I'm told that Charlie Chaplin's next move, in his campaign to reinstate himself with the American public, will be the publ'cation of his autobiography, in which he will claim to be a much misunderstood man.

Preview Nights: Pic of the week: Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "Annie Get Your Gun" (Betty Hutton-Howard Keel-Louis Calhern-J. Carrol Naish - Edward Arnold - Keenan Wynn). One of the most entertaining filmusicals in Hollywood history—a triumph for everyone concerned with its production, and a must-see attraction for fans of all ages. . . . Good: Universal-International's "One Way Street" (James Mason-Marta Toren-Dan Duryea). Well-played drama with a gripping if somewhat implausible story. . . . Fair: Eagle-Lion's "The Fighting Stallion" (Bill Edwards-Doris Merrick-Forrest Taylor). An off-the-beaten-path western, corny in spots, but exciting enough to atone for its faults. . . . Columbia's "Customs Agent" (William Eythe-Marjorie Reynolds). A "B" melodrama, good enough that action-picutre fans should not feel stung. . . . Low Bridge: "Everybody's Dancin' " (Spade Cooley-Richard Lane-Barbara Woodell). A western "variety" show on film—and another argument against the double-billing system. . . . Best Pedformance: Betty Hutton in "Annie Get Your Gun."

I've lived in Hollywood for thirty years and, during that time, I've had ample opportunity to appraise the charitable work done by members of the movie colony as individuals, and by the picture industry as a whole. And I've always been tremendously impressed by the readiness with which the people in show business respond to worthy (as well as many unworthy) appeals. I wish, however, that Hollywood apologists would quit citing the industry's record for work and money contributed to "good causes" every time they're criticized on other, entirely unrelated, scores. The undeniable fact that Hollywood stars, during the war, did much to entertain American service men is, in itself, admirable, but its use as rebuttal for such charges as those hurled by Senator Johnson in his current attack on Hollywood immorality becomes ridiculous. The motion picture industry, I think weakens, instead of strengthens, its position by every effort it makes to dodge specific issues.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

Charles B. Driscoll:

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK—I'm afraid you poor customers are going to get a good slice of Missouri during the next week or so. I have to get away from New York once in a while, to avoid becoming a professional New Yorker, than which. . . . Well, maybe you don't know the professional New Yorkers. Anyway, those who have followed the column through the years know that I take time out at irregular intervals to get as far away from Broadway as possible. I call this un-Broadwaying. I have flown to Preu for a week-end away from Broadway, to Bermuda for two days, to many parts of Canada and South America, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and often to the midwest and west of our own country, just to make sure I was not learning to talk Brooklyn Bridge.

I have invitations from Florida and Indiana coming up, but do not know whether I can make the trips, because of what seems to be time. Mr. Einstein says there is no absolute passage of time. He ought to try to meet a daily deadline every day of the year. He'd find something rather close to absolute about it. Sometimes I think college professors ought to serve a term on a newspaper copy desk. That would give them some sense of time.

From Welsh, La., a town of which I was ignorant, Mrs. Johnny Benoit writes about her enjoyment of this column, and tries to cheer me up in the matter of the passing of my little granddaughter, Jane. I hope I haven't sounded too mournful about it. I've been reading a lot of medical books about premature babies, and learn that among those insufficiently nourished before birth there is apt to be mental deficiency or blindness. Jane was one of the insufficiently nourished babies. think she is now where she belongs. There is no blindness there. Only here, where there is much of it.

"The Circle of the Day," by Helen Howe, is a novel, published by Simon-Schuster, that seems almost sure to make husbands and wives dislike one another. The lady lives in New York, so I hope to have a talk with her, and find out why she appraises marriage at such a low level. It really isn't half that bad. I've known couples on farms and ranches who promised, kept their promises, and were still in love when they died of old age. You'd never guess any such situation from this piece of writing, but it is well done.

Jim Casper, the alligator-ostrich tycoon of Florida, wants to know when Lowell Thomas and I are coming down to accept the honorary citizenship of St. Augustine. Answer: Hope soon. I have to make the trip to Missouri and Kansas first, but should make Florida before the weather becomes a trifle warm there.

Jim tells me that his ostrich, Dixie, champion racer, doesn't like to leave home. He took the bird to a show in Maryland, and Dixie was so homesick that he wouldn't eat. As soon as he got back to Florida Dixie staggered across the field to his old trainer, F. W. Anderson, 78 years old, and laid his head on the trainer's shoulder. Anderson petted the big bird's neck and head and comforted him, whereupon Dixie, renewed in spirit, started to eat and strut.

I've seen young wives just that homesick, after leaving home for a new home.

THESE DAYS

BEST SELLERS

I have been puzzled for some time about the effort of American publishers to push their books in Europe and the association of ECA funds to make exchange available. And just as I was getting into the matter, my interest was diverted to best sellers.

So, I went to see Robert F. de Graff, who runs a series of 25-cent books called Pocket Books. I did not select him for any other reason than that I felt the door was open to me there to discover what I wanted. I suppose other publishers could have given me the same or similar data. What I want to point to is this list of best sellers in western Germany and Holland:

"The Merriam-Webster Pocket Dictionary," "The Song of Bernadette," "The Good Earth," "The Egg and I," "The Pocket Book of Short Stories," "Madame Curie," "Shakespeare's Four Grea Ttragedies," "The Pocket Book of Old Masters," "The Sea Wolf," "The Pocket Book of Adventure Stories," "Anna and the King of Siam," "Famous Artists and Their Models," "Moby Dick," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Treasure Island," "Dragon Seed," "Shakespeare's Four Great Comedies," "Silas Marner," "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," "The Postman Always Rings Twice."

This is an astonishing list and shows how hungry these people are for books. Of course, they cannot spend too much money for books in their present financial stat;e however, up to December 31, 1949, ECA has made available $2,823,291 in excahnge contracts for books, magazines, newspapers and motion pictures. Of this amount, $1,163,539 has gone to movies, which is a comparatively small amount, considering their huge appeal to the less literate. The exchange guarantees for books have run:

Western Germany $588,130, Netherlands $68,000, Austria $542, Italy $35,375. Total $692,047.

The largest exporter of American books is the Nassau Distributing Company, a group of American publishers mainly of scientific and technical books. They have sent over $200,000 of such books. In fact, the total of technical, scientific and medical books is much higher, in dollar value, than general books.

This picture may seem too refined; true, some of the books that go over deal with murder, sex, private eyes, etc. I cannot get excited about that. People will read what they like, if they are free, and who am I to tell them not to read what I do? For instance, I interrupt myself from Engels's introduction to Marx's "The Class Struggles in France 1848-50" to read a private eye piece by Erle Stanley Gardner.

Does it make sense? Sure! I was weary of ponderosity. I wanted make-believe. So do they over ed make-believe. So do they over there. Life is so tough in theory that a bit of coarse realism helps to tide over the absurdities of our generation. That is why there is a revival of Charlie Chaplin and Laurel and Hardy; tha is why "The Goldbergs" and Milton Berle are more attractive on television than Mrs. Roosevelt—or am I in the same category?

Yet, to offset "escape" literature is this amazing lis' of best sellers, which is evidence of a hunger for good things. Pocket Books sold during the period under consideration $125,000 of books under the ECA contract and adictionary tops the list! During the same period, their five best sellers in the United States were:

"The Case of the Empty Tin," Erle Stanley Gardner; "Tales of the Haunted Husband," Erle Stanley Gardner; "Tales of the South Pacific," James A. Michener; "The D. A. Calls a Turn," Erle Stanley Gardner; "The D. A. Cooks A Goose," Erle Stanley Gardner.

Of course, the comparison proves nothing, which is true of most comparisons. In this case, the 25-cent books are bought for occasional reading, but I often wonder how many of the so-called "think" books are just bought without being read. From table conversation, it might often be inferred that many bookbuyers only read the first ten pages; then they turn to a magazine with lots of pictures. They seem to know the latter in greater detail.

OUR CHILDREN

SOUND MENTAL ATTITUDES

Teachers and parents must take into consideration the effect of their teaching and discipline on the mental attitudes of the children they are instructing. It is possible, with every good intention, to so teach a child as to injure his mental health.

It is not possible to separate a mind from its body. The two are so mingled that separation is impossible. Thought affects action and action in turn affects thought. Before taking any step toward instructing a child, we must stop and ask ourselves if what we are about to do will strengthen and improve the child's mental attitudes and therefore his whole being, or if it will affect him injuriously.

Fear of any sort is injurious. It lowers the child's vitality, puts a weight on his spirit and so retards his activity. It destroys initiative which is something most precious in the growth of a child. There is fear latent in every human being, placed there by nature for our defense against evil. That fear is sufficient and we should not wilfully add to it by treating a child so harshly as to rouse fear in him of us. Doing so we gain nothing and he loses mental well-being.

When we act so as to instil courage, patience, good will in children, we help them to set sound mental attitudes which will enable them to act helpfully, bravely, effectively without a feeling of weight on their iniatiative. They will make childish mistakes, of course, but these are to be taken as the natural result of trying to do what is unusual and to be used as stepping stones over hard places in learning experiences. Children do not want to make mistakes. It is better to accept them when they appear and so avoid making the child afraid to try himself out in new situations.

A child's emotions must be forever held sacred to parents and teachers. Here is delicate ground indeed. Fear, anger, hate, jealously are ugly feelings which are dangerous to the mental health of th' children. Don't accent them by talking, but try to set the stage so that they are replaced by feelings of good will and self-appreciation. Self-appreciation is essential in the mental health of all people, and children must be helped to that feeling by allowing them to be helpful, by pouring praise on them for any good deeds done, by setting the environment so as to remove causes for bad feelings. This takes a lot of doing, but rearing a child is the most important work any adult can perform. Mental health is of chief importance to this process.

Teaching a child to obey should begin at a very early age. Dr. Patri advises how as well as when in his helpful booklet, No. 301, "Obedience."

DOWN SOUTH

TO A HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE

I had a letter the other day from a boy who will graduate from high school this spring. He was preparing a speech for a valedictory address at commencement, using the title, "Big Government—Little People."

This was an encouraging letter to me. The boy was thinking about his country—its past, its present, its future. He s one of more than a million boys and girls who will graduate from high school this spring. Not many of them will go on to college; most of them are ready to take their places in the life and economy of the nation. They are intelligent boys and girls, they are the ones who will be running this country in the years ahead—but they must shudder when they realize what the present generation is leaving them!

In the boy's letter, he said, "I am a southerner who loves the freedoms of being an American citizen—and want to keep them—but with the realization that under a system such as Britain's, it would be practically impossible to do this."

And yet as he looks about him he realizes that much of our present leadership is taking us down the same Socialist road that Britain has travelled. He sees us leaving him and the other boys and girls with an overpowering national debt, now amounting to 40 per cent more than the total assessed value of all the taxable property in this country, and no systematic plan being proposed to pay it. So far as he can tell, we are expecting him to pay it! He also sees us continuing to increase this debt, making no apparent effort to live within our income but instead trying to satisfy our wants by using borrowed money which he will have to repay. If he did not think through this problem for himself, he would undoubtedly go out into the world believing this is the way in which these matters should be handled, that it is not necessary to pay our way as we go along, that it is not necessary to earn before you can spend. He would believe that there is such a thing as "something for nothing" in this world, that the "government'll - take - care - of - you" philosophy is the correct one. He would say to himself, "I don't need to accept any personal responsibility for my future welfare; I'll turn all that over to the government."

But this boy is thinking for himself—thank goodness! He says in his letter, "If our federal government becomes much stronger, with its policies which tend to edge free enterprise out of the picture, we American citizens are going to be a pretty small people, pertaining to rights and freedoms."

What this American boy is asking, in effect, is that he at least have the opportunity that his forefathers had when they came of age. He doesn't want to look forward to a future burdened with debt and high taxes. He doesn't want state control to reach the point where he will be assigned to a job by the government and be told how much he can make and how much he can spend and what prices he must pay. He wants to run his own life. But as it is, he is wondering if he puts out extra effort whether he will be allowed to benefit thereby, or whether he will be kept on the same mediocre level with those not willing to work harder. He is wondering if he saves his money whether there will be any incentive to invest it. He is wondering whether it is worthwhile to be ambitious.

This boy makes one mistake, though—right at the end of his letter. He says, "Of course I realize that because I am young and unimportant that anything I could do now would possibly be of no help at all."

You are wrong there, son. You may be young—but you are not unimportant! You are the most important person in this world. Each of your fellow graduates is of like importance. That is democracy. That is freedom. When you become unimportant, then liberty will be no more. What you and the other boys and girls do will determine the future course of this nation.

Let's hope we at least give you a chance!

Plane Dispute With Russia

U. S. authorities think Soviet aviators shot down the navy plane long missing in the Baltic area. Moreover, they believe the attack came over the open sea, not over Russian-Latvian soil as the Soviet Union has charged.

Our officials unquestionably are measuring their words carefully. They would not make so grave a charge if they weren't reasonably sure of their ground.

To us in this country it would have been bad enough were the Russian story correct: that Soviet flyers had fired upon an American plane which was flying illegally above Soviet territory. We would not attack a foreign plane under similar circumstances.

But a brazenly brutal assault upon a defenseless plane observing all territorial restrictions is of a far worse order. Yet no one can pretend there is really any surprise in this behavior. In this day of the police state, callousness toward human life is common.

From their first seizure of power, Russia's leaders have relied upon a variety of sub-human practices to maintain themselves entrenched.

Even by their own bestial standards, however, it was a colossal piece of effrontery to decorate the four Soviet airmen who fired upon and apparently knocked down the missing navy plane. The ceremony obviously was rigged for American consumption. The Russians not only are brutal; they're proud of it.

What's the answer to this kind of depravity? Should we, as Senator Bridges suggests, arm patrol planes to the teeth and send them out in search of trigger-happy Russians? Then we might quickly touch off a world war nobody wants.

Much as we might like to exact a human price from Russia for its cruel action, we can't do this. As the military, political and moral leader of the free world, we have a responsibility to act firmly but correctly in all matters affecting international relations and the peace.

This does not mean appeasing or knuckling under to Soviet bullying. If Russian aviators continue to go beyond their borders in search of trouble, they should get the response in gunfire that they deserve. For it would then be plain they want war.

But, lacking convincing evidence on that score, we should seek to avoid tempting the Russians to show us how crudely primitive they are. If there is ultimately to be any conflict with the Soviet Union, at least let it not come from our being goaded into action by some possibly avoidable incident. In those circumstances the question always would exist whether or not the struggle could have been averted.

Fence The Highways

State Representative Percy Roberts of East Baton Rouge parish points out in an article in the current issue of the Louisiana Police Jury Review that 11 persons died and 29 were injured in Louisiana in 1949 as a result of accidents in which automobiles hit livestock on the highways. Those who plan to oppose a compulsory fencing law may well study the entire article.

It is difficult to understand how in this day and age anyone in public office can be opposed to fencing of highways—statutory compulsion of fencing. The most careful driver in the world may meet death through roaming livestock and, as has happened, death may come to a number of persons through such an accident no matter how careful a driver may be. Cows will start straight into the path of a car as it is almost upon them and all the honking in the world won't change a cow's course. Pigs will dash suddenly and at full speed from underbrush on the side of a road directly in front of a car with no chance for the driver to swerve or stop—this writer has had this happen. Sheep will follow the leader—if the leader decides to cross the highway, the whole flock will trail along regardless of oncoming cars. Horses and mules, apparently grazing peacefully, suddenly will dash in front of a car. There never has been and never could be any sound reason to permit individuals to graze livestock on the highways.

There are 18 parishes in Louisiana in which compulsory fencing has been established to at least some degree, but in only a few parishes is the ban on highway roaming of livestock parishwide. (In some parishes individual wards have bans.) The problem is one that should be handled by statewide law, not only because the ban against roaming livestock should be in effect in every part of every parish, but because if the ban is under statewide law, enforcement of it will come under the parish sheriffs—which is where it belongs.

Probably none of the 11 who died in 1949 in Louisiana in automobile-livestock accidents would be dead today if there had been a statewide fencing law—an enforced law. Probably none of the 29 injured would have suffered a scratch. No one knows how many have died or been injured in the same way in previous years for records are not available. But, all of them died needlessly and because Louisiana still, in this respect, is a backwoods state.

There is more money in circulation than ever, and its velocity hasn't been slowed, either.

Puncuation is important. In Hollywood, for example, they use a comma after a marriage ceremony instead of a period.

Scientist says the average woman knows less about men than she thinks she does. But it will take more than science to convince her.

Target Practice

"The Princess Margaret Clan" leads young London's social life. . . . Unlike Princess Elizabeth, she enjoys being considered a social "leader". . . . The clan met recently for a "pink champagne party" in London's 21 Club. . . . Their ages range from 20 to 31. . . . Their tastes vary from boogie-woogie to the classics. . . . They all dance well and go to the Thittr at least twice a month.

The "men" in the Clan include: The Marquis of Blandford (heir to the Duke of Marlborough), aged 23. . . . Tom Egerton, who is the eldest and shyest. An ex-gaurds officer, son of a retired naval man. . . . Margaret spent a week end at his folks' home last summer. . . . He has been considered one of Mayfair's most eligible bachelors since. . . . Then there's the Honourable Julian Fane, 22 and a playwright, and Lord Ogilvy, 23, an officer in The Scots Guards.

The gels in the Clan: Margaret's best girl friend, Sharman Douglas, dghtr. of the U. S. Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, and Lady Rosemary Spencer-Churchill (22), youngest sister of Blandford. . . . Smallest in the group is Margaret, who wears 2 1-2 inch heels when she goes dancing with some of these youths, all being over 6 ft., the exception being Egerton, who is just under.

The ambition of every deb: To tag on, somehow or other, to a poddy at which Princess Margaret happens to be.

Jeeves, fetch meh a whuskynsodah. Ah'm Soooooo Bawwwwwdd!

The current issue of Henry Luce's Fortune mag features a savage sum-up of Charles Luckman. . . . One of the bitterest critiques ever written. . . . It doesn't even let him get up off the floor—he is kicked every time they knock him down. . . . The reader wonders why Fortune editors would attack a businessman so ruthlessly with so many outlaws at large, who rate that space.

Very brave of Fortune to stick their thumbs in Charles Luckman's eyes now. . . . Why didn't they do it when he was in charge of Lever Bros. advertising?

John Crosby, the radio sentinel, reports being puzzled and disappointed after being confronted by Samuel Goldwyn of Hollywood the other teevy eve. They met via the "Who Said That?" program, where Crosby found that Goldwyn didn't "shine forth, either as a statesman or as Mr. Malaprop." Mr. G. denied ever saying such things as "Include me out!" or "I can tell you in exactly two woids. Im Possible!" . . . Crosby's wonderment and disappointment came from once reading Alva Johnston's piece about Goldwyn's malapropisms in a long ago Satevepost. . . . We recall it well. . . . It was crowded, with nearly all the Goldwynisms published here first, rewrites from the old Mefoofsky gags, plus a great number offered via staffers and others fired by Mr. Goldwyn.

Well, this is the 25th wedding ann'y for the Goldwyns and a good time for the column to throw itself on their mercy. . . . Arthur Brisbane once noted: "Repetition Makes Reputation". . . . The constant publicity apparently didn't retard Mr. Goldwyn's success. . . . Or Alva Johnston's, who once got a lot of good money (from the Satevepost) for counterfeiting.

Robert Montgomery, the star and radio commentator, has been using Frank Costello and other men-about-the-underworld as targets in a compaign for lawnorder. . . . His attacks have been constant—so the rumors buzzed that Mr. Montgomery might need a bodyguard. . . . The other night someone asked him about that. . . . "Maybe you are right," said Robert. "I'm sure I'm being followed."

You're right, Bob. You've been followed for several months. Bodyguards hired by certain targets to make sure nothing happens.

Music! Music! Music!: Mr. Caesar Petrillo, czar of the Musicians' Union (the man who convulsed newsreel audiences when he stumped the experts on a senate committee), is trying to get away from it all. . . . He is holidaying at the Roney-Plaza Hotel, where he dozes on the hotel grounds in a huge chair. . . . Yesterday his snooze was completely wrecked when a pair of gittar players (in hill-billy attire) started serenading him with an alleged act.

"I'll betcha ain't even union members!" he groaned, as he handed them a dollar to "get the hell away and leemee alone!"

Mr. Driscoll's syndicated notes on Our Town mentioned the passing of a showman the other edition, one of the meanest Broadwayites of them all. . . . "Yet," says the journalist, "because his facial expression was always serious, many people thought him mean."

He means actors, actresses, stagehands, ushers, waiters, busboys, authors, directors hatcheck girls, taxi drivers and beggars.

Before an upstate group a month ago (we just got the clippings) a reformed drunk (now an exec on a New York daily) made a speech. . . . "The radio rabble-rousers," he is quoted, "are a menace to the nation!" . . . The reason the people fear we are facing "a cataclysmic war" he orated, is that they do not read fully their factual newspapers, which do not color the news.

"When Eisenhower says there is no war in the foreseeable future," he added, "when Gen. Marshall, Truman and Churchill all say the same thing, why don't we believe them? Instead we hear two or three rabble-rousers on the radio, who are causing all the trouble. They do not know any more about the world scene than we do."

He apparently never reads his own front page. . . . Eisenhower changed his mind weeks after the above statements), and Truman declared a month ago: "I can see no peace!" . . . Mr. Churchill never said there is no danger of war. . . . Mr. Pop-off's own newspaper is packed with fears of another war, confirming this dept's warnings of three years. . . . The real menace is this kind of newspaper official, who keeps people misinformed.

We assume he ie is assigned to soliciting ads. Not reporting news.

From the same uninformed exec's own newspaper yesterday: "San Francisco (AP): This is how Secretary of Air Stuart Symington sees the cold war: Russia considers war inevitable. Russia can deliver a surprise atomic attack on any part of the U. S.' Against such a blow, the U. S. is defenseless."

Echoing the long-ago words of this Rabble-rouser menace.

JIMMIE FIDLER

HOLLYWOOD, April 22.—Understand that Johnny Coy and Candy Montgomery have blue-penciled their long-planned marriage—and that the reason for their rift is a gentleman named Pat O'Connor. . . . Add Pat O'Brien to your list of movie stars who own oil wells; he's a heavy stockholder in a new Texas field. . . . Stewart Granger, the British screen Romeo, is telling pals that he will apply for U. S. citizenship as soon as he can settle his personal affairs in England.

Janet Leigh will make that long-expected altar-trek with Arthur Loew, Jr., on August 1, with Elizabeth Taylor handling the matron of honor chores. . . . Time out for actress Ann Blyth, bedded last week by poison oak and this week by a tonsilectomy. . . . Wotzis about Bob Topping and Lana Turner marching out of a Hollywood nighterie in a huff when the owner tried to overcharge them (in thier opinion) for a bottle of liquor? . . . I hear that Somerset Maugham, the famous English novelist, will be "Sir Somerset" next time King George unsheathes his ceremonial sword. . . . New Yorkers who are keeping tally on Frank Sinatra's trans-Atlantic phone calls to Ava Gardner are more than skeptical about his reported urge for a reconciliation with his wife.

Denise Darcel and Peter Crosby, who recently announced wedding plans, have reconsidered. . . . I'm told that Charlie Chaplin's next move, in his campaign to reinstate himself with the American public, will be the publication of his autobiography, in which he will claim to be a much misunderstood man.

Preview Nights: Pic of the week: Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "Annie Get Your Gun" (Betty Hutton-Howard Keel-Louis Calhern-J. Carrol Naish - Edward Arnold - Keenan Wynn). One of the most entertaining filmusicals in Hollywood history—a triumph for everyone concerned with its production, and a must-see attraction for fans of all ages. . . . Good: Universal-International's "One Way Street" (James Mason-Marta Toren-Dan Duryea). Well-played drama with a gripping if somewhat implausible story. . . . Fair: Eagle-Lion's "The Fighting Stallion" (Bill Edwards-Doris Merrick-Forrest Taylor). An off-the-beaten-path western, corny in spots, but exciting enough to atone for its faults. . . . Columbia's "Customs Agent" (William Eythe-Marjorie Reynolds). A "B" melodrama good enough that action-picutre fans should not feel stung. . . . Low Bridge: "Everybody's Dancin' " (Spade Cooley-Richard Lane-Barbara Woodell). A western "variety" show on film—and another argument against the double-billing system. . . . Best Pedformance: Betty Hutton in "Annie Get Your Gun."

I've lived in Hollywood for thirty years and, during that time, I've had ample opportunity to appraise the charitable work done by members of the movie colony as individuals, and by the picture industry as a whole. And I've always been tremendously impressed by the readiness with which the people in show business respond to worthy (as well as many unworthy) appeals. I wish, however, that Hollywood apologists would quit citing the industry's record for work and money contributed to "good causes" every time they're criticized on other, entirely unrelated, scores. The undeniable fact that Hollywood stars, during the war, did much to entertain American service men is, in itself, admirable, but its use as rebuttal for such charges as those hurled by Senator Johnson in his current attack on Hollywood immorality becomes ridiculous. The motion picture industry, I think weakens, instead of strengthens, its position by every effort it makes to dodge specific issues.

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK—I'm afraid you poor customers are going to get a good slice of Missouri during the next week or so. I have to get away from New York once in a while, to avoid becoming a professional New Yorker, than which. . . . Well, maybe you don't know the professional New Yorkers. Anyway, those who have followed the column through the years know that I take time out at irregular intervals to get as far away from Broadway as possible. I call this un-Broadwaying. I have flown to Preu for a week-end away from Broadway, to Bermuda for two days, to many parts of Canada and South America, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and often to the midwest and west of our own country, just to make sure I was not learning to talk Brooklyn Bridge.

I have invitations from Florida and Indiana coming up, but do not know whether I can make the trips, because of what seems to be time. Mr. Einstein says there is no absolute passage of time. He ought to try to meet a daily deadline, every day of the year. He'd find something rather close to absolute about it. Sometimes I think college professors ought to serve a term on a newspaper copy desk. That would give them some sense of time.

From Welsh, La., a town of which I was ignorant, Mrs. Johnny Benoit writes about her enjoyment of this column, and tries to cheer me up in the matter of the passing of my little granddaughter, Jane. I hope I haven't sounded too mournful about it. I've been reading a lot of medical books about premature babies, and learn that among those insufficiently nourished before birth there is apt to be mental deficiency or blindness. Jane was one of the insufficiently nourished babies. think she is now where she belongs. There is no blindness there. Only here, where there is much of it.

"The Circle of the Day," by Helen Howe, is a novel, published by Simon-Schuster, that seems almost sure to make husbands and wives dislike one another. The lady lives in New York, so I hope to have a talk with her, and find out why she appraises marriage at such a low level. It really isn't half that bad. I've known couples on farms and ranches who promised, kept their promises, and were still in love when they died of old age. You'd never guess any such situation from this piece of writing, but it is well done.

Jim Casper, the alligator-ostrich tycoon of Florida, wants to know when Lowell Thomas and I are coming down to accept the honorary citizenship of St. Augustine. Answer: Hope soon. I have to make the trip to Missouri and Kansas first, but should make Florida before the weather becomes a trifle warm there.

Jim tells me that his ostrich, Dixie, champion racer, doesn't like to leave home. He took the bird to a show in Maryland, and Dixie was so homesick that he wouldn't eat. As soon as he got back to Florida Dixie staggered across the field to his old trainer, F. W. Anderson, 78 years old, and laid his head on the trainer's shoulder. Anderson petted the big bird's neck and head and comforted him, whereupon Dixie, renewed in spirit, started to eat and strut.

I've seen young wives just that homesick, after leaving home for a new home.

I did not select him for any other reason than that I felt the door was open to me there to discover what I wanted. I suppose other publishers could have given me the same or similar data. What I want to point to is this list of best sellers in western Germany and Holland:

"The Merriam-Webster Pocket Dictionary," "The Song of Bernadette," "The Good Earth," "The Egg and I," "The Pocket Book of Short Stories," "Madame Curie," "Shakespeare's Four Grea Ttragedies," "The Pocket Book of Old Masters," "The Sea Wolf," "The Pocket Book of Adventure Stories," "Anna and the King of Siam," "Famous Artists and Their Models," "Moby Dick," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Treasure Island," "Dragon Seed," "Shakespeare's Four Great Comedies," "Silas Marner," "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," "The Postman Always Rings Twice."

This is an astonishing list and shows how hungry these people are for books. Of course, they cannot spend too much money for books in their present financial state however, up to December 31, 1949, ECA has made available $2,823,291 in excahnge contracts for books, magazines, newspapers and motion pictures. Of this amount, $1,163,539 has gone to movies, which is a comparatively small amount, considering their huge appeal to the less literate. The exchange guarantees for books have run:

Western Germany $588,130, Netherlands $68,000, Austria $542, Italy $35,375. Total $692,047.

The largest exporter of American books is the Nassau Distributing Company, a group of American publishers mainly of scientific and technical books. They have sent over $200,000 of such books. In fact, the total of technical, scientific and medical books is much higher, in dollar value, than general books.

This picture may seem too refined; true, some of the books that go over deal with murder, sex, private eyes, etc. I cannot get excited about that. People will read what they like, if they are free, and who am I to tell them not to read what I do? For instance, I interrupt myself from Engels's introduction to Marx's "The Class Struggles in France 1848-50" to read a private eye piece by Erle Stanley Gardner.

Does it make sense? Sure! I was weary of ponderosity. I wanted make-believe. So do they over ed make-believe. So do they over there. Life is so tough in theory that a bit of coarse realism helps to tide over the absurdities of our generation. That is why there is a revival of Charlie Chaplin and Laurel and Hardy; tha is why "The Goldbergs" and Milton Berle are more attractive on television than Mrs. Roosevelt—or am I in the same category?

Yet, to offset "escape" literature is this amazing list of best sellers, which is evidence of a hunger for good things. Pocket Books sold during the period under consideration $125,000 of books under the ECA contract and adictionary tops the list! During the same period, their five best sellers in the United States were:

"The Case of the Empty Tin," Erle Stanley Gardner; "Tales of the Haunted Husband," Erle Stanley Gardner; "Tales of the South Pacific," James A. Michener; "The D. A. Calls a Turn," Erle Stanley Gardner; "The D. A. Cooks A Goose," Erle Stanley Gardner.

Of course, the comparison proves nothing, which is true of most comparisons. In this case, the 25-cent books are bought for occasional reading, but I often wonder how many of the so-called "think" books are just bought without being read. From table conversation, it might often be inferred that many bookbuyers only read the first ten pages; then they turn to a magazine with lots of pictures. They seem to know the latter in greater detail.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

SOUND MENTAL ATTITUDES

Teachers and parents must take into consideration the effect of their teaching and discipline on the mental attitudes of the children they are instructing. It is possible, with every good intention, to so teach a child as to injure his mental health.

It is not possible to separate a mind from its body. The two are so mingled that separation is impossible. Thought affects action and action in turn affects thought. Before taking any step toward instructing a child, we must stop and ask ourselves if what we are about to do will strengthen and improve the child's mental attitudes and therefore his whole being, or if it will affect him injuriously.

Fear of any sort is injurious. It lowers the child's vitality, puts a weight on his spirit and so retards his activity. It destroys initiative which is something most precious in the growth of a child. There is fear latent in every human being, placed there by nature for our defense against evil. That fear is sufficient and we should not wilfully add to it by treating a child so harshly as to rouse fear in him of us. Doing so we gain nothing and he loses mental well-being.

When we act so as to instil courage, patience, good will in children, we help them to set sound mental attitudes which will enable them to act helpfully, bravely, effectively without a feeling of weight on their intiatiative. They will make childish mistakes, of course, but these are to be taken as the natural result of trying to do what is unusual and to be used as stepping stones over hard places in learning experiences. Children do not want to make mistakes. It is better to accept them when they appear and so avoid making the child afraid to try himself out in new situations.

A child's emotions must be forever held sacred to parents and teachers. Here is delicate ground indeed. Fear, anger, hate, jealously are ugly feelings which are dangerous to the mental health of the children. Don't accent them by talking, but try to set the stage so that they are replaced by feelings of good will and self-appreciation. Self-appreciation is essential in the mental health of all people, and children must be helped to that feeling by allowing them to be helpful, by pouring praise on them for any good deeds done, by setting the environment so as to remove causes for bad feelings. This takes a lot of doing, but rearing a child is the most important work any adult can perform. Mental health is of chief importance to this process.

Teaching a child to obey should begin at a very early age. Dr. Patri advises how as well as when in his helpful booklet, No. 301, "Obedience."

TO A HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE

I had a letter the other day from a boy who will graduate from high school this spring. He was preparing a speech for a valedictory address at commencement, using the title, "Big Government—Little People."

This was an encouraging letter to me. The boy was thinking about his country—its past, its present, its future. He s one of more than a million boys and girls who will graduate from high school this spring. Not many of them will go on to college; most of them are ready to take their places in the life and economy of the nation. They are intelligent boys and girls, they are the ones who will be running this country in the years ahead—but they must shudder when they realize what the present generation is leaving them!

In the boy's letter, he said, "I am a southerner who loves the freedoms of being an American citizen—and want to keep them—but with the realization that under a system such as Britain's, it would be practically impossible to do this."

And yet as he looks about him he realizes that much of our present leadership is taking us down the same Socialist road that Britain has travelled. He sees us leaving him and the other boys and girls with an overpowering national debt, now amounting to 40 per cent more than the total assessed value of all the taxable property in this country, and no systematic plan being proposed to pay it. So far as he can tell, we are expecting him to pay it! He also sees us continuing to increase this debt, making no apparent effort to live within our income but instead trying to satisfy our wants by using borrowed money which he will have to repay. If he did not think through this problem for himself, he would undoubtedly go out into the world believing this is the way in which these matters should be handled, that it is not necessary to pay our way as we go along, that it is not necessary to earn before you can spend. He would believe that there is such a thing as "something for nothing" in this world, that the "government'll - take - care - of - you" philosophy is the correct one. He would say to himself, "I don't need to accept any personal responsibility for my future welfare; I'll turn all that over to the government."

But this boy is thinking for himself—thank goodness! He says in his letter, "If our federal government becomes much stronger, with its policies which tend to edge free enterprise out of the picture, we American citizens are going to be a pretty small people, pertaining to rights and freedoms."

What this American boy is asking, in effect, is that he at least have the opportunity that his forefathers had when they came of age. He doesn't want to look forward to a future burdened with debt and high taxes. He doesn't want state control to reach the point where he will be assigned to a job by the government and be told how much he can make and how much he can spend and what prices he must pay. He wants to run his own life. But as it is, he is wondering if he puts out extra effort whether he will be allowed to benefit thereby, or whether he will be kept on the same mediocre level with those not willing to work harder. He is wondering if he saves his money whether there will be any incentive to invest it. He is wondering whether it is worthwhile to be ambitious.

This boy makes one mistake, though—right at the end of his letter. He says, "Of course I realize that because I am young and unimportant that anything I could do now would possibly be of no help at all."

You are wrong there, son. You may be young—but you are not unimportant! You are the most important person in this world. Each of your fellow graduates is of like importance. That is democracy. That is freedom. When you become unimportant, then liberty will be no more. What you and the other boys and girls do will determine the future course of this nation.

Let's hope we at least give you a chance!

PITCHING HORSESHOES

REPORTERS BEGIN AT THE END

It's an odds-on-Christmas bet that De Maupassant, perhaps the greatest short-story writer of them all, wouldn't last a week as a reporter on a present-day newspaper. Let me try to tell you why

News stories, with few exceptions, have little or no suspense because the reporter or rewrite man deliberately crams the important facts into the first sentence or, failing this, into the first paragraphs. Succeeding paragraphs usually taper off in importance, and for a very good reason—if the story has to be shortened for reasons of space, it's earier to cut "from the bottom up."

This, of course, is the exact opposite of the keep-'em-guessing treatment used by the De Maupassants and O. Henrys, and to give you an idea of the difference in the two techniques, let me take a recent news story which appeared in a midwestern paper and write it as if it were a piece of fiction. . . .

One Saturday afternoon not long ago, a night watchman named Stan Mikalowsky was window-shopping with his five-year-old daughter, Wanda, and as they passed a toy shop the child pointed excitedly to a doll nearly as big as she was. It had real hair, eyes that moved and a soft rubber skin which looked almost human.

The figure on the price tag was only a dollar less than the watchman's weekly pay check, and his first mipulse was to walk away, but when the youngster refused to budge he shrugged and led her into the store.

When Stan got home and unwrapped the doll, his wife was furious.

"We owe the butcher for three weeks and we're ten dollars short on the room rent," she said, "so you got to blow in a week's pay for a toy."

"What's the difference?" said the night watchman. "Doll or no doll, we're always behind. For once, let the kid have something she wants."

One word led to many others and finally, while Wanda was in the bedroom playing with the doll, Stan put on his hat and stomped out of the house.

Mrs. Mikalowsky fed the child and put her to bed with the doll next to her and then, worried about Stan, decided to go looking for him at the corner bar and make up with him. To keep his supper warm, she left the gas stove on, and in her haste threw her apron over the back of a chair in such a way that one of the strings landed close to a burner.

Fifteen minutes later when the Mikalowskys came rushing out of the bar, their frame house was in flames, and firemen had to forcibly restrain the father from rushing in to save his daughter.

"You wouldn't be any use in there," a cop told him. "Don't worry, they'll get her out."

Fireman Joe Miller, himself a father, climbed a ladder to the bedroom window, and the crowd hushed as he disappeared into the smoke. A few minutes later, coughing and blinking, he climbed down, a blanket-wrapped bundle in his arms. . . .

To illustrate the difference between the two techniques of taletelling: The local newspaper headlined its story of the fire with the line which a De Maupassant would undoubtly have saved for the finish—

"Fireman Rescues Life-Size Doll as Child Dies in Flames."

IN MOVIELAND

HOLLYWOOD, April 22.—(AP)—Meet James Cagney, the star who never went Hollywood.

Jimmy is one of the most familiar stars in the film galaxy, but he is seldom seen around Hollywood. He never cavorts in night clubs with pandas or other companions. He assumes none of the airs of a movie star and cares not a hoot for publicity.

The Oscar winner is back at work before the cameras in "Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye." In this one he plays a Phi Beta Kappa killer—a college professor turned criminal. What does he do when he isn't brandishing a gun for the screen?

"Raise chickens," he replied in an underworld tone.

"I used to raise goats," he added, "but they multiply too fast. Now I just concentrate on chickens and the grains they eat.

"You don't read about me in the papers when I'm not working. That's because I don't go anywhere or do anything. When I finish a picture I retire to my farm in New England. And I stay there until I have another picture to do."

Besides tending to his chickens on the farm, Jimmy dances. "I practice in the barn without music," he said.

He has long alternated between musicals and dramas, good guys and criminals. I asked which he preferred.

"It's just a job to me," he answered. "The main thing I want is variety."

Even love making is a routine to Cagney. "That's a job, too," he said. "You don't even think about it as romance."

Cagney, ever serious about his job, was wearing his dancing shoes. He practices during his lunch hour for his next picture, which will be a musical.

"You have to keep it up," he said. "If you once let yourself get out of condition you can never regain what you've lost. I knew a circus performer who broke her arm and couldn't do her act for several months. Just those few months weakened her and she was never again able to match her former ability."

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, just getting well acquainted with the presidency of Columbia University, may be covertly eyeing another presidency, considerably broader in scope, but there's little chance he will be grafted for it.

"Ike" has been periodically suggested by periodicals and newspaper syndicates as "presidential timber", but one experienced political handicapper, puts it thus:

"Eisenhower can be litterally translated from the original Swiss, where it originated, as "iron hewer" and the general is going to have to cut through a lot of iron clad political traditions to get that nomination. But what nomination? First of all, he's going to have to come right out and say which political party he belongs to".

Most Republicans have come to take "Ike" for granted as one of them, but he has never said so definitely. He's a native son of Texas, grew up in Kansas, now resides in New York City. A similar switch has all but stifled the political hopes of Republican Harold E. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania.

One of Ike's handicaps, illogical as it may seem, is his military background. Since the days of Ulysses S. Grant, who was seized by the Republicans when their party was in dire straits for a candidate, no top flight military commander has been given the supreme reward for his wartime services.

General John J. Pershing, despite many reports to the contrary, never sought the presidency, and told his friends he didn't want it. But he did permit his name to be used, at the insistence of close friends, in the 1920 Republican primary in Nebraska. The late Senator Hiram Johnson of California gobbled up all the delegates, and that was all there ever was to the Pershing boom.

When friends of General Douglas MacArthur, with his tacit approval, tried to launch a movement for him in 1944 in Wisconsin (where his parents had lived, though he was born in Little Rock) it bogged down badly, despite strong organization support. He had but one delegate to the 1944 Republican convention in Chicago.

The most futile flier into presidential politics by a national hero was made by Admiral George Dewey after the first battle of Manila Bay, when he returned home to receive a welcome which has not been equalled since. The admiral, after assuring President McKenley magniloquently that he would not be a candidate for president, got the idea that he and General Nelson A. Miles, who had been chief of staff of the army in the Spanish-American War, would make a strong ticket for president and vice president (on either ticket).

Dewey proceeded to make two great faux pas. He traveled to his home in Montpelier Vt. on a private railroad car received a tremendous welcome, went to pay a brief formal call on his brother, returned to the private car and remained there until the train pulled out for Washington. Vermont did not like that.

The nation gave him a mansion here, bought with funds largely raised by the penny contributions of school children. He transferred it to his wealthy wife, member of a socially prominent Washington family. She later deeded it to her church. By that time the admiral's flying saucer had disappeared.

The booming U. S. birth rate serves as a reminder that one of the nation's best sellers in "Infant Care"—published by the United States government. First published by the children's bureau in 1915, it has sold about six million copies, now sells about one copy every two minutes.

The next three favorites at the government printing office are "Prenatal Care", of which more than three million copies have been sold, "Your Income Tax," more than half a million copies, and "Care and Repair of the House", a quarter of a million. Coming up to the best seller list is "Family Fare", a book of recipes and cooking instruction.

This pattern of domesticity is so well established that the printing office knows what to do, even when somebody writes in enclosing a few coins and a note saying, "Send me the book".

If 15 cents is enclosed, they send "Infant Care"; if it's a quarter, out goes "Your Income Tax;" and for 50 cents "Care and Repair of the House".

Add famous remarks of U. S. senators:

By Elmer Thomas (Dem.-Okla.), chairman of the senate committee on agriculture:

"You see, they put me on this committee and I just gravitated up to the chairmanship."

BIBLE THOUGHTS:

Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.—I John 3:2.

Let each man think himself an act of God,
His mind a thought, his life a breath of God.—Baily.

Looking Ahead—

In Washington

WASHINGTON—Congress is determined, say capitol observers, to plug at least one income tax loophole—the tax exemption on operating profits of business concerns which are owned by educational and philanthropic institutions.

Businessmen who have to pay a tax on their operating profits have long contended that this exemption resulted in unfair competition. The same observers say, however, that church organizations which run businesses probably will continue to enjoy a tax exemption on their operating profits. Politicians don't like to tangle with the churches.

Tax exemptions will be continued, moreover, say the observers, on the investment income of educational and philanthropic institutions—such as their interest and dividends on bonds and stocks.

Foreign Cars

NEW YORK—(AP)—The first British automobile show in New York has been such a success that the manufacturers are thinking about staging one on the west coast, possibly Los Angeles. The British believe they'll be able to sell more cars here than they had expected—if they can get the steel to make the cars. They want to sell 50,000 each year. That would equal one per cent of U. S. automobile production.

CAIRO—(AP)—The general manager of the German company which sells the "Volkswagen" is in New York, discussing sales prospects. The small automobile, which Hitler had planned to sell to every man in the third reich, is now on sale here and in most western European countries.

Atlantic Allies

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Here are two important moves the Atlantic treaty nations are likely to make soon: (1) When the foreign ministers, meeting next month in London, discuss cold war strategy, insiders expect them to set up an Atlantic council committee to study the problem and lay out a program; (2) when the question comes up of who is going to pay for the arming of the Atlantic treaty nations, American officials say they are not going to agree to this country's paying a lion's share of the bill. Some of them in high position believe that when the cost is split among the 12 nations, the U. S. will agree to pay about 25 per cent, letting the other 11 nations divide the remainder of the expense among themselves

Business Notes

NEW YORK—(AP)—Look for more of those "two-pants suit" ads you used to see before the war. Retailers, replying to a questionnarie by a large manufacturer, reported that more and more men want a double set of trousers.

NEW YORK—(AP)—More Americans are going abroad this year than ever before—almost 400,000. They are expected to spend $220,000,000 over there. Even before the season has opened, steamship and airlines are heavily booked. Holy year and devalued currencies have encouraged travel.

Surprise

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Tydings (D.-Md.) startled a lot of his colleagues when he suddenly announced last week that his committee spy sleuths would start some secret new investigations. Until then it had been reported that Democratic members of the Tydings committee, investigating Senator McCarthy's charges of communism in the state department, were privately talking about trying to put a quick end to the whole investigation. The plan was said to be to dismiss as unsubstantiated all of the charges by McCarthy (R.-Wis.).

Capitol Briefs

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The government is doing "some new thinking" about international controls of atomic energy, says Senator McMahon (D.-Conn.), chairman of the congressional atomic committee. He says no new control plan has been formulated, but the whole situation is being given a broader study. . . . Senator Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) has no intention of taking his beating lying down. Since the senate refused to take up consideration at this time of his proposed committee to investigate nation-wide crime, Kefauver has said that he intends to bring up the issue on the senate floor at every opportunity. . . . When Attorney General McGrath told congress that the justice department knows of no national crime syndicate headed by a czar, the comment senators was: This is all the more reason for an inquiry.

Springtime

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Look for plenty of disasters before spring has gone. The Red Cross says March, April and May are the worst months for them—mostly fires, tornadoes and floods. April is the most disastrous month in the year.

Aviation

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Look for a defense department order under which M. A. T. S. (Military Air Transport Service) will become more of a training service than an airline. The original directive under which M. A. T. S. came into being two years ago made transport its major mission. Now there will be less emphasis on actual transport.

Curtain Call

by Sue Williams

More and more, daily, I come to realize how nice people are. It is nice to feel that people are nice, especially when the cause is something as progressive as our Little Theatre. The demands of the "Voice of the Turtle", if not difficult, are at least many. For instance the set being of a two room nature, Director Stocker Fontelieu thought it would be most effective to have a large sliding door to separate the two rooms.

He did not have to search the city far and wide. The first man he approached, Mr. Clyde Greer of Kirby Woodcraft, not only agreed to supply the needed door but made a special trip out Friday night to get the exact measurements needed.

Remember the very handsomely tailored green drapes which framed the French doors over-looking the terrace of "Her Husband's Wife"? Those were the gift of Mrs. Margaret Vanderford and Mrs. Pearl S. Abbott of Delta Drapery and Gift Shop. Director Fontelieu feeling that the same drapes might be recognized even on a different set, turned to these gracious ladies again. This time he came away with very beautifully figured drapes — And two to one it will be Mrs. Reis Feith who turns them into something stunning for "The Voice of the Turtle."

A very special mention, also, for Cooperative Dairies, Inc. who have volunteered to furnish the milk nightly to be served on stage. As usual, it will be through the courtesy of the Flower Shoppe, Mrs. D. I. Hirsch, Mrs. Abe Arant and Henry Haas, Jr., that flowers adorn the stage for the five nights of the play.

Random notes — Dr. K. Albert Ringo, head of Little Theatre's make-up department, was in San Antonio for the past week during their spring festa. He was appearing at Frost Bros. Department where he introduced Anatole Robbins new make-up in camera tested shades for summer, and did the make-up for their style revue on Tuesday. Our Albert was billed as the make-up man to the stars and a recognized authority on cosmetics — Not to be outdone by her father, little Brenda Sue Ringo was one of the Monroe children chosen on Friday to be cast in the two reel kiddie comedy similar to the "Our Gang" comedy series, which will be made here in Monroe and you will be seeing on the local screen in about thirty days.

Little Theatre Sketch

Elizabeth Lawrence (Mrs. W. H. Ross Lawrence) — appearing in Little Theatre's fifth production of the season in the leading feminine role of delightful Sally in "The Voice of the Turtle", was born in North Carolina. Although she may be said to be a native North Carolinian, the lady has divided her life pretty equally with Louisiana and Monroe, where a portion of her ancestry reaches far back into the states history.

Elizabeth's early education was received in North Carolina and she entered Duke University before going on to the University of California where she received her bachelor of arts degree in speech and drama. She also has to her credit graduate work at the University of North Carolina.

Appearing in a number of plays while still in North Carolina, she expecially recalls the special play written by Paul Green for the Sesqui-Centinnial at Fayettville, N.C. This play was much along the line of his "Lost Colony". She also appeared in Noel Huston's "Marauders" and was on tour in "Kiss the Boys Goodby" soon after its highly successful run on Broadway.

Little Theater of Monroe has previously enjoyed her talents in "The State of the Union" in which she played the leading role and in the "Damask Cheek" written by Author Van Druten who is responsible for her current play, "The Voice of the Turtle".

Elizabeth is past state president of the C. A. R. and a member of the D. A. R. She headed the Red Cross fund drive for the residential area for the past two years and devotes much of her time to son, Peter, six, who attends Georgia Tucker.

Whales Pay Fatal Visit To Drylanders

KIRKWALL, Orkney Islands, April 22.—(AP)—There were almost as many whales as people on the little Orkney Island of Stronsay, off the coast of Scotland.

And the people were getting worried.

The whales—100 or so—were washed upon the sandy banks of Stronsay by an unusually high early morning tide.

E. H. Clements, harbormaster of Stronsay (population a little more than 500) vouched for the number of marine visitors.

"I went out in the bay at low tide and counted at least 96 of them," he told a reporter. "There may be more. Half of them were already dead."

The stronsay Islanders, mostly farmers, are perplexed about the visitation. They expressed concern that the carcasses might bring disease.

PEGGY FRANTOM IN STAR ROLE

Plays Part Of Penny In Neville High School Comedy

The Neville High School senior play, "Don't Take My Penny," is scheduled for presentation April 25, 1950, at the Neville auditorium.

Miss Peggy Frantom has the leading role of Penny. Peggy is a veteran of many of the speech department productions. Last year she was awarded the Neville "Oscar" for the most outstanding actress.

Kerry, Penny's resourceful boyfriend, is played by Ran Phillips one of the most enthusiastic members of the Neville speech department. Ran won the award for the best supporting actor last year and he is also chairman of the KNOE radio programs.

Penny's farm - minded brother, Mark, is played by John Noel, president of the Neville Student Council, member of the National Thespian Society and one of Neville's most outstanding and talented actors.

Lydia, played by Miss Jo Ann Roberts, another well-known member of the speech department is Penny's busy mother, and Gram, her understanding grandmother is portrayed by Miss Clara Munholland, well-known for her outstanding acting in many of Neville's productions. Miss Maurine Linquist, a very active member of the senior class, plays the attractive sister of Penny.

Caleb Pringle, Penny's absorbed father, is played by Bud Lyons, a newcomer to the Neville stage.

Miss Frances Ritter, whose performance in "Seventeenth Summer" was so outstanding, will portray Mademoiselle Fifi, a French dress designer.

Three pretty young models Claire, Elsie, and Lucille, are played by Misses Nell Cowart, Evelyn Steen, and Virginia Laing.

Larry Tucker portrays Norman Porter, a publicity man. Larry, also, is appearing for the first time on the Neville stage in "Don't Take My Penny".

Penny and her brother, Mark naturally have their friends who are Joanna, played by Miss Betty Maricella, and Greg, Mark's pal, played by Dickie Rowe. Betty and Dick are putting their best acting into these hilariously funny parts.

Bob Walker, winner of the speech department award for the best backstage crew member, is now appearing on stage in the role of Harrison Day, a young author.

Red, a delivery boy in "Don't Take My Penny" is played by Craig Whetstone, another of Neville's talented actors .

With this outstanding cast and clever story, "Don't Take My Penny" is predicted to be the most successful production this year at Neville High School. Don't miss "Don't Take My Penny" on April 25.

Mrs. Beasley Is Back From Dallas

Mrs. Farrah Beasley, G. C., has just returned from Dallas where she attended a class of instruction in corsetry, conducted by the H. W. Gossard Co., at their training school. G. C. following Mrs. Beasley's name means graduate corsetiere. At the close of the training school she took a written examination on such subjects as anatomy, figure analysis, foundation fitting, selling and stock keeping.

Mrs. Beasley has undertaken this post-graduate course to make available to the women of Monroe and West Monroe and surrounding areas a figure grooming service that is based on the latest and very best methods developed by this nationally known foundation garment manufacturer.

She reports that foundation garments of today are being designed for seven basic figure types, and that every woman should be encouraged to be "figure conscious" to the extent of knowing her type and trying to perfect the ideal. With this as the basis of good grooming, she is assured of smart appearance, bodily comfort and the high confidence so needed for successful living.

Mrs. Beasley is very enthusiastic regarding the training she has received and sincerely hopes all of her friends will visit the foundation department on the second floor of the Place to consult with her regarding their individual figure needs and problems.

It's an odds-on-Christmas bet that De Maupassant, perhaps the greatest short-story writer of them all, wouldn't last a week as a reporter on a present-day newspaper. Let me try to tell you why.

News stories, with few exceptions, have little or no suspense because the reporter or rewrite man deliberately crams the important facts into the first sentence or, failing this, into the first paragraphs. Succeeding paragraphs usually taper off in importance, and for a very good reason—if the story has to be shortened for reasons of space, it's earier to cut "from the bottom up."

This, of course, is the exact opposite of the keep-'em-guessing treatment used by the De Maupassants and O. Henrys, and to give you an idea of the difference in the two techniques, let me take a recent news story which appeared in a midwestern paper and write it as if it were a piece of fiction. . . .

One Saturday afternoon not long ago, a night watchman named Stan Mikalowsky was window-shopping with his five-year-old daughter, Wanda, and as they passed a toy shop the child pointed excitedly to a doll nearly as big as she was. It had real hair, eyes that moved and a soft rubber skin which looked almost human.

The figure on the price tag was only a dollar less than the watchman's weekly pay check, and his first mipulse was to walk away, but when the youngster refused to budge he shrugged and led her into the store.

When Stan got home and unwrapped the doll, his wife was furious.

"We owe the butcher for three weeks and we're ten dollars short on the room rent," she said, "so you got to blow in a week's pay for a toy."

"What's the difference?" said the night watchman. "Doll or no doll, we're always behind. For once, let the kid have something she wants."

One word led to many others and finally, while Wanda was in the bedroom playing with the doll, Stan put on his hat and stomped out of the house.

Mrs. Mikalowsky fed the child and put her to bed with the doll next to her and then, worried about Stan, decided to go looking for him at the corner bar and make up with him. To keep his supper warm, she left the gas stove on, and in her haste threw her apron over the back of a chair in such a way that one of the strings landed close to a burner.

Fifteen minutes later when the Mikalowskys came rushing out of the bar, their frame house was in flames, and firemen had to forcibly restrain the father from rushing in to save his daughter.

"You wouldn't be any use in there," a cop told him. "Don't worry, they'll get her out."

Fireman Joe Miller, himself a father, climbed a ladder to the bedroom window, and the crowd hushed as he disappeared into the smoke. A few minutes later, coughing and blinking, he climbed down, a blanket-wrapped bundle in his arms. . . .

To illustrate the difference between the two techniques of tale-telling: The local newspaper headlined its story of the fire with the line which a De Maupassant would undoubtly have saved for the finish—

"Fireman Rescues Life-Size Doll as Child Dies in Flames."

PIC KUP SIX PT IN MOVIELAND

HOLLYWOOD, April 22.—(AP)—Meet James Cagney, the star who never went Hollywood.

Jimmy is one of the most familiar stars in the film galaxy, but he is seldom seen around Hollywood. He never cavorts in night clubs with pandas or other companions. He assumes none of the airs of a movie star and cares not a hoot for publicity.

The Oscar winner is back at work before the cameras in "Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye." In this one he plays a Phi Beta Kappa killer—a college professor turned criminal. What does he do when he isn't brandishing a gun for the screen?

"Raise chickens," he replied in an underworld tone.

"I used to raise goats," he added, "but they multiply too fast. Now I just concentrate on chickens and the grains they eat.

"You don't read about me in the papers when I'm not working. That's because I don't go anywhere or do anything. When I finish a picture I retire to my farm in New England. And I stay there until I have another picture to do."

Besides tending to his chickens on the farm, Jimmy dances. "I practice in the barn without music," he said.

He has long alternated between musicals and dramas, good guys and criminals. I asked which he preferred.

"It's just a job to me," he answered. "The main thing I want is variety."

Even love making is a routine to Cagney. "That's a job, too," he said. "You don't even think about it as romance."

Cagney, ever serious about his job, was wearing his dancing shoes. He practices during his lunch hour for his next picture, which will be a musical.

"You have to keep it up," he said. "If you once let yourself get out of condition you can never regain what you've lost. I knew a circus performer who broke her arm and couldn't do her act for several months. Just those few months weakened her and she was never again able to match her former ability."

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, just getting well acquainted with the presidency of Columbia University, may be covertly eyeing another presidency, considerably broader in scope, but there's little chance he will be grafted for it.

"Ike" has been periodically suggested by periodicals and newspaper syndicates as "presidential timber", but one experienced political handicapper, puts it thus:

"Eisenhower can be litterally translated from the original Swiss, where it originated, as "iron hewer" and the general is going to have to cut through a lot of iron clad political traditions to get that nomination. But what nomination? First of all, he's going to have to come right out and say which political party he belongs to".

Most Republicans have come to take "Ike" for granted as one of them, but he has never said so definitely. He's a native son of Texas, grew up in Kansas, now resides in New York City. A similar switch has all but stifled the political hopes of Republican Harold E. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania.

One of Ike's handicaps, illogical as it may seem, is his military background. Since the days of Ulysses S. Grant, who was seized by the Republicans when their party was in dire straits for a candidate, no top flight military commander has been given the supreme reward for his wartime services.

General John J. Pershing, despite many reports to the contrary, never sought the presidency, and told his friends he didn't want it. But he did permit his name to be used, at the insistence of close friends, in the 1920 Republican primary in Nebraska. The late Senator Hiram Johnson of California gobbled up all the delegates, and that was all there ever was to the Pershing boom.

When friends of General Douglas MacArthur, with his tacit approval, tried to launch a movement for him in 1944 in Wisconsin (where his parents had lived, though he was born in Little Rock) it bogged down badly, despite strong organization support. He had but one delegate to the 1944 Republican convention in Chicago.

The most futile flier into presidential politics by a national hero was made by Admiral George Dewey after the first battle of Manila Bay, when he returned home to receive a welcome which has not been equalled since. The admiral, after assuring President McKenley magniloquently that he would not be a candidate for president, got the idea that he and General Nelson A. Miles, who had been chief of staff of the army in the Spanish-American War, would make a strong ticket for president and vice president (on either ticket).

Dewey proceeded to make two great faux pas. He traveled to his home in Montpelier Vt. on a private railroad car received a tremendous welcome, went to pay a brief formal call on his brother, returned to the private car and remained there until the train pulled out for Washington. Vermont did not like that.

The nation gave him a mansion here, bought with funds largely raised by the penny contributions of school children. He transferred it to his wealthy wife, member of a socially prominent Washington family. She later deeded it to her church. By that time the admiral's flying saucer had disappeared.

The booming U. S. birth rate serves as a reminder that one of the nation's best sellers in "Infant Care"—published by the United States government. First published by the children's bureau in 1915, it has sold about six million copies, now sells about one copy every two minutes.

The next three favorites at the government printing office are "Prenatal Care", of which more than three million copies have been sold, "Your Income Tax," more than half a million copies, and "Care and Repair of the House", a quarter of a million. Coming up to the best seller list is "Family Fare", a book of recipes and cooking instruction.

This pattern of domesticity is so well established that the printing office knows what to do, even when somebody writes in enclosing a few coins and a note saying, "Send me the book".

If 15 cents is enclosed, they send "Infant Care"; if it's a quarter, out goes "Your Income Tax;" and for 50 cents "Care and Repair of the House".

Add famous remarks of U. S. senators:

By Elmer Thomas (Dem.-Okla.), chairman of the senate committee on agriculture:

"You see, they put me on this committee and I just gravitated up to the chairmanship."

BIBLE THOUGHTS:

Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.—I John 3:2.

Let each man think himself an act of God,
His mind a thought, his life a breath of God.—Baily.

Looking Ahead—

In Washington

WASHINGTON—Congress is determined, say capitol observers, to plug at least one income tax loophole—the tax exemption on operating profits of business concerns which are owned by educational and philanthropic institutions.

Businessmen who have to pay a tax on their operating profits have long contended that this exemption resulted in unfair competition. The same observers say, however, that church organizations which run businesses probably will continue to enjoy a tax exemption on their operating profits. Politicians don't like to tangle with the churches.

Tax exemptions will be continued, moreover, say the observers, on the investment income of educational and philanthropic institutions—such as their interest and dividends on bonds and stocks.

Foreign Cars

NEW YORK—(AP)—The first British automobile show in New York has been such a success that the manufacturers are thinking about staging one on the west coast, possibly Los Angeles. The British believe they'll be able to sell more cars here than they had expected—if they can get the steel to make the cars. They want to sell 50,000 each year. That would equal one per cent of U. S. automobile production.

CAIRO—(AP)—The general manager of the German company which sells the "Volkswagen" is in New York, discussing sales prospects. The small automobile, which Hitler had planned to sell to every man in the third reich, is now on sale here and in most western European countries.

Atlantic Allies

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Here are two important moves the Atlantic treaty nations are likely to make soon: (1) When the foreign ministers, meeting next month in London, discuss cold war strategy, insiders expect them to set up an Atlantic council committee to study the problem and lay out a program; (2) when the question comes up of who is going to pay for the arming of the Atlantic treaty nations, American officials say they are not going to agree to this country's paying a lion's share of the bill. Some of them in high position believe that when the cost is split among the 12 nations, the U. S. will agree to pay about 25 per cent, letting the other 11 nations divide the remainder of the expense among themselves.

Business Notes

NEW YORK—(AP)—Look for more of those "two-pants suit" ads you used to see before the war. Retailers, replying to a questionnarie by a large manufacturer, reported that more and more men want a double set of trousers.

NEW YORK—(AP)—More Americans are going abroad this year than ever before—almost 400,000. They are expected to spend $220,000,000 over there. Even before the season has opened, steamship and airlines are heavily booked. Holy year and devalued currencies have encouraged travel.

Surprise

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Tydings (D.-Md.) startled a lot of his colleagues when he suddenly announced last week that his committee spy sleuths would start some secret new investigations. Until then it had been reported that Democratic members of the Tydings committee, investigating Senator McCarthy's charges of communism in the state department, were privately talking about trying to put a quick end to the whole investigation. The plan was said to be to dismiss as unsubstantiated all of the charges by McCarthy (R.-Wis.).

Capitol Briefs

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The government is doing "some new thinking" about international controls of atomic energy, says Senator McMahon (D.-Conn.), chairman of the congressional atomic committee. He says no new control plan has been formulated, but the whole situation is being given a broader study. . . . Senator Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) has no intention of taking his beating lying down. Since the senate refused to take up consideration at this time of his proposed committee to investigate nation-wide crime, Kefauver has said that he intends to bring up the issue on the senate floor at every opportunity. . . . When Attorney General McGrath told congress that the justice department knows of no national crime syndicate headed by a czar, the comment senators was: This is all the more reason for an inquiry.

Springtime

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Look for plenty of disasters before spring has gone. The Red Cross says March, April and May are the worst months for them—mostly fires, tornadoes and floods. April is the most disastrous month in the year.

Aviation

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Look for a defense department order under which M. A. T. S. (Military Air Transport Service) will become more of a training service than an airline. The original directive under which M. A. T. S. came into being two years ago made transport its major mission. Now there will be less emphasis on actual transport.

Curtain Call

by Sue Williams

More and more, daily, I come to realize how nice people are. It is nice to feel that people are nice, especially when the cause is something as progressive as our Little Theatre. The demands of the "Voice of the Turtle", if not difficult, are at least many. For instance the set being of a two room nature, Director Stocker Fontelieu thought it would be most effective to have a large sliding door to separate the two rooms.

He did not have to search the city far and wide. The first man he approached, Mr. Clyde Greer of Kirby Woodcraft, not only agreed to supply the needed door but made a special trip out Friday night to get the exact measurements needed.

Remember the very handsomely tailored green drapes which framed the French doors over-looking the terrace of "Her Husband's Wife"? Those were the gift of Mrs. Margaret Vanderford and Mrs. Pearl S. Abbott of Delta Drapery and Gift Shop. Director Fontelieu feeling that the same drapes might be recognized even on a different set, turned to these gracious ladies again. This time he came away with very beautifully figured drapes — And two to one it will be Mrs. Reis Feith who turns them into something stunning for "The Voice of the Turtle."

A very special mention, also, for Cooperative Dairies, Inc. who have volunteered to furnish the milk nightly to be served on stage. As usual, it will be through the courtesy of the Flower Shoppe, Mrs. D. I. Hirsch, Mrs. Abe Arant and Henry Haas, Jr., that flowers adorn the stage for the five nights of the play.

Random notes — Dr. K. Albert Ringo, head of Little Theatre's make-up department, was in San Antonio for the past week during their spring festa. He was appearing at Frost Bros. Department where he introduced Anatole Robbins new make-up in camera tested shades for summer, and did the make-up for their style revue on Tuesday. Our Albert was billed as the make-up man to the stars and a recognized authority on cosmetics — Not to be outdone by her father, little Brenda Sue Ringo was one of the Monroe children chosen on Friday to be cast in the two reel kiddie comedy similar to the "Our Gang" comedy series, which will be made here in Monroe and you will be seeing on the local screen in about thirty days.

Little Theatre Sketch

Elizabeth Lawrence (Mrs. W. H. Ross Lawrence) — appearing in Little Theatre's fifth production of the season in the leading feminine role of delightful Sally in "The Voice of the Turtle", was born in North Carolina. Although she may be said to be a native North Carolinian, the lady has divided her life pretty equally with Louisiana and Monroe, where a portion of her ancestry reaches far back into the states history.

Elizabeth's early education was received in North Carolina and she entered Duke University before going on to the University of California where she received her bachelor of arts degree in speech and drama. She also has to her credit graduate work at the University of North Carolina.

Appearing in a number of plays while still in North Carolina, she expecially recalls the special play written by Paul Green for the Sesqui-Centinnial at Fayettville, N.C. This play was much along the line of his "Lost Colony". She also appeared in Noel Huston's "Marauders" and was on tour in "Kiss the Boys Goodby" soon after its highly successful run on Broadway.

Little Theater of Monroe has previously enjoyed her talents in "The State of the Union" in which she played the leading role and in the "Damask Cheek" written by Author Van Druten who is responsible for her current play, "The Voice of the Turtle".

Elizabeth is past state president of the C. A. R. and a member of the D. A. R. She headed the Red Cross fund drive for the residential area for the past two years and devotes much of her time to son, Peter, six, who attends Georgia Tucker.

Whales Pay Fatal Visit To Drylanders

KIRKWALL, Orkney Islands, April 22.—(AP)—There were almost as many whales as people on the little Orkney Island of Stronsay, off the coast of Scotland.

And the people were getting worried.

The whales—100 or so—were washed upon the sandy banks of Stronsay by an unusually high early morning tide.

E. H. Clements, harbormaster of Stronsay (population a little more than 500) vouched for the number of marine visitors.

"I went out in the bay at low tide and counted at least 96 of them," he told a reporter. "There may be more. Half of them were already dead."

The stronsay Islanders, mostly farmers, are perplexed about the visitation. They expressed concern that the carcasses might bring disease.

PEGGY FRANTOM IN STAR ROLE

Plays Part Of Penny In Neville High School Comedy

The Neville High School senior play, "Don't Take My Penny," is scheduled for presentation April 25, 1950, at the Neville auditorium.

Miss Peggy Frantom has the leading role of Penny. Peggy is a veteran of many of the speech department productions. Last year she was awarded the Neville "Oscar" for the most outstanding actress.

Kerry, Penny's resourceful boyfriend, is played by Ran Phillips one of the most enthusiastic members of the Neville speech department. Ran won the award for the best supporting actor last year and he is also chairman of the KNOE radio programs.

Penny's farm - minded brother, Mark, is played by John Noel, president of the Neville Student Council, member of the National Thespian Society and one of Neville's most outstanding and talented actors.

Lydia, played by Miss Jo Ann Roberts, another well-known member of the speech department is Penny's busy mother, and Gram, her understanding grandmother is portrayed by Miss Clara Munholland, well-known for her outstanding acting in many of Neville's productions. Miss Maurine Linquist, a very active member of the senior class, plays the attractive sister of Penny.

Caleb Pringle, Penny's absorbed father, is played by Bud Lyons, a newcomer to the Neville stage.

Miss Frances Ritter, whose performance in "Seventeenth Summer" was so outstanding, will portray Mademoiselle Fifi, a French dress designer.

Three pretty young models Claire, Elsie, and Lucille, are played by Misses Nell Cowart, Evelyn Steen, and Virginia Laing.

Larry Tucker portrays Norman Porter, a publicity man. Larry, also, is appearing for the first time on the Neville stage in "Don't Take My Penny".

Penny and her brother, Mark naturally have their friends who are Joanna, played by Miss Betty Maricella, and Greg, Mark's pal, played by Dickie Rowe. Betty and Dick are putting their best acting into these hilariously funny parts.

Bob Walker, winner of the speech department award for the best backstage crew member, is now appearing on stage in the role of Harrison Day, a young author.

Red, a delivery boy in "Don't Take My Penny" is played by Craig Whetstone, another of Neville's talented actors.

With this outstanding cast and clever story, "Don't Take My Penny" is predicted to be the most successful production this year at Neville High School. Don't miss "Don't Take My Penny" on April 25.

Mrs. Farrah Beasley

Mrs. Beasley Is Back From Dallas

Mrs. Farrah Beasley, G. C., has just returned from Dallas where she attended a class of instruction in corsetry, conducted by the H. W. Gossard Co., at their training school. G. C. following Mrs. Beasley's name means graduate corsetiere. At the close of the training school she took a written examination on such subjects as anatomy, figure analysis, foundation fitting, selling and stock keeping.

Mrs. Beasley has undertaken this post-graduate course to make available to the women of Monroe and West Monroe and surrounding areas a figure grooming service that is based on the latest and very best methods developed by this nationally known foundation garment manufacturer.

She reports that foundation garments of today are being designed for seven basic figure types, and that every woman should be encouraged to be "figure conscious" to the extent of knowing her type and trying to perfect the ideal. With this as the basis of good grooming, she is assured of smart appearance, bodily comfort and the high confidence so needed for successful living.

Mrs. Beasley is very enthusiastic regarding the training she has received and sincerely hopes all of her friends will visit the foundation department on the second floor of the Place to consult with her regarding their individual figure needs and problems.

GREENWOOD BLASTS MONROE SPORTS, 12-4

DODGERS POUND THREE HURLERS FOR TEN BLOWS

Seven Errors Help Greatly As Mississippians Pile Up Lead

GREENWOOD, Miss., April 22.—(Special)—A bevy of Monroe errors and ten Greenwood hits enabled the Mississippi Dodgers to roll through the Sports, 12 to 4, here tonight in the opening scrap of a three-game series that continues through Monday night.

Greenwood combed three Monroe hurlers for ten hits but had their cause helped along by eight Sport errors at crucial moments.

Bob Virkstis, a left hander went all the way on the mound for Greenwood, giving up only eight hits and having only one fielding error made behind him. Bob Coffey, Gene Mitchell, and Bobby Johnson worked on the mound for the Sports.

Wally Lindsay, Dodger second baseman, and Pitcher Virkstis led the Greenwood assault with three hits each.

Virkstis helped win his own game by leading the Greenwood attack as he connected for three hits, one a double, and drew one base on balls in his appearances at the plate.

Wally Rasmussen and Ed Ruark were top hitters for the visitors, each getting two safe hits, one of Ruark's going for three bases.

The Sports got two runs in the fifth on a double by Wayne Moon, a single by Charlie Cline and the help of Greenwood's lone error when Third Baseman Joe Gulvaz miscues on a bounded by Jim Noverini.

The visitors got their last counter in the final frame, when, after two were out, Noverini singled, went to second as Manager Al Mazur walked, took third on a wild pitch and scored when Rasmussen singled. Roark flied out to right field to end the game.

Greenwood teed off for its first run in the second inning when Sal Olivo walked, stole second, took third on a balk by Coffey and scored on an error.

In the fourth a base on balls to Joe Colasinki, a double by Virkstis, a single by Gulvaz and an error by Cline brought in three more Dodger runs.

The game was well sewed up with four runs in the fifth on a base on balls to Olivo, singles by Linzay, Bill Wolfe, Colasinki, and Virkstis and two Monroe errors.

But Greenwood wasn't satisfied, and brought in four more runs for good measure in the eighth on singles by Danny Daum and Olivo, an error, and a triple to Lindzay.

Box score.

OLD ROCKPORT SECOND, MICHE THIRD IN RACE

Favored Calumet Star Wins By Neck In $50,000 Feature

By Russ Newland

SAN BRUNO, Calif., April 22.—(AP)—Calumet's 1949 Kentucky Derby winner, Ponder, came from far back to score a neck win over Old Rockport and Miche today in the $50,000-added Tanforan Handicap.

While a crowd of nearly 22,000 screamed at his stretch drive, Ponder triumphed in the time of 2.02 2-5 for the mile and one quarter.

The Calumet Farm star went to the post as the 1 to 3 prohibitive favorite. Steve Brooks was aboard.

Ponder packed high weight of 129 pounds.

Old Rockport ran second and was coupled with an entry with Macopo, owned by Clifford Mooers of Boerne, Tex. Miche, gray Argentine-bred, ran third.

California's outstanding home bred, On Trust, was fourth.

Ponder paid $2.70, $2.30 and $2.10. The entry of Old Rockport and Mocopo returned $4 and $2.60. Miche paid $2.80.

Ponder, winner of last year's Kentucky Derby, hit the wire a neck ahead of his two rivals. It was a photo finish for the second spot.

Old Rockport barely nosed out Miche.

The largest crowd of the meeting, 21,889, attended.

The victory was worth $27,550 to the winner.

The track was fast. On Trust went to the front shortly after the start and maintained a two-length margin after the mile.

Miche, given a strong ride by Jack Westrope, took the lead momentarily. Ponder racing on the outside, was in close quarters, and charged into the lead in the stretch.

It was strictly a four-horse race.

Noor, the English-bred owned by Charles S. Howard of San Francisco, was a late scratch.

This was the 13th win in 32 starts for Ponder. The horse now has won $480,775 and is seventh on the list of all time high money winners.

After the first four, the order of finish was:

Mocopo, Boomerang Bay, Under Oath and Esprit De France.

Of Ponder's performance Jockey Brooks said after the race: "He ran a nice race but he had his hands full today. There was a strong wind down the back stretch so we let the other horses cut it for us. When we hit the lane, I turned him loose and that was it."

Gordon Glisson, who rode Old Rockport, said:

"He ran a good race but Ponder just outran him."

Miche's pilot, Westrope, said: "Nothing happened to us except that we were just outrun."

'Pancho' Gonzales, Outstanding Net Personality, Plays Here Thursday

Kramer, Riggs, Parker Also Dated On Optimists' All-Star Show

Richard Alonzo (Pancho) Gonzales, who plays the world professional champion Jack Kramer at the Ouachita Parish High School gymnasium Thursday is the most colorful tennis personality since Bill Tilden.

Gonzales, who was lured into the professional fold by Promoter Bobby Riggs, all time-tennis great, after winning the National Amateur title for the second year in a row, is at once fiery and easy going. He can smash the opposition on the court or play with the difference of a sun-stroked beginner. He is the paradox of the racket.

Yet he is never dull. The biggest U. S. champion of them all, (6 feet, 2 inches, 195 pounds), at 21 he is also the youngest ever to turn professional. He brings to the monied ranks the brightness of color that will be reflected in sharp competition on the court.

For Kramer, Pancho poses a new problem. They never met as amateurs. Kramer plays a deceptive game. He stalks the opposition as Joe Louis did in the ring. Gonzales, on the other side of the net, plays a game based on power. Wham! He's the Stan Musial of the court. The Ted Williams of the racket.

Gonzales has the fortitude of youth. In the 1949 U. S. Lawn Tennis Association championship at Forest Hills where Gonzales was defending his purple, he engaged in the longest set on record against Ted Schroeder. He lost this one, 16-18, and also the next one, 2-6, and many counted him out.

They had reckoned without Pancho's fortitude, however, for he came right back to win, taking the next three sets, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4. In so doing, he painted the background for the inevitable: His switch to the pro ranks, where he could earn the money required to support his wife, Henrietta, and his son, Richard Jr., who was born last year.

In addition to the appearance of Kramer and Gonzales, the Optimist Club-sponsored show will include Bobby Riggs and Frank Parker, other nationally known tennis greats. The show will present two singles matches and a lone doubles event.

NET ACE

GREENWOOD BLASTS MONROE SPORTS, 12-4

Seven Errors Help Greatly As Mississippians Pile Up Lead

GREENWOOD, Miss., April 22.—(Special)—A bevy of Monroe errors and ten Greenwood hits enabled the Mississippi Dodgers to roll through the Sports, 12 to 4, here tonight in the opening scrap of a three-game series that continues through Monday night.

Greenwood combed three Monroe hurlers for ten hits, but had their cause helped along by eight Sport errors at crucial moments.

Bob Virkstis, a left hander, went all the way on the mound for Greenwood, giving up only eight hits and having only one fielding error made behind him. Bob Coffey, Gene Mitchell, and Bobby Johnson worked on the mound for the Sports.

Wally Lindsay, Dodger second baseman, and Pitcher Virkstis led the Greenwood assault with three hits each.

Virkstis helped win his own game by leading the Greenwood attack as he connected for three hits, one a double, and drew one base on balls in his appearances at the plate.

Wally Rasmussen and Ed Ruark were top hitters for the visitors, each getting two safe hits, one of Ruark's going for three bases.

The Sports got two runs in the fifth on a double by Wayne Moon, a single by Charlie Cline and the help of Greenwood's lone error when Third Baseman Joe Gulvaz miscues on a bounded by Jim Noverini.

The visitors got their last counter in the final frame, when, after two were out, Noverini singled, went to second as Manager Al Mazur walked, took third on a wild pitch and scored when Rasmussen singled. Roark flied out to right field to end the game.

Greenwood teed off for its first run in the second inning when Sal Olivo walked, stole second, took third on a balk by Coffey and scored on an error.

In the fourth a base on balls to Joe Colasinki, a double by Virkstis, a single by Gulvaz and an error by Cline brought in three more Dodger runs.

The game was well sewed up with four runs in the fifth on a base on balls to Olivo, singles by Linzay, Bill Wolfe, Colasinki, and Virkstis and two Monroe errors.

But Greenwood wasn't satisfied, and brought in four more runs for good measure in the eighth on singles by Danny Daum, and Olivo, an error, and a triple to Lindzay.

OLD ROCKPORT SECOND, MICHE THIRD IN RACE

Favored Calumet Star Wins By Neck In $50,000 Feature

By Russ Newland

SAN BRUNO, Calif., April 22.—(AP)—Calumet's 1949 Kentucky Derby winner, Ponder, came from far back to score a neck win over Old Rockport and Miche today in the $50,000-added Tanforan Handicap.

While a crowd of nearly 22,000 screamed at his stretch drive, Ponder triumphed in the time of 2.02 2-5 for the mile and one quarter.

The Calumet Farm star went to the post as the 1 to 3 prohibitive favorite. Steve Brooks was aboard.

Ponder packed high weight of 129 pounds.

Old Rockport ran second and was coupled with an entry with Macopo, owned by Clifford Mooers of Boerne, Tex. Miche, gray Argentine-bred, ran third.

California's outstanding home bred, On Trust, was fourth.

Ponder paid $2.70, $2.30 and $2.10. The entry of Old Rockport and Mocopo returned $4 and $2.60. Miche paid $2.80.

Ponder, winner of last year's Kentucky Derby, hit the wire a neck ahead of his two rivals. It was a photo finish for the second spot.

Old Rockport barely nosed out Miche.

The largest crowd of the meeting, 21,889, attended.

The victory was worth $27,550 to the winner.

The track was fast. On Trust went to the front shortly after the start and maintained a two-length margin after the mile.

Miche, given a strong ride by Jack Westrope, took the lead momentarily. Ponder racing on the outside, was in close quarters, and charged into the lead in the stretch.

It was strictly a four-horse race.

Noor, the English-bred owned by Charles S. Howard of San Francisco, was a late scratch.

This was the 13th win in 32 starts for Ponder. The horse now has won $480,775 and is seventh on the list of all time high money winners.

After the first four, the order of finish was:

Mocopo, Boomerang Bay, Under Oath and Esprit De France.

Of Ponder's performance Jockey Brooks said after the race: "He ran a nice race but he had his hands full today. There was a strong wind down the back stretch so we let the other horses cut it for us. When we hit the lane, I turned him loose and that was it."

Gordon Glisson, who rode Old Rockport, said:

"He ran a good race but Ponder just outran him."

Miche's pilot, Westrope, said:

"Nothing happened to us except that we were just outrun."

'Pancho' Gonzales, Outstanding Net Personality, Plays Here Thursday

Kramer, Riggs, Parker Also Dated On Optimists' All-Star Show

Richard Alonzo (Pancho) Gonzales, who plays the world professional champion Jack Kramer at the Ouachita Parish High School gymnasium Thursday is the most colorful tennis personality since Bill Tilden.

Gonzales, who was lured into the professional fold by Promoter Bobby Riggs, all time-tennis great, after winning the National Amateur title for the second year in a row, is at once fiery and easy going. He can smash the opposition on the court or play with the difference of a sun-stroked beginner. He is the paradox of the racket.

Yet he is never dull. The biggest U. S. champion of them all, (6 feet, 2 inches, 195 pounds), at 21 he is also the youngest ever to turn professional. He brings to the monied ranks the brightness of color that will be reflected in sharp competition on the court.

For Kramer, Pancho poses a new problem. They never met as amateurs. Kramer plays a deceptive game. He stalks the opposition as Joe Louis did in the ring. Gonzales, on the other side of the net, plays a game based on power. Wham! He's the Stan Musial of the court. The Ted Williams of the racket.

Gonzales has the fortitude of youth. In the 1949 U. S. Lawn Tennis Association championship at Forest Hills where Gonzales was defending his purple, he engaged in the longest set on record against Ted Schroeder. He lost this one, 16-18, and also the next one, 2-6, and many counted him out.

They had reckoned without Pancho's fortitude, however, for he came right back to win, taking the next three sets, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4. In so doing, he painted the background for the inevitable: His switch to the pro ranks, where he could earn the money required to support his wife, Henrietta, and his son, Richard Jr., who was born last year.

In addition to the appearance of Kramer and Gonzales, the Optimist Club-sponsored show will include Bobby Riggs and Frank Parker, other nationally known tennis greats. The show will present two singles matches and a lone doubles event.

FELLER HURLS INDIANS PAST BROWNS, 6 TO 2

CLEVELAND GETS INITIAL TRIUMPH OF '50 CAMPAIGN

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians matched their bats and Bob Feller's pitching against the young St. Louis Browns and Psychologist Dr. David F. Tracy today—and the Indians won, 6 to 2.

Bob Feller

It was the first victory in three starts for the Indians this season and likewise it was the Browns' first defeat against two victories.

Only momentarily were the Browns able to solve Feller. Sherman Lollar was most successful, hitting a home run in the ninth with the bases empty, and a double in the seventh. Rookie Pitcher Tommy Fine also doubled against Feller—his came in the third and he scored on Tommy Upton's single.

But from the second inning on the Indians had little cause to worry.

Three sharp singles off Starter Stubby Overmire and an error by Dick Kokos put two runs across for Cleveland in the second. Three more singles and two walks off Fine accounted for three more.

Eight of the Brownies who faced Feller went back to the dugout with three strikes. Five others walked to first.

The crowd of 10,166 thought St. Louis had started a rally in the ninth after Lollar homered and Ray Coleman, batting for Frankie Gustine, singled. But Owen Friend grounded into a double play.

The Indians' final run started with a single by Manager Lou Boudreau. In an attempt to pick Boudreau off first Bill Kennedy of St. Louis threw wild. Lou racing to third. He scored on Mickey Vernon's long fly.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—(AP)—Pinch hitter Paul Lehner opened the last half of the 15th inning with a home run off Relief Pitcher Ellis Kinder to give the Philadelphia Athletics a 6 to 5 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the Major League's longest game of the season.

Lehner, who was thrown into a deal by the St. Louis Browns last winter that sent Third Baseman Bob Dillinger to the Athletics for $100,000 and four players, handed Kinder—a 23-game winner in 1949—his second straight loss of the campaign. The diminutive outfielder batted for Left Hander Alex Kellner who went the route for the A's, allowing 12 hits while walking eight and striking out eight.

Edison Considered Baseball a Science

Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor, was tremendously fascinated by baseball as a science. He used to come to our training grounds in Fort Myers, Florida, and have long talks with me. He would bring his friends with him—Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, and grand old John Burroughs.

It was delightful to hear Henry Ford talk about his recollections of the early games and players. His knowledge of baseball records was a big surprise to me.

Another surprise I got was at a dinner in St. Louis, when Harry Truman was running for vice-president. I was the "man who came to dinner" as a guest of Dr. Woods. As looked around, I noted that many of the guests were wearing Dewey buttons. To relieve the tension, our host decided to keep politics out of the conversation and, turning to me, said:

"Mr. Mcack, won't you tell us something about baseball?"

Mr. Truman seemed to be as much interested in the results of the World Series as he was in the election returns.

I wish I had pages enough to talk with you about some of the fine men I have met in the baseball world. I would like to talk about the managers as well as the players — about the builders of baseball: Brush, Soden, Billings, Spalding, Freedman, Byrnes, Wright, Robinson, Joe McCarthy, Billy Southworth, and a host of others.

I'd like to have space to say more about our umpires also: Bill Klem, Billy Evans, Tom Connolly, Jack Sheridan, Tom Lynch (I recommended him to the National League in 1884), and all the other famous umpires. And I'd like to tell you more about our sports writers and their wonderful work and express my gratitude to the sports editors of our Philadelphia newspapas.

Frank Hough, of The Philadelphia Inquirer, gave us a tremendous boost when he started his column: "Don't Knock—But Boost." Then there was S. O. Grauley and Jimmy Isaminger, of the Inquirer; John Nolan, of The Evening Ledger and Bulletin; Ed Pollock of the Bulletin; George Graham, of The North American, and Ray Ziegler, Stoney McLinn, Bill Brandt, Edgar Woolfe, Bill Weart, George Mason and many others—all good friends.

Joe McCarthy is another name in baseball that I'll always remember: I recall a dinner in Germantown at which I was one of the speakers. Joe has been manager of Louisville for five years. I believed he had a great future and predicted big things for him. Joe has made good in a big way. He went to Chicago and won the championship; then went to New York and won eight American League pennants and seven world championships. He is the only manager in baseball who has won four world championships in succession.

Tributes to Great Players of Today

Events happen so rapidly in baseball that it is difficult to keep up with them. Any minute any day some player may break a long-standing record. That's one of the fascinations about the game—the unexpected surprises.

Who, for example, ever heard of Jackie Robinson until, by his own merit, he leaped into fame? One night in 1950 more than 1,000 well-known Americans gathered at a banquet in Hotel Astor, New York, to pay Jackie and other fellow sportsmen high honors.

When Sport Magazine made its awards for the "top performers of the year in the sports world," Jackie Robinson (Brooklyn Dodgers) and Tommy Henrich (Old Reliable of the New York Yankees) received the honors in the baseball world. Jackie was given a rousing ovation, and Tommy was proclaimed the "Athlete of the Year" on his outstanding record in performance, leadership, and character during 1949. Lou Boudreau, player-manager of Cleveland Indians, won the first award in 1948.

Jackie Robinson modestly said: "I should break up my trophy in thirty-two pieces and divide them among my teammates because they deserve it as much as I." Tommy Henrich expressed similar gratitude to his teammates: "I am lucky to be on the Yankees and I am lucky to be picked from such a great team and so many great players on all the teams."

Further honors were paid to Jackie Robinson in 1950 when a banquet was tendered him by the Uptown Chamber of Commerce in New York in recognition of his "outstanding work in the field of race relations." Colonel Leopold Phillipp, president of the Chamber, declared Robinson to be "A glorious inspiration to youth everywhere who has won thousands of friends for the Negro race."

Honors were bestowed on Joe Page of the New York Yankees as one of the "top relief hurlers of all time," by the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers of America, who presented to him the Babe Ruth Memorial Award as the outstanding player in the 1949 World Series. Page is the first recipient of this bronze plaque in memory of Babe Ruth.

At the annual dinner of the Baseball Writers, held in the Waldorf-Astoria, Manager Casey Stengel, of the New York Yankees, was presented with the William J. Slocum Award for "meritorious services to baseball over a long period of time." The Sid Mercer Memorial plaque was presented to Phil Rizzuto, brilliant shortstop of the Yankees, as "player of the year."

Great players and great teams come and go in rapid succession. Who will be the next?

The big question each year is: "Who will win the next World Series?"

CHAPTER 21

BASEBALL AND "BIG BUSINESS"

The rise of baseball from its humble beginnings to one of the most important "industries" in this country is an American epic in itself. It is the real American story of individual initiative and free enterprise.

It is, morever, an exemplification of the courage of men who risk their labor and their capital to develop a new business which gives employment and enjoyment to great masses of people. It is not all profit to its organizers and administrators, for, as in all lines of enterprises, there are periods of depression.

When I entered the game, the gate receipts were almost insignificant. It has required more than a half-century to build them up to present proportions. Basbeall is strictly a competitive business that must be conducted on sound business principles.

It is a more problematical business than most lines of industry, because recreation and enjoyment, rather than a material product, are being sold. For that reason it is much more speculative. Some economists say it is not a business at all, but a hybrid product of entertainment. I am inclined to think it is a combination of both.

The first economic survey of baseball as a business enterprise is now under way. This survey is being conducted by Peter S. Craig, of Oberlin College, so we are again

CURTIS TO MEET WOLFE; PHANTOM WRESTLES KEENE

Thrilling Semi-Final Of Last Week Given Share Of Top Billing

A twin feature wrestling show will be offered here Tuesday night by Promoter Gus Kallio who will provide Jack Curtis, "Black Phantom," Joe Wolfe and Don Keene as the entertainers at his Walnut street arena.

The Phantom and Keene, a newcomer who appeared here for the first time last week, are coming back for a rematch performance of their thrilling semi-final show last Thursday, while Curtis will be squaring off against Wolfe.

The fireworks produced last week by Phantom and Keene resulted in Kallio calling them back for a share on the double feature.

Wolfe and his masked opponent kept the fans on their feet all the way last week and did most of their battling in the aisles. The Phantom finally won the match, beating Wolfe back into the ring after both had engaged in a slugging spree among the ringside customers.

Curtis defeated George Cologne last week, but he is expected to get a chance to work without having to be on the alert for villainy this trip. Wolfe has a reptuation here as a "scientific" wrestler, the favored Curtis style, and Promoter Kallio is promising a match of brawn and wits rather than rough-and-tumble brawling in this half of his twin feature.

The Curtis-Rene LaBelle match of a few years back still stands as a masterpiece of wrestling under Kallio's promotion here, but Kallio expects Curtis and Wolfe to come up with a near duplicate of the ex-champs match with the French Canadian who is still remembered by local fans.

Both matches will have time limits of an hour and 15 minutes with two falls to win. Bill Barney will referee both matches.

Double Main Event Billed For Mat Show At Kallio's

Thrilling Semi-Final Of Last Week Given Share Of Top Billing

A twin feature wrestling show will be offered here Tuesday night by Promoter Gus Kallio who will provide Jack Curtis, "Black Phantom," Joe Wolfe and Don Keene as the entertainers at his Walnut street arena.

The Phantom and Keene, a newcomer who appeared here for the first time last week, are coming back for a rematch performance of their thrilling semi-final show last Thursday, while Curtis will be squaring off against Wolfe.

The fireworks produced last week by Phantom and Keene resulted in Kallio calling them back for a share on the double feature.

Wolfe and his masked opponent kept the fans on their feet all the way last week and did most of their battling in the aisles. The Phantom finally won the match, beating Wolfe back into the ring after both had engaged in a slugging spree among the ringside customers.

Curtis defeated George Cologne last week, but he is expected to get a chance to work without having to be on the alert for villainy this trip. Wolfe has a reputation here as a "scientific" wrestler, the favored Curtis style, and Promoter Kallio is promising a match of brawn and wits rather than rough-and-tumble brawling in this half of his twin feature.

The Curtis-Rene LaBelle match of a few years back still stands as a masterpiece of wrestling under Kallio's promotion here, but Kallio expects Curtis and Wolfe to come up with a near duplicate of the ex-champs match with the French Canadian who is still remembered by local fans.

Both matches will have time limits of an hour and 15 minutes with two falls to win. Bill Barney will referee both matches.

Edison Considered Baseball a Science

Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor, was tremendously fascinated by baseball as a science. He used to come to our training grounds in Fort Myers, Florida, and have long talks with me. He would bring his friends with him—Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, and grand old John Burroughs.

It was delightful to hear Henry Ford talk about his recollections of the early games and players. His knowledge of baseball records was a big surprise to me.

Another surprise I got was at a dinner in St. Louis, when Harry Truman was running for vice-president. I was the "man who came to dinner" as a guest of Dr. Woods. As looked around, I noted that many of the guests were wearing Dewey buttons. To relieve the tension, our host decided to keep politics out of the conversation and, turning to me, said:

"Mr. Mcack, won't you tell us something about baseball?"

Mr. Truman seemed to be as much interested in the results of the World Series as he was in the election returns.

I wish I had pages enough to talk with you about some of the fine men I have met in the baseball world. I would like to talk about the managers as well as the players—about the builders of baseball: Brush, Soden, Billings, Spalding, Freedman, Byrnes, Wright, Robinson, Joe McCarthy, Billy Southworth, and a host of others.

I'd like to have space to say more about our umpires also: Bill Klem, Billy Evans, Tom Connolly, Jack Sheridan, Tom Lynch (I recommended him to the National League in 1884), and all the other famous umpires. And I'd like to tell you more about our sports writers and their wonderful work and express my gratitude to the sports editors of our Philadelphia newspapas.

Frank Hough, of The Philadelphia Inquirer, gave us a tremendous boost when he started his column: "Don't Knock—But Boost." Then there was S. O. Grauley and Jimmy Isaminger, of the Inquirer; John Nolan, of The Evening Bulletin; Ed Pollock of the Ledger and Bulletin; George Graham, of The North American, and Ray Ziegler, Stoney McLinn, Bill Brandt, Edgar Woolfe, Bill Weart, George Mason and many others—all good friends.

Joe McCarthy is another name in baseball that I'll always remember: I recall a dinner in Germantown at which I was one of the speakers. Joe has been manager of Louisville for five years. I believed he had a great future and predicted big things for him. Joe has made good in a big way. He went to Chicago and won the championship; then went to New York and won eight American League pennants and seven world championships. He is the only manager in baseball who has won four world championships in succession.

Tributes to Great Players of Today

Events happen so rapidly in baseball that it is difficult to keep up with them. Any minute any day some player may break a long-standing record. That's one of the fascinations about the game—the unexpected surprises.

Who, for example, ever heard of Jackie Robinson until, by his own merit, he leaped into fame? One night in 1950 more than 1,000 well-known Americans gathered at a banquet in Hotel Astor, New York, to pay Jackie and other fellow sportsmen high honors.

When Sport Magazine made its awards for the "top performers of the year in the sports world," Jackie Robinson (Brooklyn Dodgers) and Tommy Henrich (Old Reliable of the New York Yankees) received the honors in the baseball world. Jackie was given a rousing ovation, and Tommy was proclaimed the "Athlete of the Year" on his outstanding record in performance, leadership, and character during 1949. Lou Boudreau, player-manager of Cleveland Indians, won the first award in 1948.

Jackie Robinson modestly said: "I should break up my trophy in thirty-two pieces and divide them among my teammates because they deserve it as much as I." Tommy Henrich expressed similar gratitude to his teammates: "I am lucky to be on the Yankees and I am lucky to be picked from such a great team and so many great players on all the teams."

Further honors were paid to Jackie Robinson in 1950 when a banquet was tendered him by the Uptown Chamber of Commerce in New York in recognition of his "outstanding work in the field of race relations." Colonel Leopold Phillipp, president of the Chamber, declared Robinson to be "A glorious inspiration to youth everywhere who has won thousands of friends for the Negro race."

Honors were bestowed on Joe Page of the New York Yankees as one of the "top relief hurlers of all time," by the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers of America, who presented to him the Babe Ruth Memorial Award as the outstanding player in the 1949 World Series. Page is the first recipient of this bronze plaque in memory of Babe Ruth.

At the annual dinner of the Baseball Writers, held in the Waldorf-Astoria, Manager Casey Stengel, of the New York Yankees, was presented with the William J. Slocum Award for "meritorious services to baseball over a long period of time." The Sid Mercer Memorial plaque was presented to Phil Rizzuto, brilliant shortstop of the Yankees, as "player of the year."

Great players and great teams come and go in rapid succession. Who will be the next?

CHAPTER 21

BASEBALL AND "BIG BUSINESS"

The rise of baseball from its humble beginnings to one of the most important "industries" in this country is an American epic in itself. It is the real American story of individual initiative and free enterprise.

It is, morever, an exemplification of the courage of men who risk their labor and their capital to develop a new business which gives employment and enjoyment to great masses of people. It is not all profit to its organizers and administrators, for, as in all lines of enterprises, there are periods of depression.

When I entered the game, the gate receipts were almost insignificant. It has required more than a half-century to build them up to present proportions. Basbeall is strictly a competitive business that must be conducted on sound business principles.

It is a more problematical business than most lines of industry, because recreation and enjoyment, rather than a material product, are being sold. For that reason it is much more speculative. Some economists say it is not a business at all, but a hybrid product of entertainment. I am inclined to think it is a combination of both.

The first economic survey of baseball as a business enterprise is now under way. This survey is being conducted by Peter S. Craig, of Oberlin College, so we are again

BROOKLYN NOSES OUT NEW YORK'S NATIONAL, 7 TO 6

Cubs Dump Cardinals, 7-6; Pirates And Braves Score Triumphs

BROOKLYN, April 22.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, helped by an error by rookie first baseman Jack Harshman, shaded the New York Giants, 7-6, today for their third straight victory of the season. The loss was the Giants fourth of a winless campaign.

Harshman's error, a wild pitch and George Shuba's double down the right field foul line broke a 6-6 tie in the eighth inning and scored pitcher Jack Banta with the winning run.

Handsome Jack Kramer, former American leaguer, made his National League debut for the Giants against Negro Dan Bankhead, who was making his first appearance for the Dodgers since 1947.

Kramer helped his own cause with a two-run homer in the fourth and had a 5-1 lead going into the fifth when he was belted out. Three singles, two walks and an error by Hank Thompson allowed the Dodgers to score four runs and tie the score at 5-5.

Sheldon Jones took over and was tagged for a tie-breaking run in the sixth on a walk and Pee Wee Reese's double.

Thompson atoned for his fifth inning miscue by cracking a home run over the right center field screen in the seventh off Jack Banta, third Dodger pitcher, to deadlock the score at 6-6.

With one out in the eighth Banta was safe on Harshman's boot. Banta moved to second on the errant pitch and after Reese popped out, romped home as Shuba doubled to right with the payoff run. The loss was Jones' second of the season.

BRAVES NUDGE PHILS

BOSTON, April 22.—(AP)—Boston's unbeaten Braves won their third victory of the infant National League season today, shading Philadelphia's spirited Phillies 3-2 on Bob Elliott's two run homer into the right field bull pen in the eighth inning.

A chilled crowd of 7,607 saw the Tribe come from behind to pull out the victory — lefthander Warren Spahn's second of the campaign.

Elliott clouted his game winning homer — first of the year at Braves Field and his second of the season — on a 2-1 pitch. Sam Jethroe who had walked and was sacrificed to second, scored ahead of the Boston third baseman.

Houtteman pitched a masterful game, allowing only four hits as 'nary a Chicagoan got to third base.

The Tiger righthander pitched two innings and got credit for the Tigers' opening day 7-6 win over the Cleveland Indians.

It was a tough loss for Pitcher Bill Wight, who pitched good ball only to see his White Sox team drop its fourth consecutive game. Wight pitched two-run, six-hit ball through the first seven innings before he was lifted for a pinchhitter in the eighth

NATS THUMP YANKS

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Washington Outfielder Gil Coan singled with two out in the 10th inning today to score Eddie Yost from second base and give the Senators a 7-6 triumph over the New York Yankees.

Joe Page, sterling relief pitcher, was the victim of Coan's clout to center. The durable Page was making his fourth appearance in five games for the world champions.

Yost singled to start the tenth and moved to second on a bunt. Mickey Grasso popped out but Page then walked his opposing pitcher, Steve Nagy, to set the stage for Coan's blow.

Nagy, up from San Francisco, went all the way for Washington.

Virginia's Derby Hope Shows Experimental Run 'All A Mistake'

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Hill Prince, Virginia's big hope for the Kentucky Derby, showed today that his floundering exhibition in the Experimental Handicap a week ago was all a big mistake when he romped to a sparkling victory in the Wood Memorial.

Coming from far off the fast pace set by Alfred Vanderbilt's Next Move, Hill Prince caught the leader just as they straightened into the drive for home.

From there on, everybody in the crowd of 44,111 knew that the Virginian and Jockey Eddie Arcaro were going to make it without any difficulty.

Middleground the chestnut beauty from King Ranch, closed ground in the stretch to overtake Next Move and Mrs. Andy Schuttinger's Ferd and grab second money.

The King Ranch colt was two lengths back of the winner at the wire.

Ferd passed the tiring Next Move, only filly in the field of 11 starters, inside the sixteenth pole and took third, a length and a half back of Middleground, and three-fourths of a panel ahead of the Vanderbilt miss.

Hill Prince's time was a dazzling 1:43 3-5 — fastest for the Wood Memorial since Count Fleet romped home on top in 1943.

The winner was the choice o the huge Jamaica crowd in spite of last week's effort, and returned $5.00, $3.40 and $2.80. Middleground paid $3.00 and $2.60 as second choice, and Ferd, $4.50.

Immediately after the race, the grinning Arcaro said he will ride Hill Prince in the derby at Louisville two weeks from today.

There were reports that Arcaro would have switched to Middleground for the derby had the Texas horse won today.

Lotowhite, Hal Price Headley's surprise winner of the Experimental, never was a contender this time, and wound up ninth.

Next Move broke in front and sailed into a lead that opened to a length or more at times. Ferd followed with Middleground in the third slot. Hill Prince, a notably slow starter, was ninth heading into the backstretch.

That was just about the order of things for the top three all the way around, but the leaders never had a chance when Arcaro turned Hill Prince loose on the home stretch.

Hill Prince worked out the full derby distance of a mile and one quarter at the end, and was clocked in a scorching 2:02 2-5 — a brilliant showing for Jamaica's sharp turns.

The winner netted $34,500 from the gross pot of $49.050 — second richest Wood since the race began in 1925.

West Virginia Legislator Beats Spencer 1 Up In 37 Holes

By Ken Alyta

PINEHURST, N. C., April 22. — (AP)—One gorgeous iron shot on the 37th hole carried William C. Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., to a thrilling one up victory over Wynsol K. Spencer of Newport News, Va., today in the finals of the North and South Amateur Golf championship.

It was a golden shot that climaxed the golden anniversary of the North and South.

The two had halved the last hour holes with pars over the regulation 36-hole route after never having been more than two holes apart.

They stepped up to the first extra hole and each got off a good tee shot with Campbell, as he so often was, about 25 yards ahead of the Virginia insurance man.

Spencer slapped his second shot to the right of the pin, hole high, about five yards off the fringe of the green. Then Campbell took his eight iron and whacked the ball right at the pin, stopping it four feet away. Spencer took his putter and ran the ball up, but it was some 18 inches short. Campbell surveyed the situation and tapped in his tournament winning birdie just four hours after they had started their afternoon round.

It was a championship finish to a match that, although lacking in championship golf at times, was always interesting as the two scrambled artfully in and out of trouble. Hardly a hole passed without one or the other in a trap or the rough. But they came through with some fine recovery shorts and Spencer retained just enough of his putting magic to balance Campbell's advantage off the tee.

The 36-hole medal scores, with several upheld putts figured, were 76-76 for Campbell and 75-77 for Spencer over the par 72 No. 2 Pinehurst Country Club course, a 6,952-yarder.

DODGERS HAND WINLESS GIANTS 4th DEFEAT

Cubs Dump Cardinals, 7-6; Pirates And Braves Score Triumphs

BROOKLYN, April 22.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, helped by an error by rookie first baseman Jack Harshman, shaded the New York Giants, 7-6, today for their third straight victory of the season. The loss was the Giants fourth of a winless campaign.

Harshman's error, a wild pitch and George Shuba's double down the right field foul line broke a 6-6 tie in the eighth inning and scored pitcher Jack Banta with the winning run.

Handsome Jack Kramer, former American leaguer, made his National League debut for the Giants against Negro Dan Bankhead, who was making his first appearance for the Dodgers since 1947.

Kramer helped his own cause with a two-run homer in the fourth and had a 5-1 lead going into the fifth when he was belted out. Three singles, two walks and an error by Hank Thompson allowed the Dodgers to score four runs and tie the score at 5-5.

Sheldon Jones took over and was tagged for a tie-breaking run in the sixth on a walk and Pee Wee Reese's double.

Thompson atoned for his fifth inning miscue by cracking a home run over the right center field screen in the seventh off Jack Banta, third Dodger pitcher, to deadlock the score at 6-6.

With one out in the eighth Banta was safe on Harshman's boot. Banta moved to second on the errant pitch and after Reese popped out, romped home as Shuba doubled to right with the payoff run. The loss was Jones' second of the season.

BRAVES NUDGE PHILS

BOSTON, April 22.—(AP)—Boston's unbeaten Braves won their third victory of the infant National League season today, shading Philadelphia's spirited Phillies 3-2 on Bob Elliott's two run homer into the right field bull pen in the eighth inning.

A chilled crowd of 7,607 saw the Tribe come from behind to pull out the victory — lefthander Warren Spahn's second of the campaign.

Elliott clouted his game winning homer — first of the year at Braves Field and his second of the season — on a 2-1 pitch. Sam Jethroe who had walked and was sacrificed to second, scored ahead of the Boston third baseman.

DETROIT, April 22.—(AP)—Young Art Houtteman turned in his second win of the young American League season as he blanked the Chicago White Sox 5-0 today to give the Detroit Tigers their fourth straight triumph before a crowd of 15,548.

The Tiger righthander pitched two innings and got credit for the Tigers' opening day 7-6 win over the Cleveland Indians.

It was a tough loss for Pitcher Bill Wight, who pitched good ball only to see his White Sox team drop its fourth consecutive game. Wight pitched two-run, six-hit ball through the first seven innings before he was lifted for a pinchhitter in the eighth.

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Washington Outfielder Gil Coan singled with two out in the 10th inning today to score Eddie Yost from second base and give the Senators a 7-6 triumph over the New York Yankees.

Yost singled to start the tenth and moved to second on a bunt. Mickey Grasso popped out but Page then walked his opposing pitcher, Steve Nagy, to set the stage for Coan's blow.

Virginia's Derby Hope Shows Experimental Run 'All A Mistake'

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Hill Prince, Virginia's big hope for the Kentucky Derby, showed today that his floundering exhibition in the Experimental Handicap a week ago was all a big mistake when he romped to a sparkling victory in the Wood Memorial.

Coming from far off the fast pace set by Alfred Vanderbilt's Next Move, Hill Prince caught the leader just as they straightened into the drive for home.

From there on, everybody in the crowd of 44,111 knew that the Virginian and Jockey Eddie Arcaro were going to make it without any difficulty.

Middleground the chestnut beauty from King Ranch, closed ground in the stretch to overtake Next Move and Mrs. Andy Schuttinger's Ferd and grab second money.

The King Ranch colt was two lengths back of the winner at the wire.

Ferd passed the tiring Next Move, only filly in the field of 11 starters, inside the sixteenth pole and took third, a length and a half back of Middleground, and three-fourths of a panel ahead of the Vanderbilt miss.

Hill Prince's time was a dazzling 1:43 3-5 — fastest for the Wood Memorial since Count Fleet romped home on top in 1943.

The winner was the choice o the huge Jamaica crowd in spite of last week's effort, and returned $5.00, $3.40 and $2.80. Middleground paid $3.00 and $2.60 as second choice, and Ferd, $4.50.

Immediately after the race, the grinning Arcaro said he will ride Hill Prince in the derby at Louisville two weeks from today.

There were reports that Arcaro would have switched to Middleground for the derby had the Texas horse won today.

Lotowhite, Hal Price Headley's surprise winner of the Experimental, never was a contender this time, and wound up ninth.

Next Move broke in front and sailed into a lead that opened to a length or more at times. Ferd followed with Middleground in the third slot. Hill Prince, a notably slow starter, was ninth heading into the backstretch.

That was just about the order of things for the top three all the way around, but the leaders never had a chance when Arcaro turned Hill Prince loose on the home stretch.

Hill Prince worked out the full derby distance of a mile and one quarter at the end, and was clocked in a scorching 2:02 2-5 — a brilliant showing for Jamaica's sharp turns.

The winner netted $34,500 from the gross pot of $49,050 — second richest Wood since the race began in 1925.

West Virginia Legislator Beats Spencer 1 Up In 37 Holes

By Ken Alyta

PINEHURST, N. C., April 22. —(AP)—One gorgeous iron shot on the 37th hole carried William C. Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., to a thrilling one up victory over Wynsol K. Spencer of Newport News, Va., today in the finals of the North and South Amateur Golf championship.

It was a golden shot that climaxed the golden anniversary of the North and South.

The two had halved the last hour holes with pars over the regulation 36-hole route after never having been more than two holes apart.

They stepped up to the first extra hole and each got off a good tee shot with Campbell, as he so often was, about 25 yards ahead of the Virginia insurance man.

Spencer slapped his second shot to the right of the pin, hole high, about five yards off the fringe of the green. Then Campbell took his eight iron and whacked the ball right at the pin, stopping it four feet away. Spencer took his putter and ran the ball up, but it was some 18 inches short. Campbell surveyed the situation and tapped in his tournament winning birdie just four hours after they had started their afternoon round.

It was a championship finish to a match that, although lacking in championship golf at times, was always interesting as the two scrambled artfully in and out of trouble. Hardly a hole passed without one or the other in a trap or the rough. But they came through with some fine recovery shorts and Spencer retained just enough of his putting magic to balance Campbell's advantage off the tee.

The 36-hole medal scores, with several upheld putts figured, were 76-76 for Campbell and 75-77 for Spencer over the par 72 No. 2 Pinehurst Country Club course, a 6,952-yarder.

FERRIER, DEMARET IN TIE FOR SPECIALISTS

LEADERS FINISH DAY'S TOIL WITH FOUR-UNDER 65S

Harper Chandler, Ted Kroll Deadlocked In 2nd Place With 66s

By Robert Moore

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., April 22.—(AP)—Dapper Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., muffed a two-foot putt on the final green today to wind up in a first-place tie with Jim Ferrier, of San Francisco, in the first round of the $10,000 Cavalier Specialists Open Golf Tournament.

Both Demaret and Ferrier posted four-under-par 65's.

It was the first time Demaret's putter failed him all afternoon. Sizzling with the same brand of golf which earned him successive victories in the Masters and the North Fulton Open Demaret dumped his tee shot into within 25 feet of the pin. His initial putt was two feet short. The next try on the velvet stretch of green seemed a sure dropper but veered and went over by six inches.

Ferrier's difficulty wasn't putting on No. 18 of the 6,065 yard layout of the Cavalier Yacht and Country Club. He pulled his tee shot into a trap at the right, banged his way out to within 12 feet of the hole and two putted.

Deadlocked for second place in the 54-hole test here were Ted Kroll of Philmont, Penna., and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va. Another stroke behind with 67's were Al Smith of Winston-Salem, N. C., Norman Von Nida of Snyder, Australia; Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.

Jack Burke, Jr. of White Plains, N. Y., and Wally Ulrich of Minneapolis were the only others to shatter par. They had 68's.

While both Ferrier and Demaret closed out with bogies they both canned eagle deuces on the incoming nine.

Demaret, wearing his usual rainbow attire, picked on the 317-yard thirteenth for his two below-par effort. His drive came to rest on the fringe of the green, 45 feet from the cup. Most of the gallery of about 2,500 had begun to follow Demaret by the time he reached the 13th. And they roared admiration as the 39-year old golf veteran rammed the putt straight into the hole.

Demaret was never over par on the front nine and made three birdies along the way. He almost scored an eagle on the 450-yard sixth by sending a deadeye second shot to within six feet of the pin. He missed the putt by a hair. He sank a four footer on No. 1 and a 10 footer on No. 7 for the other birdies.

Ferrier's eagle was even more spectacular than Demaret's. The tall, husky Australian ace dropped his tee shot 175 yards short of the pin on the 400-yard hole. Then he proceeded to hole out a four-iron shot that hit 10-feet in front of the cup, took one hop and trickled in.

Kroll, the early leader, dropped a six birdies in shooting his 66 round. The most spectacular of his putts producing birdies came on the 393-yard No. 9, where his 12-footer curled uphill into the cup.

He was on the velvet in two and two-putted on the 494-yard fourth hole for a birdie four. Kroll sank eight-footers on the sixth and eighth, a 10-foot beauty on the thirteenth and closed out his round by laying his tee shot on the 200-yard No. 18—the course's most difficult hole—to within four feet of the pin and rammed it in on the first try.

Kroll was in real trouble only on the twelfth hole, where he took a one-over-par five. He three-putted the fifth and fourteenth.

Monroe Skeet Club Will Meet Vicksburg

The Monroe Skeet Club closes its range here today to avoid conflicting with an air show at Selman Field and moves over to Vicksburg, Miss., for a challenge match with the Vicksburg Skeet Club, J. B. Thoman, range manager here, said last night.

Thoman said the best of local shooters would be matched against the Mississippi skeeters.

A large turnout of skeet and trap shooters was on hand at the range here last Sunday. Ross Graves boosted the best skeet score, cracking 121 out of 125, and he had 47 out of 50 in the trap events.

Negroes Sought In Robbery Of Driver

Police late Saturday night were searching for three Negroes who hi-jacked a taxi driver in the Booker T. Washington Addition.

Guy Sims, a driver for the Yellow Cab Company, told police that one of three Negroes whom he had driven to the addition, had pulled a gun on him and told him he was going to kill him.

The trio took seven dollars, Sims said. He stated that immediately following the threat to kill him a car approached and they fled.

Police said that indications were that the Negroes might be connected with burglaries in Monroe.

PIRATES POUND REDS

PITTSBURGH, April 22.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates kept their heavy artillery rattling today, smashing out four home runs to crush the Cincinnati Reds 9-2 for their fourth straight triumph.

The crowd of 14,533 stood and cheered as Ralph Kiner skyrocketed his second round tripper of the season over the left field wall for probably the longest homer of his career. The 500-footer cleared the fence by more than 60 feet and was gaining height as it left the park.

Encouraged by Kiner's batting, three of his teammates — Ted Beard, Nanny Fernandez and Wally Westlake — helped themselves to four-baggers. It was Kiner's second in two days and Westlake's third. Beard's clout was inside the park.

Eight Meet Records Shattered In 25th Kansas Relays

Tulane's Paul Bienz Beaten By Charlie Parker In 100-Yard Dash

By Skipper Patrick

LAWRENCE, Kans., April 22.—(AP)—Eight meet records toppled and anotoher was equalled as Baton-carrying teams set dizzy paces in the 25th Kansas Relays today.

Only one of the new marks was by an individual performer. Oklahoma's Bill Carroll set a pole vault standard of 15 feet 5 inches, three inches above the previous record.

Carroll was voted the outstanding performer of the day.

An estimated 10,000 fans watched the silver anniversary program of the relays run off in warm, clear weather.

The Rice Institute Owls were the only double winners in relay competition. The speedy southwesterners broke on record, capturing the university mile relay in 3 minutes, 15 seconds. That was five-tenths of a second under the old mark by Texas A. and M. in 1948. The Owls won the quarter-mile university relay in 41.3 seconds.

The other meet records by relay teams: Kansas, university four-mile in 17 minutes 34.3 seconds; Oklahoma, university sprint medley in 3 minutes 24.3 seconds; Michigan, university distance medley in 10 minutes 9.7 seconds, Abilene Christian, college mile relay in 3 minutes 16.8 seconds.

North Texas State, college half-mile in 1 minute 26 seconds; Compton (Calif.) Junior College, college sprint medley in 3 minutes 27.1 seconds.

Drury College of Springfield, Mo., equalled the invitational college sprint medley mark of 3 minutes 36.7 seconds set by Baker University in 1940.

There were at least two disappointing performances but one of them, paradoxically, was Kansas' four-mile victory. The Jayhawkers foursome of Cliff Abel, Herb Semper, Pat Bowers and Bob Karnes had expected to lick the American standard of 17 minutes 16.1 seconds.

Don Gehrmann, Wisconsin's amazing little middle distance star, won the Glenn Cunningham mile run for the second year. His time of 4 minutes 16.4 seconds was well above his usual winning times.

Gehrmann almost failed to finish at all. He stepped on the curbing while looking over his shoulder near the finish and almost fell from the track. Don got little competition as Jarvier Montez of Western Texas College finished 15 yards off the pace in second place.

Two of the better individual performances of the day didn't rate the record books.

Jerome Biffle of Denver won the broad jump with a leap of 25 feet, second only to a 25 foot 4 3-8 inch job by Ed Gordon of Iowa in 1931.

Anther second best in the history of the meet was the victory of Rollin Prather, Kansas State, in the shot put at 53 feet 5 1-8 inches.

The world record of 58 feet 3-8 inch by Charles Fonville of Michigan was set here in 1948.

Most stirring battle of the day went to the University of Oklahoma in the university sprint medley, the Sooners nosing out favorite Oklahoma A. and M. in a great struggle between the anchor men.

Bill Jacobs, son of Oklahoma Coach John Jacobs, brought the Sooners home in the record time of 3 minutes 24.3 seconds as he reeled off a 1-minute 52.6-seconds anchor half mile. He nipped the Aggies' Harold Tarrant a few strides from the tape.

Charlie Parker of Texas won his second relays 100-yard dash in 9.5 seconds, beating Tulane's Paul (no legs) Bienz by a stride.

Loyola Wins 2 From Mississippi Southern

NEW ORLEANS, April 22.—(AP)—Loyola University swept both ends of a Gulf States Conference baseball double header from Mississippi Southern today by 5-0 and 4-3 scores.

Loyola defeated the Southern tennis team 6-3, but was overwhelmed by Southern's golf squad 20-7.

Eddie Konick won his fifth game of the season as he completely handcuffed Southern in the first of two baseball games. Konick has lost one game this season. He gave up only three hits.

Southern Hurler Tom LeGros gave up only five, but one was a sixth inning home run by Loyola Catcher Billy Glennon with two aboard.

Glennon hit another home run in the fifth inning of the nightcap with the bases clear. Loyola got its other two runs on three straight singles off Southern's Ray Carpenter.

Don Robinson put out the fire that threatened in the fifth inning. He faced only seven men in 2 1/3 innings, striking out five and holding Southern hitless.

The double win gave Loyola a conference record of six victories and no defeats and a season's record of 11 wins against one loss.

indebted to our colleges for their support of baseball.

Mr. Craig has told me that it is a strictly educational project, and that he intends to submit his findings in a thesis to Oberlin College. This researcher is studying the attendance figures from 1900 to the present time, with computations on income and expenditures and capital investments.

Sixty-two Million Rooters

The gross attendance in 1949, in major and minor leagues, reached, as we have noted, the amazing figure of 62,000,000 about 20,000,000 of these in the major leagues and the remaining 42,000,00 in the minor leagues.

The economic health of organized baseball can almost be measured through the years by the number of minor leagues in the field. They show the public "consumption."

Mr. Craig gives out these figures: Starting in 1900 there were but 13 minor leagues. These increased steadily through the first decade until they had reached 46 in 1910. From 1911 to 1914 an average of 40 minor leagues started each season. Then, during World War I, there was a sharp decline. Slumps in attendance and shortages of players reduced the minors to 9 by 1918, and most managers, even in the majors, were forced to retrench and to sell their players.

After the war the majors experienced a quick revival and rose to hitherto unprecedented heights. But the minors did not share in this boom, for only about 22 to 31 of them existed throughout the 1920's.

During the worst years of the depression the number of operating minors fell to 14. Then they began to climb again until there were 37 minors in the field in 1937. After a temporary recession a new peak was reached, and in 1940 there were 43 minors.

From what Mr. Craig told me, it is important to note that from 1933 to 1941 inclusive, not a single league is recorded as failing. The attendance in 1939 was estimated to have been 18,500,000.

Fifty-nine Minor Leagues In 1949

With the outbreak of World War II, the falling off of attendance and the loss of players to the army and the navy caused another recession. In 1942, 31 minor leagues started, but five of them failed. This number was sharply reduced to 10 in 1943 and 1944. Just before the Japanese surrender, in 1945, 12 entered the field.

Then the upward movement started and for the next four years there was a steady increase: 42 in 1946; 52 in 1947; 58 in 1948; and 59 in 1949. The paid attendance in the minor leagues for the season of 1949 reached 41,872,762, an astounding figure, over two-thirds of the grand total.

The major league attendance records in the beginning of this century were around the million mark. They too had their ups and downs, which lasted through two world wars and a depression. In the last ten years they have about doubled their attendance, however. The combined attendance of the American and National Leagues was about 10,000,000 in 1940, 1941; below 9,000,000 in 1942-1943-1944; over 11,000,000 in 1945; over 18,000,000 in 1946; about 20,000,000 in 1947; approximately 21,000,000 in 1948, and about 20,000,000 in 1949.

At this rate of increase, considering the increase in populaiton and the expansion of the ball parks, it should reach 30,000,000 by 1960. If that is true, then the grand total of major and minor leagues would reach 80,000,000 by that time.

The capital investment in baseball is difficult to determine, as it depends on book values, resale values, replacements, and property investments. Balance sheets to not reveal selling prices of players, nor what they would want for their franchises.

FERRIER, DEMARET IN TIE FOR SPECIALISTS

LEADERS FINISH DAY'S TOIL WITH FOUR-UNDER 65'S

Harper Chandler, Ted Kroll Deadlocked In 2nd Place With 66s

By Robert Moore

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., April 22.—(AP)—Dapper Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., muffed a two-foot putt on the final green today to wind up in a first-place tie with Jim Ferrier, of San Francisco, in the first round of the $10,000 Cavalier Specialists Open Golf Tournament.

Both Demaret and Ferrier posted four-under-par 65's.

It was the first time Demaret's putter failed him all afternoon. Sizzling with the same brand of golf which earned him successive victories in the Masters and the North Fulton Open Demaret dumped his tee shot into within 25 feet of the pin. His initial putt was two feet short. The next try on the velvet stretch of green seemed a sure dropper but veered and went over by six inches.

Ferrier's difficulty wasn't putting on No. 18 of the 6,065 yard layout of the Cavalier Yacht and Country Club. He pulled his tee shot into a trap at the right, banged his way out to within 12 feet of the hole and two putted.

Deadlocked for second place in the 54-hole test here were Ted Kroll of Philmont, [illegible]na., and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va. Another stroke behind with 67's were Al Smith of Winston-Salem, N. C., Norman Von Nida of Snyder, Australia; Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.

Jack Burke, Jr. of White Plains, N. Y., and Wally Ulrich of Minneapolis were the only others to shatter par. They had 68's.

While both Ferrier and Demaret closed out with bogies they both canned eagle deuces on the incoming nine.

Demaret, wearing his usual rainbow attire, picked on the 317-yard thirteenth for his two below-par effort. His drive came to rest on the fringe of the green, 45 feet from the cup. Most of the gallery of about 2,500 had begun to follow Demaret by the time he reached the 13th. And they roared admiration as the 39-year old golf veteran rammed the putt straight into the hole.

Demaret was never over par on the front nine and made three birdies along the way. He almost scored an eagle on the 450-yard sixth by sending a deadeye second shot to within six feet of the pin. He missed the putt by a hair. He sank a four footer on No. 1 and a 10 footer on No. 7 for the other birdies.

Ferrier's eagle was even more spectacular than Demaret's. The tall, husky Australian ace dropped his tee shot 175 yards short of the pin on the 400-yard hole. Then he proceeded to hole out a four-iron shot that hit 10-feet in front of the cup, took one hop and trickled in. Kroll, the early leader, dropped in six birdies in shooting his 66 round. The most spectacular of his putts producing birdies came on the 393-yard No. 9, where his 12-footer curled uphill into the cup.

He was on the velvet in two and two-putted on the 494-yard fourth hole for a birdie four. Kroll sank eight-footers on the sixth and eighth, a 10-foot beauty on the thirteenth and closed out his round by laying his tee shot on the 200-yard No. 18—the course's most difficult hole—to within four feet of the pin and rammed it in on the first try.

Kroll was in real trouble only on the twelfth hole, where he took a one-over-par five. He three-putted the fifth and fourteenth.

Monroe Skeet Club Will Meet Vicksburg

The Monroe Skeet Club closes its range here today to avoid conflicting with an air show at Selman Field and moves over to Vicksburg, Miss., for a challenge match with the Vicksburg Skeet Club, J. B. Thoman, range manager here, said last night.

Thoman said the best of local shooters would be matched against the Mississippi skeeters.

A large turnout of skeet and trap shooters was on hand at the range here last Sunday. Ross Graves posted the best skeet score, cracking 121 out of 125, and he had 47 out of 50 in the trap events.

Negroes Sought In Robbery Of Driver

Police late Saturday night were searching for three Negroes who hi-jacked a taxi driver in the Booker T. Washington Addition.

Guy Sims, a driver for the Yellow Cab Company, told police that one of three Negroes whom he had driven to the addition, had pulled a gun on him and told him he was going to kill him.

The trio took seven dollars, Sims said. He stated that immediately following the threat to kill him a car approached and they fled. Police said that indications were that the Negroes might be connected with burglaries in Monroe.

Smalley's homer broke a tie that had endured from the sixth inning as relief hurlers Walt Dubiel and Howie Pollet dueled. Dubiel allowed only one scratch hit in the final three and two-thirds innings.

PIRATES POUND REDS

PITTSBURGH, April 22.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates kept their heavy artillery rattling today, smashing out four home runs to crush the Cincinnati Reds 9-2 for their fourth straight triumph.

The crowd of 14,533 stood and cheered as Ralph Kiner skyrocketed his second round tripper of the season over the left field wall for probably the longest homer of his career. The 500-footer cleared the fence by more than 60 feet and was gaining height as it left the park.

Encouraged by Kiner's batting, three of his teammates — Ted Beard, Nanny Fernandez and Wally Westlake — helped themselves to four-baggers. It was Kiner's second in two days and Westlake's third. Beard's clout was inside the park.

Eight Meet Records Shattered In 25th Kansas Relays

Tulane's Paul Bienz Beaten By Charlie Parker In 100-Yard Dash

By Skipper Patrick

LAWRENCE, Kans., April 22.—(AP)—Eight meet records toppled and anotoher was equalled as Baton-carrying teams set dizzy paces in the 25th Kansas Relays today.

Only one of the new marks was by an individual performer. Oklahoma's Bill Carroll set a pole vault standard of 15 feet 5 inches, three inches above the previous record.

Carroll was voted the outstanding performer of the day.

An estimated 10,000 fans watched the silver anniversary program of the relays run off in warm, clear weather.

The Rice Institute Owls were the only double winners in relay competition. The speedy southwesterners broke on record, capturing the university mile relay in 3 minutes, 15 seconds. That was five-tenths of a second under the old mark by Texas A. and M. in 1948. The Owls won the quarter-mile university relay in 41.3 seconds.

The other meet records by relay teams: Kansas, university four-mile in 17 minutes 34.3 seconds; Oklahoma, university sprint medley in 3 minutes 24.3 seconds; Michigan, university distance medley in 10 minutes 9.7 seconds, Abilene Christian, college mile relay in 3 minutes 16.8 seconds.

Drury College of Springfield, Mo., equalled the invitational college sprint medley mark of 3 minutes 36.7 seconds set by Baker University in 1940.

There were at least two disappointing performances but one of them, paradoxically, was Kansas' four-mile victory. The Jayhawkers foursome of Cliff Abel, Herb Semper, Pat Bowers and Bob Karnes had expected to lick the American standard of 17 minutes 16.1 seconds.

Don Gehrmann, Wisconsin's amazing little middle distance star, won the Glenn Cunningham mile run for the second year. His time of 4 minutes 16.4 seconds was well above his usual winning times.

Gehrmann almost failed to finish at all. He stepped on the curbing while looking over his shoulder near the finish and almost fell from the track. Don got little competition as Jarvier Montez of Western Texas College finished 15 yards off the pace in second place.

Two of the better individual performances of the day didn't rate the record books.

Jerome Biffile of Denver won the broad jump with a leap of 25 feet, second only to a 25 foot 4 3-8 inch job by Ed Gordon of Iowa in 1931.

Anther second best in the history of the meet was the victory of Rollin Prather, Kansas State, in the shot put at 53 feet 5 1-8 inches.

The world record of 58 feet 3-8 inch by Charles Fonville of Michigan was set here in 1948.

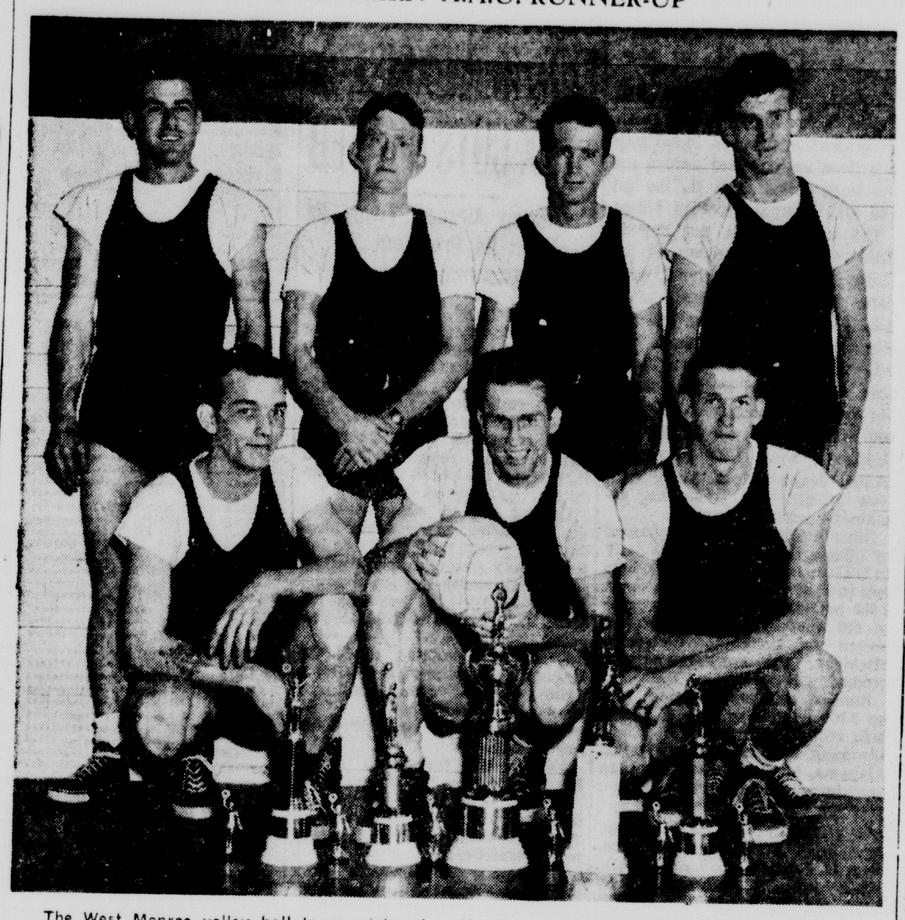

Most stirring battle of the day went to the University of Oklahoma in the university sprint medley, the Sooners nosing out favorite Oklahoma A. and M. in a great struggle between the anchor men.

Bill Jacobs, son of Oklahoma Coach John Jacobs, brought the Sooners home in the record time of 3 minutes 24.3 seconds as he reeled off a 1-minute 52.6-seconds anchor half mile. He nipped the Aggies' Harold Tarrant a few strides from the tape.

Charlie Parker of Texas won his second relays 100-yard dash in 9.5 seconds, beating Tulane's Paul (no legs) Bienz by a stride.

Loyola Wins 2 From Mississippi Southern

NEW ORLEANS, April 22.—(AP)—Loyola University swept both ends of a Gulf States Conference baseball double header from Mississippi Southern today by 5-0 and 4-3 scores.

Loyola defeated the Southern tennis team 6-3, but was overwhelmed by Southern's golf squad 20-7.

Eddie Konick won his fifth game of the season as he completely handcuffed Southern in the first of two baseball games. Konick has lost one game this season. He gave up only three hits.

Southern Hurler Tom LeGros gave up only five, but one was a sixth inning home run by Loyola Catcher Billy Glennon with two aboard.

Glennon hit another home run in the fifth inning of the nightcap with the bases clear. Loyola got its other two runs on three straight singles off Southern's Ray Carpenter.

Don Robinson put out the fire that threatened in the fifth inning. He faced only seven men in 2 1/3 innings, striking out five and holding Southern hitless.

The double win gave Loyola a conference record of six victories and no defeats and a season's record of 11 wins against one loss.

indebted to our colleges for their support of baseball.

Mr. Craig has told me that it is a strictly educational project, and that he intends to submit his findings in a thesis to Oberlin College. This researcher is studying the attendance figures from 1900 to the present time, with computations on income and expenditures and capital investments.

Sixty-two Million Rooters

The gross attendance in 1949, in major and minor leagues, reached, as we have noted, the amazing figure of 62,000,000 about 20,000,000 of these in the major leagues and the remaining 42,000,00 in the minor leagues.

The economic health of organized baseball can almost be measured through the years by the number of minor leagues in the field. They show the public "consumption."

Mr. Craig gives out these figures: Starting in 1900 there were but 13 minor leagues. These increased steadily through the first decade until they had reached 46 in 1910. From 1911 to 1914 an average of 40 minor leagues started each season. Then, during World War I, there was a sharp decline. Slumps in attendance and shortages of players reduced the minors to 9 by 1918, and most managers, even in the majors, were forced to retrench and to sell their players.

After the war the majors experienced a quick revival and rose to hitherto unprecedented heights. But the minors did not share in this boom, for only about 22 to 31 of them existed throughout the 1920's.

During the worst years of the depression the number of operating minors fell to 14. Then they began to climb again until there were 37 minors in the field in 1937. After a temporary recession a new peak was reached, and in 1940 there were 43 minors.

From what Mr. Craig told me, it is important to note that from 1933 to 1941 inclusive, not a single league is recorded as failing. The attendance in 1939 was estimated to have been 18,500,000.

Fifty-nine Minor Leagues In 1949

With the outbreak of World War II, the falling off of attendance and the loss of players to the army and the navy caused another recession. In 1942, 31 minor leagues started, but five of them failed. This number was sharply reduced to 10 in 1943 and 1944. Just before the Japanese surrender, in 1945, 12 entered the field.

Then the upward movement started and for the next four years there was a steady increase: 42 in 1946; 52 in 1947; 58 in 1948; and 59 in 1949. The paid attendance in the minor leagues for the season of 1949 reached 41,872,762, an astounding figure, over two-thirds of the grand total.

The major league attendance records in the beginning of this century were around the million mark. They too had their ups and downs, which lasted through two world wars and a depression. In the last ten years they have about doubled their attendance, however. The combined attendance of the American and National Leagues was about 10,000,000 in 1940, 1941; below 9,000,000 in 1942-1943-1944; over 11,000,000 in 1945; over 18,000,000 in 1946; about 20,000,000 in 1947; approximately 21,000,000 in 1948, and about 20,000,000 in 1949.

At this rate of increase, considering the increase in populaiton and the expansion of the ball parks, it should reach 30,000,000 by 1960. If that is true, then the grand total of major and minor leagues would reach 80,000,000 by that time.

The capital investment in baseball is difficult to determine, as it depends on book values, resale values, replacements, and property investments. Balance sheets to not reveal selling prices of players, nor what they would want for their franchises.

LOUISIANA OIL AND GAS NEWS

2 GAS WELLS ARE FOUND IN UNION

Two Sites Abandoned In Caldwell And Richland Parishes

Two wells were abandoned, one in Caldwell parish, the other in Richland parish, and two new gas yielders were brought in in the Monroe field of Union parish, according to the conservation department's weekly report revealed here yesterday.

The two new gas producers were listed as the Northwest Company's Union No. C-10 and C-11, both in 8-21-3E.

INK FACTORY IS LOCATING HERE

Contractors Say Building Will Be Completed In 30 Days

Gilbert Brothers contractors last week began construction on the St. Clair Valentina Ink Company's factory located at 3304 Jackson street.

The building itself is estimated to cost within the range of $15,000 and is scheduled to be completed within the next 30 days, according to the contractors.

The St. Clair Valentina Ink Company has similar factories in New Orleans, Houston, Florida and California and has been selling ink to newspapers, paper mills other concerns in northeast Louisiana for a number of years.

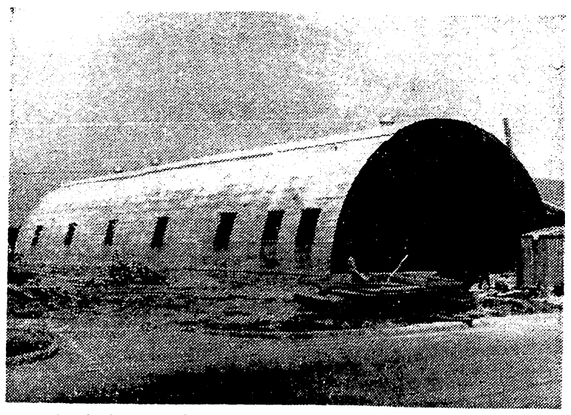

Equipment for the plant is expected to arrive within the next two months and be installed by the company itself.

The factory is being built of metal with a brick front and will contain 4,800 sq. ft. The lot on which it is being erected is 100 by 150 feet, near the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks.

The contractor pointed out that the ink factory plans here were identical to those in the St. Clair Valentina's plant in Florida.

A. S. Johnson, manager of the St. Clair Valentina Ink Co., 843 Magazine street, New Orleans, will also manage the new Monroe factory.

OIL PRODUCTION IN U. S. FALLS

Increases Are Recorded In Both Mississippi And Louisiana

TULSA, Okla., April 22.—(AP)—United States' daily average crude oil production dropped 10,235 barrels from an extended upturn for the week ended April 15, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

The total average per day in that week was estimated by the journal at 4,922,190 barrels, compared to a previous figure of 4,932,425 barrels. The latter average climaxed four weeks of gains.

Losses were scattered, the larger ones occurring in the mid-continent area. Oklahoma was down 7,050 barrels a day to 433,100; and Arkansas, down 1,300 barrels to 79,600. Texas output, along with New Mexico and Nebraska, remained unchanged.

Other declines were registered by Illinois, down 5,700 barrels daily to 178,200; Indiana, down 2,700 barrels to 26,500; and California, down 1,900 barrels to 857,200. Decreases of 900 barrels or less were reported in Colorado, Kentucky, Michigan, Utah, and in the eastern producing section.

Kansas, contrary to trend, was up 5,000 barrels to 261,950. Louisiana rose 1,700 barrels to 513,200; Wyoming, 2,900 to 152,100; Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Montana each increased 900 barrels or less.

FURTHER EXCISE TAX CUTS OKAYED

Reduction Already Twice As Deep As President T. Recommended

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP)—A further $250,000,000 slash in excise taxes was approved today by the house ways and means committee.

Added to $85,000,000 in cuts approved yesterday, total is now $335,000,000. This reduction is almost twice as deep as President Truman recommended, on that part of the excise list the committee has covered.

Cutting will be resumed when the committee meets again Monday. The group, writing its own tax ticket, may risk a veto by calling for overall excise slashes of about $1,000,000,000 — far beyond the $655,000,000 limit Mr. Truman proposed.

Chairman Doughton (D.-N. C.) emphasized, however, that all actions are tentative and could be changed later.

Here is what the committee approved today:

Furs — cut the retail excise from the present 20 per cent to 10.

Jewelry — cut the 20 per cent retail levy in half, with the tax removed entirely from lower priced watches.

Luggage — remove completely the 20 per cent retail levy on handbags, purses, wallets, pocketbooks and card and key cases. The full 20 per cent levy would be retained on other luggage, such as trunks suitcases and brief cases.

Toilet preparations — erase completely the 20 per cent retail levy on baby oils, baby powder and lotions, and cut from 20 per cent to 10 the tax on other toilet preparations, such as cosmetics and shaving lotions.

Sporting goods — elliminate the 10 per cent manufacturers' tax on children's toys "and goods predominently used by schools." Committee staff members said this means the sporting goods tax would not be paid — regardless of whether used in schools or by professional teams — on such things as baseballs, basketballs, footballs and football equipment, and skates.

TRUMAN DOESN'T EXPECT CONFLICT

Makes Assertion After Seeing 'Hot War' Tactics Demonstrated

FORT BENNING, Ga., April 21.—(AP)—President Truman said today he did not believe there would be a third world war, shortly after the army had put on a dashing demonstration of its "hot war" techniques.

The president spoke informally at a luncheon before most of the nation's top military and civilian brass here for an orientation conference of the joint service. Truman arrived here at 10 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) from Washington aboard his plane, "The Independence." He was to leave shortly after 6 p. m., for Eglin Field, Fla.

Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia arrived in time to greet the president and shake hands with him cordially. The president smiled, thus wiping out the memory of the supposed snub of Talmadge during the inauguration when he turned his head in the reviewing stand as Talmadge passed.

After witnessing a demonstration of an infantry battalion's attack technique, the president told the fort's officers and the assembled brass that he believed in preparedness to prevent a world conflict. He added:

"It took us two wars and 30 years to find out that our place in the world was one of leadership. Now we want to maintain that leadership for peace and the welfare of the world as a whole, unless we want to do as we did after the first world war and bring on a third one.

"I don't think," Mr. Truman continued, "we are going to bring on that third one. I am an optimist and always have been. I proved that in 1948, I think."

Mr. Truman concluded "He believed the world eventually would find sanity."

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

FEARS HARDSHIPS IF CONTROLS CUT

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP)—President Truman said today that millions would suffer serious hardship if federal rent controls die June 30 as scheduled.

He appealed to congress for a year's extension of the law to head off "a wave of exhorbitant rent increases" which he said would surely follow a sudden lifting of controls.

Families earning less than $40 a week would be hardest hit, the Truman message said—many lines of business would be affected, relief costs would rise and pensions for the aged less adequate.

The appeal preceded the opening of public hearings on the issue, the outcome of which is in doubt. Recent voting tests made this clear. The senate banking committee will begin five full days of hearings Monday. The house banking committee has none set.

A few weeks ago, congress slashed a rent office request for emergency operating funds from $3,600,000 to $1,400,000—then tossed in $2,600,000 to be used only for discharge pay of employes.

This action threw a shadow across the agency's future when the question of continuing controls comes up, perhaps next month.

Truman Called To Washington By 'Boss'

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla., April 22.—(AP)—The "situation" developed to the point today that President Truman had to hurry back to Washington and miss a luncheon at the non-commissioned officers' club.

The president explained, in brief remarks to the club:

"I am sorry that the situation has developed to the point where it is not possible for me to partake of this excellent luncheon which you provided. It is necessary for me to be immediately airborne so that I can report to my boss in Washington on time for other purposes. I hope you understand that, especially those of you who are married and have familes to support."

The president enplaned at 1:54 p.m., EST, after a two-day inspection of U. S. armed might here and at Fort Benning, Ga.

Contractors Say Building Will Be Completed In 30 Days

Gilbert Brothers contractors last week began construction on the St. Clair Valentina Ink Company's factory located at 3304 Jackson street.

The building itself is estimated to cost within the range of $15,000 and is scheduled to be completed within the next 30 days, according to the contractors.

The St. Clair Valentina Ink Company has similar factories in New Orleans, Houston, Florida and California and has been selling ink to newspapers, paper mills other concerns in northeast Louisiana for a number of years.

Equipment for the plant is expected to arrive within the next two months and be installed by the company itself.

The factory is being built of metal with a brick front and will contain 4,800 sq. ft. The lot on which it is being erected is 100 by 150 feet, near the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks.

The contractor pointed out that the ink factory plans here were identical to those in the St. Clair Valentina's plant in Florida.

A. S. Johnson, manager of the St. Clair Valentina Ink Co., 843 Magazine street, New Orleans, will also manage the new Monroe factory.

OIL PRODUCTION IN U. S. FALLS

Increases Are Recorded In Both Mississippi And Louisiana

TULSA, Okla., April 22.—(AP)—United States' daily average crude oil production dropped 10,235 barrels from an extended upturn for the week ended April 15, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

The total average per day in that week was estimated by the journal at 4,922,190 barrels, compared to a previous figure of 4,932,425 barrels. The latter average climaxed four weeks of gains.

Losses were scattered, the larger ones occurring in the mid-continent area. Oklahoma was down 7,050 barrels a day to 433,100; and Arkansas, down 1,300 barrels to 79,600. Texas output, along with New Mexico and Nebraska, remained unchanged.

Other declines were registered by Illinois, down 5,700 barrels daily to 178,200; Indiana, down 2,700 barrels to 26,500; and California, down 1,900 barrels to 857,200. Decreases of 900 barrels or less were reported in Colorado, Kentucky, Michigan, Utah, and in the eastern producing section.

Kansas, contrary to trend, was up 5,000 barrels to 261,950. Louisiana rose 1,700 barrels to 513,200; Wyoming, 2,900 to 152,100; Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Montana each increased 900 barrels or less.

FURTHER EXCISE TAX CUTS OKAYED

Reduction Already Twice As Deep As President T. Recommended

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP)—A further $250,000,000 slash in excise taxes was approved today by the house ways and means committee.

Added to $85,000,000 in cuts approved yesterday, the total is now $335,000,000. This reduction is almost twice as deep as President Truman recommended, on that part of the excise list the committee has covered.

Cutting will be resumed when the committee meets again Monday. The group, writing its own tax ticket, may risk a veto by calling for overall excise slashes of about $1,000,000,000 — far beyond the $655,000,000 limit Mr. Truman proposed.

Chairman Doughton (D.-N. C.) emphasized, however, that all actions are tentative and could be changed later.

Here is what the committee approved today:

Furs — cut the retail excise from the present 20 per cent to 10.

Jewelry — cut the 20 per cent retail levy in half, with the tax removed entirely from lower priced watches.

Luggage — remove completely the 20 per cent retail levy on handbags, purses, wallets, pocketbooks and card and key cases. The full 20 per cent levy would be retained on other luggage, such as trunks suitcases and brief cases.

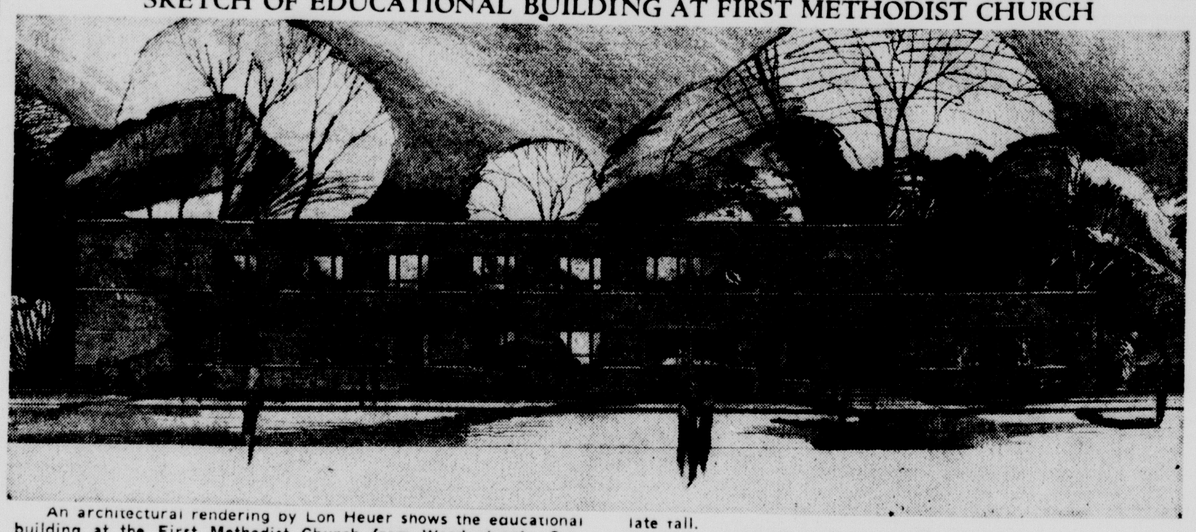

Toilet preparations — erase completely the 20 per cent retail levy on baby oils, baby powder and lotions, and cut from 20 per cent to 10 the tax on other toilet preparations, such as cosmetics and shaving lotions.

Sporting goods — eliminate the 10 per cent manufacturers' tax on children's toys "and goods predominently used by schools." Committee staff members said this means the sporting goods tax would not be paid — regardless of whether used in schools or by professional teams — on such things as baseballs, basketballs, footballs and football equipment, and skates.

Cornerstone Will Be Laid At First Methodist Church

Cost Of Education Building And Furnishings Is Estimated At $260,000; Construction To Be Completed By Late Fall

Impressive ceremonies to mark the laying of the cornerstone will be held this evening at the First Methodist Church Educational Building in Monroe. At 6:30, church members and officials will gather to celebrate the achievement of a ten-year goal for the congregation.

The campaign for funds for the new building began in 1940, under the leadership of Dr. A. M. Freeman, then pastor of the Monroe church. Dr. Freeman, now pastor of the First Methodist Church of Homer, will participate in the cornerstone laying services, with Dr. A. M. Serex, present pastor of the Monroe church, officiating.

Construction on the building was begun in October, 1949, and the structure is expected to be completed and ready for occupancy in the late fall.

Architect for the building is Roy Johns and associates of Monroe. Frank Masling and son are the contractors.

The total cost of the structure, including necessary furnishings, was placed at about $260,000. All but $15,000 of this sum, to cover the cost of furniture, has already been raised by the building committee. In addition to the work on the new structure, approximately $30,000 has been spent on redecoration of the present church and installation of air conditioning in the sanctuary.

The educational building is the first phase of a long-range program. The structure is designed to connect with proposed new buildings, including the new sanctuary, to be built at a cost of approximately $250,000. The congregation is already engaged in a campaign to raise the funds necessary for the construction of the new church.

The cornerstone, of marble, is inscribed "Educational Building First Methodist Church, A. D. 1950." Inside the cornerstone, in a specially - designed receptacle will be enclosed the scroll of builders, a parchment more than 40 feet long, containing the names of those who contributed to the building fund. Also to be enclosed is a copy of this issue of the Morning World, as a record of the ceremonies and occasion.

Present at the dedication will be the present building committee and past officials and members of the group. The first chairman of the fund - raising committee was E. C. Gibson. Succeeding Gibson was C. H. McHenry, who was followed in the position by Ben R. Downing, J. W. Keene, and Miss Juanita Porter. G. L. Holloway is the present chairman. Miss Elizabeth Langford was the secretary of the campaign until recently, when she was succeeded by Miss Porter. F. L. Jones has been the treasurer since the committee's inception in 1940.

Other members of the present building committee Ben R. Downing, G. L. Morgan, C. H. McHenry and W. J. Veazey.

TRUMAN DOESN'T EXPECT CONFLICT

Makes Assertion After Seeing 'Hot War' Tactics Demonstrated

FORT BENNING, Ga., April 21.—(AP)—President Truman said today he did not believe there would be a third world war, shortly after the army had put on a dashing demonstration of its "hot war" techniques.

The president spoke informally at a luncheon before most of the nation's top military and civilian brass here for an orientation conference of the joint service. Truman arrived here at 10 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) from Washington aboard his plane, "The Independence." He was to leave shortly after 6 p. m., for Eglin Field, Fla.

Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia arrived in time to greet the president and shake hands with him cordially. The president smiled, thus wiping out the memory of the supposed snub of Talmadge during the inauguration when he turned his head in the reviewing stand as Talmadge passed.

After witnessing a demonstration of an infantry battalion's attack technique, the president told the fort's officers and the assembled brass that he believed in preparedness to prevent a world conflict. He added:

"It took us two wars and 30 years to find out that our place in the world was one of leadership. Now we want to maintain that leadership for peace and the welfare of the world as a whole, unless we want to do as we did after the first world war and bring on a third one.

"I don't think," Mr. Truman continued, "we are going to bring on that third one. I am an optimist and always have been. I proved that in 1948, I think."

Mr. Truman concluded "He believed the world eventually would find sanity."

FEARS HARDSHIPS IF CONTROLS CUT

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP)—President Truman said today that millions would suffer serious hardship if federal rent controls die June 30 as scheduled.

He appealed to congress for a year's extension of the law to head off "a wave of exhorbitant rent increases" which he said would surely follow a sudden lifting of controls.

Families earning less than $40 a week would be hardest hit, the Truman message said—many lines of business would be affected, relief costs would rise and pensions for the aged less adequate.

The appeal preceded the opening of public hearings on the issue, the outcome of which is in doubt. Recent voting tests made this clear. The senate banking committee will begin five full days of hearings Monday. The house banking committee has none set.

A few weeks ago, congress slashed a rent office request for emergency operating funds from $3,600,000 to $1,400,000—then tossed in $2,600,000 to be used only for discharge pay of employes.

This action threw a shadow across the agency's future when the question of continuing controls comes up, perhaps next month.

New Weapons More Terrible Than World Has Ever Seen

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Johnson said today that the United States has speeded up development of new weapons more terrible than any the world has ever seen.

Johnson declared a belief that this country leads in fashioning a variety of new arms that "may mean the difference between victory and defeat in war."

In his semi-annual report, the secretary told America that its atomic arsenal is "no longer a small number of bombs of a single type and size."

He also said that America's trimmed down fighting forces are proficient and are geting "equipment superior to that of any other nation."

He disclosed that Russio's atomic explosion last September, coming far earlier than had been expected, had stepped up U. S. development of new war tools that "surpass in destructive power any arms previously known." He did not explain the nature of these weapons.

The defense department report for the last half of 1949 heavily accented the importance of new means of destruction. It also highlighted the conservation of military man power and the elimination of activities "not strictly necessary" for national defense.

(Johnson released on Feb. 28 the chapter of the report dealing with the economy program which he said would enable the defense department to cut aproximately $1,2000,000,000 from the president's defense budget for the year ending June 30.)

At the end of 1949, armed services manpower totaled 1,551,000, a net decrease of 2,000 oficers and 63,000 enlister men in six months.

At year's end, the U. S. had 36,000 military airplanes, with 5,400 more being obtained with funds already authorized. Johnson also reported that 11,000 of the existing aircraft were fighters, 2,000 of them jet powered.

Johnson noted that Rusia's achievement of an atomic explosion "came earlier than expected" and forced the U. S. to revise the timetable for improving its defenses.

Reports of army, navy and air force secretaries filled in some details of how reduced military funds are affecting the fighting services.

Air Force Secretary Symington, who leaves this post April 24, reported that the last six months of 1949 completed the "downward" adjustment to the 48 group fixed by the president.

He said this paring down meant the inactivation of seven groups already being formed earlier in the year, inactivation of six air force installations and the complete closing of eight additional installations.

The air force added 782 new planes in the last half of 1949, Symington said, to its inventory total of 22,000. about 13,000 of the total were in use, and 7,500 of the 9,000 inactive status planes were in storage.

Symington asserted that more than 80 per cent of the air force's 10,250 combat planes are World War II types that will be obselete by June 30, 1951.

Secretary Matthews reported that the navy at the end of 1949 met its requirements "fairly well," but it could use more aircraft carriers "to advantage."

He noted that 39 vessels had been stricken from the navy list in the six months period. He said navy policy is to inactivate or eliminate all shore facilities that are not essential for support of the operating forces, for approved research or for "early mobilization."

King Farouk Said Already Married To Narriman Sedek

DAMASCUS, Syria, April 22.—(AP)—A generally reliable Arabic newspaper in Beirut, Lebanon, published a story last Tuesday saying that King Farouk of Egypt and Narriman Sadek already are married. Up to today there has been no denial or protest about the story from any official Egyptian source.

The newspaper, Beirut, said the beautiful 17-year-old Egyptian girl has become the king's legal wife and added that it had learned, "from sources very near to King Farouk," that there will be an official announcement May 6. That day is observed in Egypt as Accession Day, the anniversary of the beginning of Farouk's reign.

The headline on the story said "Farouk and Narriman married." A picture of the girl accompanying the story was captioned "The new queen."

In the past, the Egyptian foreign office has been extremely touchy concerning reports about the romance of the Egyptian king. Persons familiar with the policy of the foreign office said the lack of any denial or protest in this case seemed to indicate the story could be true.

The editor of the paper in Beirut said he had heard of no protest or denial from Egypt. In fact, on Thursday he published another story saying the bride had ordered six gowns from Paris in preparation for May 6.

Any speculaiton or comment about the story would be impossible from Cairo. There is a strict censorship there on the king's personal life.

The story of the king's romance with Miss Sadek, as it reached the outside world last December from several sources, reads like a page from the Arabian Nights. She had been engaged to Zaki Hashem, a young Egyptian economist, and fell under the royal eye when she went to a jewelry store in Cairo with Hashem to select a ring.

Two More Solons Want Slash In Recovery Funds

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—Two more senators—Kem (R.-Mo.) and Ellender (D.-La.)—today demanded deep slashes in the $3,100,000,000 European recovery funds for the next fiscal year.

Calling attention to the mounting national debt, Senator Kem said he will press for a billion-dollar cut in the authorization now pending in the senate.

"It would be the height of folly for us to continue to throw our money around in Europe like drunken sailors," Kem said in a statement.

Senator Ellender proposed a half-billion dollar cut saying it would "eliminate a few frills and luxuries hidden in the program."

Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee and Majority Leader Lucas (D.-Ill.) appeared unworried about new attempts to whittle the program.

Instead, Lucas was pressing senators to agree on a definite time for voting after a week of debate. he hopes to get the bill through the senate and back to the house next week.

Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the senate G.O.P. policy committee, has promised to vote for a $6,000,000,000 reduction advocated by Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa). Connally said Hickenlooper was the only member of the 13-man senate foreign relations committee who wanted a reduction.

Kem said he also would push two other amendments:

"1. To prevent the funnelling of war materials from the United States to Russia and the satellites through the Marshall Plan countries.

"2. To shut off further socialization of European industry with the assistance of Marshall Plan countries."

The United States now prohibits shipments of war materials to Russia and her satellites. Kem said he will present data indicating "a heavy traffic" in such materials from Marshall Plan nations to Communist nations.

Kem said his "anti-socialization" amendment would ban aid to England or any other country "which in the future nationalizes or socializes a basic industry."

A similar Kem proposal was rejected 62 to 20 by the senate last year.

In addition to the $3,100,000,000 to continue the Marshall Plan, the senate bill also would authorize $100,000,000 for aid in the China area, $100,000,000 for the anti-Communist forces in orea, $45,000,000 to begin President Truman's point 4 program of technical and scientific aid to backward areas of the world, and $27,450,000 for Arab refugees.

Irene Reid Addresses Journalists

BATON ROUGE, La., April 22—(AP)—Fayette Copeland, head of the University of Oklahoma School of Journalism, was elected president of the Southwest Journalism Congress at the final session of the organization's annual meeting here today.

Copeland's school will be host to the congress in Norman, Okla., next year, with the convening date tentatively set for April 6.

Other officers elected were Frank Rigler, vice-president and Robert Chambers, re-elected secretary-treasurer. Both are members of the faculty of Texas State College for Women.

Student officers for the congress include Dick Mayo, University of Oklahoma, president; Bob Moax, Hardin-Simmons University, vice-president, and Paula Fix, Texas Technological College, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Irene Simms Reid, advertising manager of the Monroe News-Star and Morning World, discussed today the requirements for success in the advertising field.

She said advertising workers should keep uppermost the interest of their clients, and stressed importance of adequate training and constant study to keep abreast of developments.

Warren Ogden, editor of the Times-Picayune Magazine, discussed the growth of the newspaper magazine from its origin in sensational Sunday supplements. Significant developments, he said, have been improved mechanical methods, such the rotogravure process replacing letter press, and reduction in the size of the magazine.

Gov. Long Returns To Winnfield

NEW ORLEANS, April 22—(AP)—The Times-Picayune reported tonight the Gov. Earl Long, who has been convalescing at the Governor's mansion in Baton Rouge after a recent heart attack, returned to his farm at Winnfield, La., this weekend.

The paper said the Governor, Mrs. Long and several friends went to Winnfield yesterday and will return to Baton Rouge tomorrow. The Governor suffered the heart attack in Winnfield Feb. 3 and later went to Baton Rouge.

The paper said a relative of the Governor told a correspondent that "Earl's just here for the weekend at his place. He wanted to come back to see how things were going. He's not getting around much, though."

The paper said Dr. Robert Bernhard of New Orleans, the Governor's personal physician, said he was not aware that Gov. Long had gone to Winnfield.

The doctor was quoted as saying that Gov. Long has been going for drives in recent days and has "recuperated marvelously well." Dr. Bernhard was also quoted as saying the governor had been a good patient and that it was safe for him to take the trip.

The governor's office in Baton Rouge declined to say where he was today.

Dr. 'Who Never Refused A Call' Given Honor

DE QUINCY, La., April 22—(AP)—A 72-year-old doctor "who never refused a call' was honored today for his half-century of service to the people of this area.

He is Dr. George Lyons, who came in 1900 to this timber and railroad community.

The sponsors of Dr. George Lyons Day say he has delivered more than 5,000 babies in his 50 years of practice. The registration for the program showed at least 1,000 of them were in the large audience that paid tribute to the doctor.

The day's activities included a barbecue luncheon, a 50-unit parade, speeches by State Sen. Gilbert Hennigan of Fields and others, music by a 90-piece band, and a pageant presented by high school students. It was based on the doctor's life.

Dr. Stakeley Hatchette of Lake Charles, president of the Calcasieu Parish Medical Society, was scheduled to speak at a testimonial dinner tonight.

More Interest In Youth Clubs Urged

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover today urged a wider interest in the Boys' and Girls' Clubs of America as a means of improving the lot of the nation's underprivileged children.

"The surroundings in congested areas of cities and their effect on the lives of girls and boys form a marginal black spot in America," he said.

K. C. Police Boardman Quits As Inquiry Nears

KANSAS CITY, April 22.—(AP)—One of the five members of Kansas City's police board quit today in the face of a torrent of criticism resulting from the gang slaying of political boss Charles Binaggio.

"The abuse and incorrect statements made by certain persons isn't worth it," declared Sheridan E. Farrell, dapper manager of a big (Phillips) hotel.

While Farrell was announcing his resignation, a delegation from the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce conferred behind closed doors with Governor Forrest Smith at Jefferson City. Their subject: The police situation.

Secrecy was invoked by both sides after the two hour session. The governor refused to comment. Albert R. Waters, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said both sides made recommendations, but he wouldn't elaborate.

There was speculation that Farrell's resignation might be followed by sweeping changes in the Kansas City police setup. However, exactly one week ago, the police board and department had won a stamp of approval from the governor.

Criticism of Farrell centered on charge by the Kansas City Star and other persons that he favored opening the city up for some gambling.

The gambling angle brought from Missouri Attorney General J. E. Taylor a long telegram to a senate subcommittee investigating crime. He said his state needed federal help in controlling betting on races.

Taylor's opposite number in Kansas, Harold R. Fatzer, swooped yesterday on race betting parlors in four cities, including neighboring Kansas City, Kas. Sixteen men are under arrest in the Sunflower state on charges of being owners and operators of gambling equipment.

The Kansas City Star said the raids were called as a warning to bigtime gamblers who might be eyeing the state as a fertile field. Kansans don't want racketeers moving in now that the heat has been placed on Kansas City following the slayings of Binaggio and his henchman, Charles Gargotta, only 17 days ago.

Farrell, who came to Kansas City in 1932 from Cincinnati, had been appointed to the police board by Governor Smith last May 3. There are three other appointed members, J. L. (Tuck) Milligan, president, Hampton S. Chambers and R. Robert Cohn. Mayor William Kemp is an ex-officio member. The mayor has not been under fire.

Stringer of Baton Rouge, president. Not shown in the picture is Mrs. W. S. Wiedorn of New Orleans, third vice-president. These officials were elected for a three-year term by the twenty-seventh annual convention delegates numbering 444.

Infant Daughter Of Two Hitch-hikers Critically Ill

A three-week-old baby girl whose parents are without employment hitch-hiking cross country was reported in critical condition at the Charity Hospital here Saturday where she is being treated for malnutrition.

The baby was taken to a Rayville physician who reported she was near death late Friday after a traveling man noticed the young baby's condition.

Hospital attendants said the baby had not been fed in several days and it would take about a week or longer for her to recover.

Bobby Coke, who travels with the Empire Producing Company out of Kansas City, Mo., noticed a couple hitch hiking in Rayville with a bundle and discovered the small baby. He and Jimmy Allen, of Monroe, after consulting a Rayville physician brought the infant to the Charity Hospital here.

Coke said he first noticed the couple and bundle when the woman took her last three pennies from a handkerchief and handed it to her husband who purchased an onion which they both ate.

The infant's father, William Leroy Wilson, 40, is an epileptic and had three attacks enroute to Monroe, Coke said. He pointed out, that he was looking for any kind of farm or construction work to help take care of his family.

The baby's 30-year-old mother said she gave birth to Margaret in a Dallas hospital April 2nd and has been hitch-hiking with her since that time. The Wilson couple stated that they had no home and their two other childreh were being kept by a sister who has 10 children of her own in Spartanburg, N. C.

Coke pointed out that the couple did not ask for money, or charity. Instead, he said, the man expressed the desire for employment.

Housing Law Of 1950 Will Boost New Home Building

By David G. Bareuther

Home building, now at an all-time high, is getting an added boost from the housing law of 1950, just passed by congress. Authorizing 30-year mortgages, this legislation greatly broadens the home purchasing power of families in the $50 to $100 weekly salary brackets.

At the same time it ties in with the refund of GI insurance money, which is expected to add $2,800,000,000 to personal incomes by the middle of this year.

The Construction Research Bureau of New York, representing manufacturers of building equipment has completed a survey among veterans. It brings monthly cates that 19 per cent intend using their GI insurance refunds to buy and furnish homes of their own.

This survey shows that close to 40,000 applications per month are now being made for GI home loans, in contrast to a low of 20,500 in March of last year.

Lower Monthly Payments

The 30-year mortgage, authorized by the federal law, is expected to increase greatly home buying among veterans. It brins monthly payments down much lower than under existing mortgages arrangements.

The National Association of Home Builders points out that the new law provides strong incentives for home buyers in the $6,000 to $9,000 price range. New homes financed with FHA insured mortgages can be purchased under a plan calling for $500 cash down on a $10,000 four-bedroom house for non-veterans.

Small Homes Boosted

The law provides a maximum mortgage of $6,650 on a two-bedroom house. The owner puts down a minimum of five per cent cash. Another $950 is added to the mortgage for each bedroom up to four. The FHA has the authority to raise the mortgage limits in high cost construction areas.

Prospective home buyers in low-cost construction areas, particularly rural sections and the south, southwest and far west, will benefit substantially from another new type of financing provided in the law.

This is the section that allows builders to erect soundly built small houses costing $6,000 and less. On these the buyer pays only five per cent down, or $300, with the remaining monthly payments spread over 30 years.

Construction standards must measure up to the regular FHA specifications. Complete mineral wool insulation, for example, is one quality of construction to be desired.

However, the new law liberalizes other items. There is no requirement as to paved streets, curbs and sidewalks, or landscaping, proximity to schools and transportation, or other standard FHA requirements for higher cost homes.

Slight Rise In Cost Of Living Is Reported

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—A slight rise in living cost, mainly due to higher food prices, was reported today in the government.

The bureau of labor statistics said its living cost index increased three-tenths of one per cent from February to March. Foods, after declining for three straight months, rose six-tenths of one per cent.

What Next?

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Diplomatic sources are wondering if the United States is prepared to carry its case to the United Nations if Russia doesn't react satisfactorily to its protest against the shooting down of the American plane in the Baltic. The U. S. once threatened Yugoslavia with the U. N. treatment in a similar situation, and Yugoslavia promptly truckled.

P.-T. A. Installs Officers; Shreveport Host In '51

Shreveport will be host to the Louisiana Parent-Teachers Association at its 1951 convention on April 19-21. The decision was made at a post board meeting following the close of the three-day conference Saturday noon.

Installation of three officers was included in the last general session Saturday. Mrs. J. H. Stringer of Baton Rouge was installed as president of the state organization; Mrs. J. S. Goff of Shreveport as fourth vice-president, and Mrs. W. S. Wiedorn of New Orleans as third vice-president.

Since the Parent-Teacher organization does not elect all of its officers simultaneously, only three positions had to be filled by balloting at this year's conference.

Convention delegates, which numbered 444 members, also adopted at the closing meeting several resolutions pertaining to federal and state legislation.

The organization endorsed a vigorous re-affirmation of belief in the United Nations on the part of individuals and the P.-T. A. as a whole. The group also endorsed the teachings of appreciation for conservation of natural resources and methods of accomplishing conservation.

Delegates approved a resolution for federal aid to education that meets general policies of state control, equalization and aid to public tax-supported schools channeled through the United States Office of Education with maximum local control.

The Association endorsed Local Public Health Units Act, sponsored by the National Congress of P.-T.-A.; legislation to provide federal aid to assist slum clearance projects and low-rent housing, and the Public Library Demonstration Bill now before congress.

Pertaining to state legislation, the P.-T. A. approved the appointment of the State Superintendent of Education by the State Board of Education as recommended by the Law Institute's Commission on Revision of the State Constitution.

The association also approved distribution of state school funds on the basis of average daily attendance and support of the merit system in government with added provision for the restoration of Civil Service by the State Legislature in May.

Regarding juvenile protection, the P.-T. A. supported the following recommendation of the Juvenile Court Commission; Revision of the Juvenile Court Law, provision for probationary service for juveniles to the courts and establishment of a permanent Youth Commission. The group also voted to continue its support of the Child Labor Law.

The convention provided to petition the government to set up a commission to study problems involved in sex offenses with a view to establishing social and legal controls for these offenses. It also approved petitioning the legislature to pass legislation prohibiting the running at large of livestock on public highways of the state.

The P.-T. A. endorsed the program of the Louisiana State Library and support for more adequate housing of the library, as well as for library extension. The group favored permissive legislation for financial support for local public health units.

Mrs. Fred Benton of Baton Rouge, first vice-president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association, clarified many problems when she addressed the general assembly on P.-T. A. legislation.

Regarding federal aid to schools, Mrs. Benton explained that the National P.-T. A. endorses the principle that federal appropriations should be made according to need, with maximum local control.

The Public Unit acts are Senate Bill 522 and H. R. 5865. These bills, not to be confused with what is commonly referred to as socialized medicine, would provide federal funds to assist states in developing and maintaining full-time local health units.

Eight more states need to ratify the child labor measure, H. R. 5856, strengthening the child labor provision of the Fair Labor Standards act. The chief intent of the revision is to make evasion of the law more difficult; to remove inconsistences, such as the section that permitted children under sixteen to work for their parents in hazardous occupations.

Two amendments to child labor law are supported by the P.-T. A. One will make it mandatory that a health certificate be obtained before persons under fifteen can engage in street trades. The second will prohibit those under sixteen from working where alcoholic beverages are served.

The Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association is interested in having the state superintendent of education appointed by the all-elected State Board of Education for the following reasons: The new method would remove most of the political pressure from the superintendent; all qualified educators could be considered for the position, rather than those few who offer themselves as candidates; the divided authority now existing between the State Board of Education and the superintendent would be corrected by having the superintendent responsible to the board for school administration, and the board in turn responsible to the people.

Centenarian Shortage Seen

At each United States census in the last 100 years, the enumerators have ascertained the age of every individual. The 17th decennial census in April will follow this century-old pattern, states Dallas Sims, fifth district director.

The 1940 census enumerated 3,679 persons who were reported as being 100 years of age or more. Those who had achievde or passed the Biblical threescore years and ten numbered 5,212,657. Of these, 4,073,514 were reported as being in their 70's, 1,051,403 in their 80's, and 84,061 in their 90's.

In 1950 the numbers in these age groups will probably be slightly larger. Perhaps as many as seven million persons will be enumerated as 70 years old or over. Few will have lived a full century. The chances that any of the 3,679 enumerated as centenarians in 1940 will have survived during the decade ending with April 1, 1950 the official date of the 17th decennial census, are considered almost nil.

With the increase in the average expectation of life a greater proportion of the population is living to a ripe old age. The human life span has not increased much, if at all, however.

The chance that any given one of the 140,000 enumerators employed for the 1950 census will enumerate anyone in the centenarian age class are very remote, census bureau officials say, pointing out that the force of about 120.000 enumerators employed in 1940 discovered only one centenarian per each 33 enumerators, or about 28 such oldsters per million of population. Even these figures may be too large because of the tendency of respondents to exaggerate their age slightly because of pride or lack of knowledge as to the exact age.

From 1942 to 1948 Americans ate an average of 148 pounds of meat per year.

Running Water Stopped By Closed Door Policy

PIERRE, S. D., April 22.—(AP)—A census-taker met a farmer from flood-bedeviled Sully county.

She asked him the standard question: "Do you have running water in your home?"

"Nope," said the farmer, freshly chased from his home by an overflowing stream, "But if I opened the door I would."

Larsen Says State Department Criticism Constructive

The president of Time Magazine, Inc., over coffee and desert in his hotel room at Hotel Virginia made one statement which justified completely—if there were no other reason—the need for a great surge of interest in education.

Roy Larsen, fiftyish and speaking in an up-state New York accent which seemed academically precise among southern drawls, said that our state department must realize that the people want to know what is going on regarding foreign policy and that it cannot fail to supply the people with information about our policies toward other nations.

He believed that the juggernaut of criticism aimed at Secretary of State Dean Acheson and the state department had had good results; he said, "They have gotten rid of lots of people," who needed to be replaced.

Mr. Larsen, a Harvard man and the parent of the March of Time, came to Monroe by plane from Atlanta, "my old stomping ground in World War I when I was a second lieutenant." He spoke Friday night at the Parent-Teacher Association Convention on "Citizens Role in Public Education."

At the informal meal-time interview, Mr. Larsen spoke of education primarily. His view on Secretary of State Acheson's coinage of "total diplomacy" was a by-product of his enthusiasm for public interest in education. It came toward the end of a discussion of what groups throughout the United States were doing in fostering greater interest in schools.

He said that he thought when Acheson used the term "total diplomacy," he was expressing the hope that the American press would accept foreign policies being engineered, and write from that standpoint. "Of course, foreign policy in Asia has been nonexistent." He pointed out that "we went to war with Japan for the same reason that we are now having trouble with Russia—the conquest of China. That is what Japan wanted in the first place."

Speaking briefly of the newsmagazine of which he is president, Larsen stated: we have been criticized for editorializing. I do not think there is any such thing as "objective reporting."

"When Time was first formed, we got together and made a list of our prejudices. We were very much for the League of Nations. We have policies just like other publications. We have no axe to grind. Our basic policy is to keep thousands of American people informed."

The newest thing at Time headquarters is the recent launching of the Canadian edition. In Canada, Time circulation is greater than that in the United States in proportion to population; it has the biggest circulation of any newspaper or magazine in Canada.

Currently, Time has a greater national circulation than it had world-wide before the war, Larsen said.

Getting down to the subject which brought him to Monroe, Larsen commended the spirit of the Louisiana P.-T. A. In particular did he point out the work of Mrs. Horace Heitman of Ponchatoula—which he kept pronouncing "Punchtatoola".

Mrs. Heitman had written Larsen immediately following the formation of the national citizens commission for public schools of which he is head. That was a year ago. Since then, Mrs. Heitman has united varied groups interested in education into one front in her home town.

Through the commission's service—which serves as a catalytic agent for hundreds of others—Dr. Benjamine Fine, educational editor of the New York Times, was directed to Louisiana. He is doing a series of articles on citizen participation in our schools. Dr. Fine is currently in New Orleans working with interested groups.

New Weapons More Terrible Than World Has Ever Seen

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Johnson said today that the United States has speeded up development of new weapons more terrible than any the world has ever seen.

Johnson declared a belief that this country leads in fashioning a variety of new arms that "may mean the difference between victory and defeat in war."

In his semi-annual report, the secretary told America that its atomic arsenal is "no longer a small number of bombs of a single type and size."

He also said that America's trimmed down fighting forces are proficient and are geting "equipment superior to that of any other nation."

He disclosed that Russio's atomic explosion last September, coming far earlier than had been expected, had stepped up U. S. development of new war tools that "surpass in destructive power any arms previously known." He did not explain the nature of these weapons.

The defense department report for the last half of 1949 heavily accented the importance of new means of destruction. It also highlighted the conservation of military man power and the elimination of activities "not strictly necessary" for national defense.

(Johnson released on Feb. 28 the chapter of the report dealing with the economy program which he said would enable the defense department to cut aproximately $1,2000,000,000 from the president's defense budget for the year ending June 30.)

At the end of 1949, armed services manpower totaled 1,551,000, a net decrease of 2,000 oficers and 63,000 enlister men in six months.

At year's end, the U. S. had 36,000 military airplanes, with 5,400 more being obtained with funds already authorized. Johnson also reported that 11,000 of the existing aircraft were fighters, 2,000 of them jet powered.

Johnson noted that Rusia's achievement of an atomic explosion "came earlier than expected" and forced the U. S. to revise the timetable for improving its defenses.

Reports of army, navy and air force secretaries filled in some details of how reduced military funds are affecting the fighting services.

Air Force Secretary Symington, who leaves this post April 24, reported that the last six months of 1949 completed the "downward" adjustment to the 48 group fixed by the president.

He said this paring down meant the inactivation of seven groups already being formed earlier in the year, inactivation of six air force installations and the complete closing of eight additional installations.

The air force added 782 new planes in the last half of 1949, Symington said, to its inventory total of 22,000, about 13,000 of the total were in use, and 7,500 of the 9,000 inactive status planes were in storage.

Symington asserted that more than 80 per cent of the air force's 10,250 combat planes are World War II types that will be obselete by June 30, 1951.

Secretary Matthews reported that the navy at the end of 1949 met its requirements "fairly well," but it could use more aircraft carriers "to advantage."

He noted that 39 vessels had been stricken from the navy list in the six months period. He said navy policy is to inactivate or eliminate all shore facilities that are not essential for support of the operating forces, for approved research or for "early mobilization."

King Farouk Said Already Married To Narriman Sedek

DAMASCUS, Syria, April 22—(AP)—A generally reliable Arabic newspaper in Beirut, Lebanon, published a story last Tuesday saying that King Farouk of Egypt and Narriman Sadek already are married. Up to today there has been no denial or protest about the story from any official Egyptian source.

The newspaper, Beirut, said the beautiful 17-year-old Egyptian girl has become the king's legal wife and added that it had learned, "from sources very near to King Farouk," that there will be an official announcement May 6. That day is observed in Egypt as Accession Day, the anniversary of the beginning of Farouk's reign.

The headline on the story said "Farouk and Narriman married." A picture of the girl accompanying the story was captioned "The new queen."

In the past, the Egyptian foreign office has been extremely touchy concerning reports about the romance of the Egyptian king. Persons familiar with the policy of the foreign office said the lack of any denial or protest in this case seemed to indicate the story could be true.

The editor of the paper in Beirut said he had heard of no protest or denial from Egypt. In fact, on Thursday he published another story saying the bride had ordered six gowns from Paris in preparation for May 6.

Any speculaiton or comment about the story would be impossible from Cairo. There is a strict censorship there on the king's personal life.

The story of the king's romance with Miss Sadek, as it reached the outside world last December from several sources, reads like a page from the Arabian Nights. She had been engaged to Zaki Hashem, a young Egyptian economist, and fell under the royal eye when she went to a jewelry store in Cairo with Hashem to select a ring.

Two More Solons Want Slash In Recovery Funds

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—Two more senators—Kem (R.-Mo.) and Ellender (D.-La.)—today demanded deep slashes in the $3,100,000,000 European recovery funds for the next fiscal year.

Calling attention to the mounting national debt, Senator Kem said he will press for a billion-dollar cut in the authorization now pending in the senate.

"It would be the height of folly for us to continue to throw our money around in Europe like drunken sailors," Kem said in a statement.

Senator Ellender proposed a half-billion dollar cut saying it would "eliminate a few frills and luxuries hidden in the program."

Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee and Majority Leader Lucas (D.-Ill.) appeared unworried about new attempts to whittle the program.

Instead, Lucas was pressing senators to agree on a definite time for voting after a week of debate, he hopes to get the bill through the senate and back to the house next week.

Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the senate G.O.P. policy committee, has promised to vote for a $6,000,000,000 reduction advocated by Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa). Connally said Hickenlooper was the only member of the 13-man senate foreign relations committee who wanted a reduction.

Kem said he also would push two other amendments:

"1. To prevent the funnelling of war materials from the United States to Russia and the satellites through the Marshall Plan countries.

"2. To shut off further socialization of European industry with the assistance of Marshall Plan countries."

The United States now prohibits shipments of war materials to Russia and her satellites. Kem said he will present data indicating "a heavy traffic" in such materials from Marshall Plan nations to Communist nations.

Kem said his "anti-socialization" amendment would ban aid to England or any other country "which in the future nationalizes or socializes a basic industry."

A similar Kem proposal was rejected 62 to 20 by the senate last year.

In addition to the $3,100,000,000 to continue the Marshall Plan, the senate bill also would authorize $100,000,000 for aid in the China area, $100,000,000 for the anti-Communist forces in orea, $45,000,000 to begin President Truman's point 4 program of technical and scientific aid to backward areas of the world, and $27,450,000 for Arab refugees.

Irene Reid Addresses Journalists

BATON ROUGE, La., April 22—(AP)—Fayette Copeland, head of the University of Oklahoma School of Journalism, was elected president of the Southwest Journalism Congress at the final session of the organization's annual meeting here today.

Copeland's school will be host to the congress in Norman, Okla., next year, with the convening date tentatively set for April 6.

Other officers elected were Frank Rigler, vice-president and Robert Chambers, re-elected secretary-treasurer. Both are members of the faculty of Texas State College for Women.

Student officers for the congress include Dick Mayo, University of Oklahoma, president; Bob Moax, Hardin-Simmons University, vice-president, and Paula Fix, Texas Technological College, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Irene Simms Reid, advertising manager of the Monroe News-Star and Morning World, discussed today the requirements for success in the advertising field.

She said advertising workers should keep uppermost the interest of their clients, and stressed importance of adequate training and constant study to keep abreast of developments.

Warren Ogden, editor of the Times-Picayune Magazine, discussed the growth of the newspaper magazine from its origin in sensational Sunday supplements. Significant developments, he said, have been improved mechanical methods, such the rotogravure process replacing letter press, and reduction in the size of the magazine.

Gov. Long Returns To Winnfield

NEW ORLEANS, April 22—(AP)—The Times-Picayune reported tonight the Gov. Earl Long, who has been convalescing at the Governor's mansion in Baton Rouge after a recent heart attack, returned to his farm at Winnfield, La., this weekend.

The paper said the Governor, Mrs. Long and several friends went to Winnfield yesterday and will return to Baton Rouge tomorrow. The Governor suffered the heart attack in Winnfield Feb. 3 and later went to Baton Rouge.

The paper said a relative of the Governor told a correspondent that "Earl's just here for the weekend at his place. He wanted to come back to see how things were going. He's not getting around much, though."

The paper said Dr. Robert Bernhard of New Orleans, the Governor's personal physician, said he was not aware that Gov. Long had gone to Winnfield.

The doctor was quoted as saying that Gov. Long has been going for drives in recent days and has "recuperated marvelously well." Dr. Bernhard was also quoted as saying the governor had been a good patient and that it was safe for him to take the trip.

The governor's office in Baton Rouge declined to say where he was today.

Dr. 'Who Never Refused A Call' Given Honor

DE QUINCY, La., April 22—(AP)—A 72-year-old doctor "who never refused a call' was honored today for his half-century of service to the people of this area.

He is Dr. George Lyons, who came in 1900 to this timber and railroad community.

The sponsors of Dr. George Lyons Day say he has delivered more than 5,000 babies in his 50 years of practice. The registration for the program showed at least 1,000 of them were in the large audience that paid tribute to the doctor.

The day's activities included a barbecue luncheon, a 50-unit parade, speeches by State Sen. Gilbert Hennigan of Fields and others, music by a 90-piece band, and a pageant presented by high school students. It was based on the doctor's life.

Dr. Stakeley Hatchette of Lake Charles, president of the Calcasieu Parish Medical Society, was scheduled to speak at a testimonial dinner tonight.

More Interest In Youth Clubs Urged

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover today urged a wider interest in the Boys' and Girls' Clubs of America as a means of improving the lot of the nation's underprivileged children.

"The surroundings in congested areas of cities and their effect on the lives of girls and boys form a marginal black spot in America," he said.

K. C. Police Boardman Quits As Inquiry Nears

KANSAS CITY, April 22.—(AP)—One of the five members of Kansas City's police board quit today in the face of a torrent of criticism resulting from the gang slaying of political boss Charles Binaggio.

"The abuse and incorrect statements made by certain persons isn't worth it," declared Sheridan E. Farrell, dapper manager of a big (Phillips) hotel.

While Farrell was announcing his resignation, a delegation from the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce conferred behind closed doors with Governor Forrest Smith at Jefferson City. Their subject: The police situation.

Secrecy was invoked by both sides after the two hour session. The governor refused to comment. Albert R. Waters, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said both sides made recommendations, but he wouldn't elaborate.

There was speculation that Farrell's resignation might be followed by sweeping changes in the Kansas City police setup. However, exactly one week ago, the police board and department had won a clamp of approval from the governor.

Criticism of Farrell centered on charge by the Kansas City Star and other persons that he favored opening the city up for some gambling.

The gambling angle brought from Missouri Attorney General J. E. Taylor a long telegram to a senate subcommittee investigating crime. He said his state needed federal help in controlling betting on races.

Taylor's opposite number in Kansas, Harold R. Fatzer, swooped yesterday on race betting parlors in four cities, including neighboring Kansas City, Kas. Sixteen men are under arrest in the Sunflower state on charges of being owners and operators of gambling equipment.

The Kansas City Star said the raids were called as a warning to bigtime gamblers who might be eyeing the state as a fertile field. Kansans don't want racketeers moving in now that the heat has been placed on Kansas City following the slayings of Binaggio and his henchman, Charles Gargotta, only 17 days ago.

Farrell, who came to Kansas City in 1932 from Cincinnati, had been appointed to the police board by Governor Smith last May 3. There are three other appointed members, J. L. (Tuck) Milligan, president, Hampton S. Chambers and R. Robert Cohn. Mayor William Kemp is an ex-officio member. The mayor has not been under fire.

NEW P.-T. A. OFFICERS

Officers installed at the closing meeting Saturday of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association convention here include, left, Mrs. J. S. Goff of Shreveport, fourth vice-president, and Mrs. J. H. Stringer of Baton Rouge, president. Not shown in the picture is Mrs. W. S. Wiedorn of New Orleans, third vice-president. These officials were elected for a three-year term by the twenty-seventh annual convention delegates numbering 444.

Infant Daughter Of Two Hitch-hikers Critically Ill

A three-week-old baby girl whose parents are without employment hitch-hiking cross country was reported in critical condition at the Charity Hospital here Saturday where she is being treated for malnutrition.

The baby was taken to a Rayville physician who reported she was near death late Friday after a traveling man noticed the young baby's condition.

Hospital attendants said the baby had not been fed in several days and it would take about a week or longer for her to recover.

Bobby Coke, who travels with the Empire Producing Company out of Kansas City, Mo., noticed a couple hitch hiking in Rayville with a bundle and discovered the small baby. He and Jimmy Allen, of Monroe, after consulting a Rayville physician brought the infant to the Charity Hospital here.

Coke said he first noticed the couple and bundle when the woman took her last three pennies from a handkerchief and handed it to her husband who purchased an onion which they both ate.

The infant's father, William Leroy Wilson, 40, is an epileptic and had three attacks enroute to Monroe, Coke said. He pointed out, that he was looking for any kind of farm or construction work to help take care of his family.

The baby's 30-year-old mother said she gave birth to Margaret in a Dallas hospital April 2nd and has been hitch-hiking with her since that time. The Wilson couple stated that they had no home and their two other children were being kept by a sister who has 10 children of her own in Spartanburg, N. C.

Coke pointed out that the couple did not ask for money, or charity. Instead, he said, the man expressed the desire for employment.

Housing Law Of 1950 Will Boost New Home Building

By David G. Bareuther

Home building, now at an all-time high, is getting an added boost from the housing law of 1950, just passed by congress. Authorizing 30-year mortgages, this legislation greatly broadens the home purchasing power of families in the $50 to $100 weekly salary brackets.

At the same time it ties in with the refund of GI insurance money, which is expected to add $2,800,000,000 to personal incomes by the middle of this year.

The Construction Research Bureau of New York, representing manufacturers of building equipment has completed a survey among veterans. It brings monthly cates that 19 per cent intend using their GI insurance refunds to buy and furnish homes of their own.

This survey shows that close to 40,000 applications per month are now being made for GI home loans, in contrast to a low of 20,500 in March of last year.

Lower Monthly Payments

The 30-year mortgage, authorized by the federal law, is expected to increase greatly home buying among veterans. It brins monthly payments down much lower than under existing mortgages arrangements.

The National Association of Home Builders points out that the new law provides strong incentives for home buyers in the $6,000 to $9,000 price range. New homes financed with FHA insured mortgages can be purchased under a plan calling for $500 cash down on a $10,000 four-bedroom house for non-veterans.

Small Homes Boosted

The law provides a maximum mortgage of $6,650 on a two-bedroom house. The owner puts down a minimum of five per cent cash. Another $950 is added to the mortgage for each bedroom up to four. The FHA has the authority to raise the mortgage limits in high cost construction areas.

Prospective home buyers in low-cost construction areas, particularly rural sections and the south, southwest and far west, will benefit substantially from another new type of financing provided in the law.

This is the section that allows builders to erect soundly built small houses costing $6,000 and less. On these the buyer pays only five per cent down, or $300, with the remaining monthly payments spread over 30 years.

Construction standards must measure up to the regular FHA specifications. Complete mineral woll insulation, for example, is one quality of construction to be desired.

However, the new law liberalizes other items. There is no requirement as to paved streets, curbs and sidewalks, or landscaping, proximity to schools and transportation, or other standard FHA requirements for higher cost homes.

Slight Rise In Cost Of Living Is Reported

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—A slight rise in living cost, mainly due to higher food prices, was reported today in the government.

The bureau of labor statistics said its living cost index increased three-tenths of one per cent from February to March. Foods, after declining for three straight months, rose six-tenths of one per cent.

What Next?

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Diplomatic sources are wondering if the United States is prepared to carry its case to the United Nations if Russia doesn't react satisfactorily to its protest against the shooting down of the American plane in the Baltic. The U. S. once threatened Yugoslavia with the U. N. treatment in a similar situation, and Yugoslavia promptly truckled.

P.-T. A. Installs Officers; Shreveport Host In '51

Shreveport will be host to the Louisiana Parent-Teachers Association at its 1951 convention on April 19-21. The decision was made at a post board meeting following the close of the three-day conference Saturday noon.

Installation of three officers was included in the last general session Saturday. Mrs. J. H. Stringer of Baton Rouge was installed as president of the state organization; Mrs. J. S. Goff of Shreveport as fourth vice-president, and Mrs. W. S. Wiedorn of New Orleans as third vice-president.

Since the Parent-Teacher organization does not elect all of its officers simultaneously, only three positions had to be filled by balloting at this year's conference.

Convention delegates, which numbered 444 members, also adopted at the closing meeting several resolutions pertaining to federal and state legislation.

The organization endorsed a vigorous re-affirmation of belief in the United Nations on the part of individuals and the P.-T. A. as a whole. The group also endorsed the teachings of appreciation for conservation of natural resources and methods of accomplishing conservation.

Delegates approved a resolution for federal aid to education that meets general policies of state control, equalization and aid to public tax-supported schools channeled through the United States Office of Education with maximum local control.

The Association endorsed Local Public Health Units Act, sponsored by the National Congress of P.-T. A.; legislation to provide federal aid to assist slum clearance projects and low-rent housing, and the Public Library Demonstration Bill now before congress.

Pertaining to state legislation, the P.-T. A. approved the appointment of the State Superintendent of Education by the State Board of Education as recommended by the Law Institute's Commission on Revision of the State Constitution.

The association also approved distribution of state school funds on the basis of average daily attendance and support of the merit system in government with added provision for the restoration of Civil Service by the State Legislature in May.

Regarding juvenile protection, the P.-T. A. supported the following recommendation of the Juvenile Court Commission; Revision of the Juvenile Court Law, provision for probationary service for juveniles to the courts and establishment of a permanent Youth Commission. The group also voted to continue its support of the Child Labor Law.

The convention provided to petition the government to set up a commission to study problems involved in sex offenses with a view to establishing social and legal controls for these offenses. It also approved petitioning the legislature to pass legislation prohibiting the running at large of livestock on public highways of the state.

The P.-T. A. endorsed the program of the Louisiana State Library and support for more adequate housing of the library, as well as for library extension. The group favored permissive legislation for financial support for local public health units.

Mrs. Fred Benton of Baton Rouge, first vice-president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association, clarified many problems when she addressed the general assembly on P.-T. A. legislation.

Regarding federal aid to schools, Mrs. Benton explained that the National P.-T. A. endorses the principle that federal appropriations should be made according to need, with maximum local control.

The Public Unit acts are Senate Bill 522 and H. R. 5865. These bills, not to be confused with what is commonly referred to as socialized medicine, would provide federal funds to assist states in developing and maintaining full-time local health units.

Eight more states need to ratify the child labor measure, H. R. 5856, strengthening the child labor provision of the Fair Labor Standards act. The chief intent of the revision is to make evasion of the law more difficult; to remove inconsistences, such as the section that permitted children under sixteen to work for their parents in hazardous occupations.

Two amendments to child labor law are supported by the P.-T. A. One will make it mandatory that a health certificate be obtained before persons under fifteen can engage in street trades. The second will prohibit those under sixteen from working where alcoholic beverages are served.

The Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association is interested in having the state superintendent of education appointed by the all-elected State Board of Education for the following reasons: The new method would remove most of the political pressure from the superintendent; all qualified educators could be considered for the position, rather than those few who offer themselves as candidates; the divided authority now existing between the State Board of Education and the superintendent would be corrected by having the superintendent responsible to the board for school administration, and the board in turn responsible to the people.

Centenarian Shortage Seen

At each United States census in the last 100 years, the enumerators have ascertained the age of every individual. The 17th decennial census in April will follow this century-old pattern, states Dallas Sims, fifth district director.

The 1940 census enumerated 3,679 persons who were reported as being 100 years of age or more. Those who had achievde or passed the Biblical threescore years and ten numbered 5,212,657. Of these, 4,073,514 were reported as being in their 70's, 1,051,403 in their 80's, and 84,061 in their 90's.

In 1950 the numbers in these age groups will probably be slightly larger. Perhaps as many as seven million persons will be enumerated as 70 years old or over. Few will have lived a full century. The chances that any of the 3,679 enumerated as centenarians in 1940 will have survived during the decade ending with April 1, 1950 the official date of the 17th decennial census, are considered almost nil.

With the increase in the average expectation of life a greater proportion of the population is living to a ripe old age. The human life span has not increased much, if at all, however.

The chance that any given one of the 140,000 enumerators employed for the 1950 census will enumerate anyone in the centenarian age class are very remote, census bureau officials say, pointing out that the force of about 120,000 enumerators employed in 1940 discovered only one centenarian per each 33 enumerators, or about 28 such oldsters per million of population. Even these figures may be too large because of the tendency of respondents to exaggerate their age slightly because of pride or lack of knowledge as to the exact age.

From 1942 to 1948 Americans ate an average of 148 pounds of meat per year.

Running Water Stopped By Closed Door Policy

PIERRE, S. D., April 22.—(AP)—A census-taker met a farmer from flood-bedeviled Sully county.

She asked him the standard question: "Do you have running water in your home?"

"Nope," said the farmer, freshly chased from his home by an overflowing stream, "But if I opened the door I would."

Larsen Says State Department Criticism Constructive

The president of Time Magazine, Inc., over coffee and desert in his hotel room at Hotel Virginia made one statement which justified completely—if there were no other reason—the need for a great surge of interest in education.

Roy Larsen, fiftyish and speaking in an up-state New York accent which seemed academically precise among southern drawls, said that our state department must realize that the people want to know what is going on regarding foreign policy and that it cannot fail to supply the people with information about our policies toward other nations.

He believed that the juggernaut of criticism aimed at Secretary of State Dean Acheson and the state department had had good results; he said, "They have gotten rid of lots of people," who needed to be replaced.

Mr. Larsen, a Harvard man and the parent of the March of Time, came to Monroe by plane from Atlanta, "my old stomping ground in World War I when I was a second lieutenant." He spoke Friday night at the Parent-Teacher Association Convention on "Citizens Role in Public Education."

At the informal meal-time interview, Mr. Larsen spoke of education primarily. His view on Secretary of State Acheson's coinage of "total diplomacy" was a by-product of his enthusiasm for public interest in education. It came toward the end of a discussion of what groups throughout the United States were doing in fostering greater interest in schools.

He said that he thought when Acheson used the term "total diplomacy," he was expressing the hope that the American press would accept foreign policies being engineered, and write from that standpoint. "Of course, foreign policy in Asia has been nonexistent." He pointed out that "we went to war with Japan for the same reason that we are now having trouble with Russia—the conquest of China. That is what Japan wanted in the first place."

Speaking briefly of the newsmagazine of which he is president, Larsen stated: we have been criticized for editorializing. I do not think there is any such thing as "objective reporting."

"When Time was first formed, we got together and made a list of our prejudices. We were very much for the League of Nations. We have policies just like other publications. We have no axe to grind. Our basic policy is to keep thousands of American people informed."

The newest thing at Time headquarters is the recent launching of the Canadian edition. In Canada, Time circulation is greater than that in the United States in proportion to population; it has the biggest circulation of any newspaper or magazine in Canada.

Currently, Time has a greater national circulation than it had world-wide before the war, Larsen said.

Getting down to the subject which brought him to Monroe, Larsen commended the spirit of the Louisiana P.-T. A. In particular did he point out the work of Mrs. Horace Heitman of Ponchatoula—which he kept pronouncing "Punchtatoola".

Mrs. Heitman had written Larsen immediately following the formation of the national citizens commission for public schools of which he is head. That was a year ago. Since then, Mrs. Heitman has united varied groups interested in education into one front in her home town.

Through the commission's service—which serves as a catalytic agent for hundreds of others—Dr. Benjamine Fine, educational editor of the New York Times, was directed to Louisiana. He is doing a series of articles on citizen participation in our schools. Dr. Fine is currently in New Orleans working with interested groups.

N. J. C. Will Play Host Role On 'Senior Day' On May 2

Northeast Junior College will play host to high school seniors throughout this area on Tuesday, May 2, when the institution celebrates its annual Senior Day.

In response to invitations mailed to principals of all schools and members of graduating classes, the college is looking forward to entertaining about 1,500 visitors on this special occasion. W. L. Perkins, head of the commerce department and chairman of the general committee in charge of plans for the event, reports that all principals in the 5th Congressional district have accepted Senior Day invitations.

Tentative arrangements call for a full program, beginning at 9 a.m. in Brown Hall auditorium, where N. J. C. students will present a program marked by variety in entertainment. This phase of the day's activities will be directed by James Parkerson, instructor in speech.

Visitors will then have opportunity to visit the various departments to see exhibits or to inspect equipment. They also may have conferences with the registrar, B. S. Hamner, during specified periods of the day, to discuss college curricula or credits.

The noon feature will be the big barbecue at Brown Stadium. Not only will there be lunch prepared for the visitors but a program will be presented by the high school seniors. Twelve schools are to participate in this novelty.

Business men in the Twin Cities are having a share in the day's program by providing the barbecue, Mr. Perkins announced. Faculty members in charge of this phase of entertainment are: L. L. Price, head of the agriculture department, who is chairman; Miss Frances Kelso, assistant professor of home economics, and A. S. Huffman, director of the department of health and physical education.

Serving as guides for the day will be the Purple Jackets and Gold Jackets.

Members of the general committee in charge of the affair comprise, besides Mr. Perkins: Mrs. Mabel Slay, chairman of the committee on student affairs at N. J. C., A. L. Tatum, James Parkerson, L. L. Price, Maj. Hugh W. McClary and Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl.

Pupils of grade seven, Ouachita Parish School, were asked to write a composition on any subject they might choose. One of the pupils, Robert Swinney, wrote on "A Trip to the Moon" and here it is reproduced.

"It was back in the year 2250, April 2, when this particular flight was made. We started out at 4:30 a.m. My co-pilot flew the ship across the continent a time or two to warm up. After leaving New York for five minutes, we passed over a familiar, enormous hole in the ground which was Russia after one of her bombs backfired back in 1952.

"We spotted an enemy rocket ship which shot an atomic bomb at us but we shot a hydrogen bomb at it and it didn't give us any more trouble.

"Going by way of Mars, we arrived on the moon at 8:40 a.m. the same day. We went to an automatic restaurant which uses radio controlled steel robots. My co-pilot doesn't like them and he calls them overgrown asperin boxes.

"Leaving the moon station at 10:30 a.m. with our cargo we arrived back at New York at 2:40 p.m. I took the rocket subway to my home town in Arizona. After a few minutes ride I was home again, safe and sound. I took the moon flight because it isn't very exciting."

Taking the census is remunerative to a certain degree. It is also at times a bit perilous. At least so admits Dallas Mims, director for the fifth district.

One ambitious solicitor experienced a slight injury. A small dog slipped up on her while she was getting data from one family. It bit her in the hip and she had to be given medical treatment.

But this was a tame experience to that which another encountered. This woman knocked at a door and when it was opened by the lady of the house, informed her that she was confronted by a census taker. The resident didn't waste time but called shrilly for her dogs and set them on the visitor, who had to run for her car to avoid being bitten.

A third enumerator rang a door bell and a man appeared. She told him she was the census taker and could she come in. He told her he was sorry but as his wife was away she would not be permitted to enter in her absence. (Well trained husband, that man.)

Another enumerator had called at one home six times. Then she came the seventh time and found the family eating supper. They told her to come back another time. But she replied that she had been to so much inconvenience that she would just sit onthedoorsteptill would just sit on the doorstep till the meal was completed.

And one spinster of uncertain age asked timorously if the census woman could find a husband for her. She was told that the best that could be done was to give figures of how many men are unmarried and how many women have no husbands.

The Optimist Club is sponsor of the famous Denton Boy Choir which will be heard at the Ouachita Parish High School Monday at 8 p.m. This group has made over 200 appearances in the past three years. Once heard their marvelous music will never be forgotten, state those who have been favored by attending one of their programs.

Their programs cover the entire field of choral music and have delighted concert-goers wherever they have traveled.

This newest boy choir in the American concert field has accumulated a great wealth in repertoire and experience which explains why it is acclaimed for its artistry and versatility by an ever-growing public.

SOUTHERN R. R.

engers unable to reach their destinations or clear the Southern System's lines by the strike deadline.

Chairman Francis A. O'Neill, Jr., of the National Mediation board, which administrates the railway labor law, said he knew of no steps planned by the government to avert the union's strike.

The issue of an extra fireman on Diesels—locomotives now manned by two men, one an engineer and one a fireman—has been turned down by two White House fact-finding boards.

The union claims the second fireman is needed for safe operation of the Diesels, but both fact-finding boards said this was not so. Norris of the Southern system said today the extra fireman demand is only a "make work" device.

"We need this extra fireman as urgently as a two-legged man needs three shoes," Norris said. "And we have no intention of being coerced into yielding to this demand which two impartial fact-finding boards, one appointed by President Roosevelt and the other by President Truman, have both said is utterly 'devoid of merit.'"

The strike threat supplies also to the Pennsylvania system, west of Harrisburg, Pa.; the entire Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe System, and the New York Central west of Buffalo, N. Y., and three N.Y.C. divisions, the Michigan Central west of the Detroit river, the Big Four and the Ohio Central Lines.

The Association of American Railroads said only the Southern system among the strike-threatened railroads has definitely decided on an embargo. In New York, a spokesman for the New York Central said a decision might be made by Monday. The brotherhood is trying to get all the railroads to accept the extra fireman on Diesels. But its present policy is to try to win the concession on a few key railroads at a time, thereby seeking to avoid White House seizure that a nationwide strike emergency might incur.

The rail unions feel that a precedent for letting strikes on individual railroads run without government interference was established in the two-month strike on the Missouri Pacific last year. The unions substantially won their demands in that case.

Southern Railway system officials said their contemplated embargo Monday was based on a conclusion they would be unable to operate trains if the firemen walk out. They pointed out that the brotherhood of locomotive engineers has announced they will not replace any striking firemen.

Miss Woods' injuries included possible fractured ribs, a fractured wrist, scalp lacerations and bruises.

Shelton sustained severe lacerations on his nose and knee. Miss Bishop's condition was termed "good". Hospital attendants said she had no broken bones and was being treated for shock and bruises.

Monroe police said the accident occured when Shelton's car, a 1938 Ford, crashed through a railroad gate into a box car which was crossing DeSiard. The impact caused the automobile to spin around into a post on the north side of DeSiard street, police said.

Switchman, R. L. Phifer, of 223 Pear street, told officers he was standing between the gate and box car trying to flag the car with his lantern. He said he flagged the car until it got within about 200 feet of the train and then ran out to the side to avoid being hit.

Investigating officers reported from all indications the automobile was traveling at a very fast rate of speed.

Foreman G. W. Morehead, of Route 4, West Monroe, stated that a red flare was burning on the end of the box car and one in the center of DeSiard street.

The car was traveling west on DeSiard street and the Missouri Pacific engine switching cars on the A. and L. M. switch line which crosses DeSiard.

Voters Registration Shy 27 Per Cent Of Number In 1948

1F—2-24—VOTERS REGISTRATI

SHREVEPORT, La., April 22.—(AP) — With the state-wide Democratic primary about 90 days away, the Shreveport Times made a survey of voter registration in Louisiana parishes and reported tonight the number "totals about 73-percent" of the 1948 registration at this time.

Registration began Jan. 1, 1949, and voters may register for the July 25 Democratic primary up until 30-days before the election.

U. S. Senator Russell Long will seek re-nomination, and all U. S. representatives come up for renomination similarly. Additionally various local municipal officers will be chosen in some cities.

The Democratic primary nomination is tantamount to election in Louisiana.

The Times made its parish-by-parish survey this week, and reported present registration totalled about 656,360 compared to 924,705 registered to vote in the 1948 primary when the governor and various other state officers were chosen. This is approximately 70 per cent of the 1948 total.

Five parishes were not heard from by the paper in its survey. Those were Beauregard, Plaquemines, St. Bernard, St. Charles and St. John the Baptist. The Times said in 1948 these parishes had a combined total registration of 29,691.

Similar sized parishes elsewhere in the state reported about a 50-per cent registration at this time compared to their 1948 total, the Times said. Thus the Times halved their combined 29,691 total in 1948, added that half to the 655,360 present total for the other parishes and reported the per centage for the state at this time would approximate 73 per cent of the 1948 registration total.

No similar past survey made about 90 days before election day is available.

However the Times commented "Local political observers looked on the present total as rather small in view of the fact that new registration has been going on for 16 months and that a United States senate seat and all seats in the house of representatives will be at stake in the July primaries, as well as various posts. Also, presumably, there has been increase in population since 1948."

The Times said its survey showed a larger percentage of registration in cities with recent city campaigns than in rural parishes.

The paper said Orleans parish (New Orleans) has 206,800 registered now compared to 208,436 in 1948; Caddo (Shreveport), 27,733 compared to 43,136 in 1948; Ouachita (Monroe) 17,553 compared to 28,219 in 1948; Rapides (Alexandria), 28,293 compared to 29,899 in 1948; East Baton Rouge (Baton Rouge), 33,439 compared to 45,333; Calcasieu (Lake Charles), 22,334 now compared to 29,694 in 1948.

Walter Chachere Trial Is Delayed

The trial of Walter A Chachere, former Winnsboro trade school operator, on charges of defrauding the government through the veterans administration, was continued in federal court in Monroe until May 8.

The case was originally expected to go to the jury on Friday, but a conflict on the court calendar caused the postponement of the case.

The government, represented by Prosecutor E. V. Boagni, contends that Chachere, in five specific instances, overcharged the government for supplies and equipment issued to students under the G. I. bill.

The government has already concluded its presentation. Defense Attorney David I. Garrett, Jr., began presentation of the defendant's arguments before the Friday adjournment.

in vain all day and much of the night Saturday.

The Americans were equipped with mobile radios but the Japanese relied on couriers.

A 100-man Japanese party undertook to scale 5,900-foot Mt. Tanzawa, highest peak in the range. Another Japanese party tackled nearby Hirugatake, 4,800 feet high. They cannot expect to reach the tops before late Sunday.

Police Chief Shigeru Fukuda of Toya led a 34-man party halfway up Hirugatake in a hard seven-hour climb Saturday but said a white object reported by two sources proved to be only a rock.

The great search began near the coast in the vicinity of Odawara but gradually extended inland into the increasingly difficult mountains.

The plane belonged to the 21st troop carrier squadron based at Clark Field, Philippines.

Passengers included civilian, military and naval personnel.

Pickelle, 40, a bachelor from Chicago, became General MacArthur's foreign trade expert after the occupation began. At the time of the Japanese surrender he was a major with the Philippine civil affairs team. He was educated at Depauw University.

The army said others in his party included James G. Torrens, 43, occupation trade area coordinator; formerly of Boston; Barnard W. Adams, 40, chief of the occupation trade procedures branch, formerly of Underwood, N. Dak.; and Mrs. Teresa Tonole Krossner, 45, deputy chief of the trade arrangements branch.

Other occupation officials aboard included F. J. Scarr, 56, of the occupation's G-I management, organization and manning section; formerly of New York and Marietta, Ga.; and Franklin I. Rash, 53, of the occupation's G-4 planning and policy division.

Listed among the missing was Cpl. Julius A. Bailey, 29, of Rt. 2, Monroe, La.

way of possible new evidence. He is a member of the senate foreign relations subcommittee which is looking into McCarthy's charges of communism in the state department.

McCarthy has said his charges will stand or fall on the outcome of his accusations against Far Eastern expert Owen Lattimore. The Wisconsin Republican has called Lattimore Russia's top espionage agent in this country—a charge Lattimore has called a "contemptible lie."

Lattimore also has denied Louis Budenz' testimony before the senate group that he once was a member of a Communist cell. Budenz is a former Communist.

Lattimore's attorneys today asked Senator Tydings (D-Md), who heads the inquiry group, for the right to attend all the committee's hearings—even those held behind closed doors—and for the right to see all evidence submitted to the senators.

They also urged that any further charges be aired publicly and that Lattimore be given the right to them immediately in public.

"We realize," the attorneys said in their wire to Tydings, "that the procedure which we request is different from the practice followed by Senator McCarthy, who has consistently refused to make his alleged evidence available to persons whom he accuses or even to the committee.

"However, we are convinced that the committee will not follow this shocking precedent."

It was Tydings who first indicated that the Amerasia case had aroused the committee's interest. He said Monday that the group was going into the Amerasia case "very completely."

Edward P. Morgan, the committee counsel, said today that one of those who will be subpoenard in the inquiry is Frank Belaski, described by McCarthy as a former agent for the office of strategic services. McCarthy said Belaski helped to break the Amerasia case.

Morgan said the committee staff's investigation still is in the preliminary stage and that plans for subpoenaing witnesses did not necessarily mean there had been fresh developments.

Hickenlooper said "I think the whole situation surrounding the Amerasia case is now very mysterious and that it merits a thorough investigation."

Asked why he referred to it as mysterious "now," he said:

"I don't mean that it is any more mysterious now than it ever has been. It has been a mysterious case all along and it still is. It never has been satisfactorily explained."

Service, one of those who fired in the case, has been accused by McCarthy of having Communist leanings. Service has denied it.

Hickenlooper predicted that the inquiry committee probably will decide to subpoena Earl Browder, Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Jack Stachel in the Lattimore case.

Budenz told the committee that his information about Lattimore came from those three men, whom he described as high Communist officials.

Browder, former chief of the Communist party in the United States, and Field have denied that they ever told Budenz that Lattimore was a Communist.

Budenz is scheduled to come before the committee again Tuesday at a meeting behind closed doors. Lattimore is slated to take the stand again at a public hearing some time next week.

Economics

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Small business can expect a new move by the administration soon to give it a shot in the arm. And considerable Republican support for the plan is likely. The ideas include a form of government loan insurance, to make it easier for small business to borrow money. Back of this move is the administration's worry about the slowly mounting unemployment. Government economists believe that one way to provide new jobs is to enable small business to expand and increase production.

cessions or until hell itself freezes over."

He said his union considered the Indiana dispute "part of our overall struggle" with the company, which he accused of "outright welching" and of thinking it is "just too damned good to deal" with his union.

T. E. Shea, Western Electric personnel director, accused Weaver of using the South Bend dispute "as a pretext for calling an illegal strike in total disregard of the public interest."

If the strike occurs, Shea said, it will be "clearly in violation" of the union contract, which he said forbids strikes in such disputes, and calls for their settlement through "orderly grievance procedure."

Until today, negotiators had expected to have at least until Wednesday to iron out issues in the overall telephone dispute, before any new strike crisis arose.

Chief of the union demands are for a 15-cent hourly pay increase, pension improvements and other benefits.

But the Indiana flareup focused talks on that single conflict, and kept Western Electric and Division 6 representatives together throughout the day, and into the evening.

New aspects of the Indiana dispute were raised in Niles, Mich., today by Sherman S. Davis, a local C. W. A. steward.

He accused Western Electric of a technical lockout at South Bend. He said workers there and at Mishawaka, Ind., were refused installation work, and got no pay, while another crew that failed the same day to reach a television project near Angola, Ind., was paid.

The Indiana fight kindled sympathy walkouts, of varying scope, at Seattle, Portland, Ore.; Fargo, N. D., and other cities.

Emerging from a negotiation session here in mid-afternoon, a union spokesman said the parties had talked about arbitration of the South Bend dispute, but no decision had been made.

As for the broader wage battle, the talks were reported still deadlocked.

Weaver said he belives there will be a nationwide telephone strike Wednesday on the wage question, "regardless of the South Bend situation which has aggravated the picture."

COMEDY STRIPS

director of prisons, was drawn into the act. Isaacs read a statement by him voicing concern over the impact on juvenile delinquency of blood-and-thunder strips "which can easily be imitated by children."

Caniff promptly invited anybody to "quote us a single statistic to show that any child has been prompted to commit a crime by any comic strip."

Bennett rose from the floor and acknowledged the cases were few but he said he could introduce Capp to a youth who admitted staging a kidnaping on the prompting of a pictured crime in a "comic book, not a comic strip."

"I do have a feeling that there are a few cases of that kind," Bennett said. "It seems to me and to hundreds of thousands of parents that the comics are not character building."

Isaacs said the feature syndicates which sell the comics tend to deal with complaints by "filing, fumbling and forgetting." He said there are many strips which are perfectly harmless, and he included Caniff's among them, but he observed that "enough is wrong with enough strips to cause us concern."

Comic strips are, to children, their first introduction to mediocrity; Isaacs said. "We've got to stop feeding kids this mental marijuana."

As for propaganda on the comic pages, Capp said he fears a tendency in America to shrink from the lampooning of itself in the manner of the "delightful and disrespectful humorists of another day." He professed himself "terrorized" at the interpretations some seek to read into his own make-believe tales.

"I'm afraid America is losing its most precious freedom — the fifth freedom —the freedom to laugh at itself," he remarked.

"Let's not lose that freedom for without it the other freedoms aren't any fun."

Felix R. McKnight of the Dallas Morning News, who refered the sparring match, voiced the view that, when seventy million readers faithfully follow the comic characters, "we have some thinking to do—let's not kid ourselves."

N. J. C. Will Play Host Role On 'Senior Day' On May 2

Northeast Junior College will play host to high school seniors throughout this area on Tuesday, May 2, when the institution celebrates its annual Senior Day.

In response to invitations mailed to principals of all schools and members of graduating classes, the college is looking forward to entertaining about 1,500 visitors on this special occasion. W. L. Perkins, head of the commerce department and chairman of the general committee in charge of plans for the event, reports that all principals in the 5th Congressional district have accepted Senior Day invitations.

Tentative arrangements call for a full program, beginning at 9 a.m. in Brown Hall auditorium, where N. J. C. students will present a program marked by variety in entertainment. This phase of the day's activities will be directed by James Parkerson, instructor in speech.

Visitors will then have opportunity to visit the various departments to see exhibits or to inspect equipment. They also may have conferences with the registrar, B. S. Hamner, during specified periods of the day, to discuss college curricula or credits.

The noon feature will be the big barbecue at Brown Stadium. Not only will there be lunch prepared for the visitors but a program will be presented by the high school seniors. Twelve schools are to participate in this novelty.

Business men in the Twin Cities are having a share in the day's program by providing the barbecue, Mr. Perkins announced. Faculty members in charge of this phase of entertainment are: L. L. Price, head of the agriculture department, who is chairman; Miss Frances Kelso, assistant professor of home economics, and A. S. Huffman, director of the department of health and physical education.

Serving as guides for the day will be the Purple Jackets and Gold Jackets.

Members of the general committee in charge of the affair comprise, besides Mr. Perkins: Mrs. Mabel Slay, chairman of the committee on student affairs at N. J. C., A. L. Tatum, James Parkerson, L. L. Price, Maj. Hugh W. McClary and Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl.

Pupils of grade seven, Ouachita Parish School, were asked to write a composition on any subject they might choose. One of the pupils, Robert Swinney, wrote on "A Trip to the Moon" and here it is reproduced.

"It was back in the year 2250, April 2, when this particular flight was made. We started out at 4:30 a.m. My co-pilot flew the ship across the continent a time or two to warm up. After leaving New York for five minutes, we passed over a familiar, enormous hole in the ground which was Russia after one of her bombs backfired back in 1952.

"We spotted an enemy rocket ship which shot an atomic bomb at us but we shot a hydrogen bomb at it and it didn't give us any more trouble.

"Going by way of Mars, we arrived on the moon at 8:40 a.m. the same day. We went to an automatic restaurant which uses radio controlled steel robots. My co-pilot doesn't like them and he calls them overgrown asperin boxes.

"Leaving the moon station at 10:30 a.m. with our cargo we arrived back at New York at 2:40 p.m. I took the rocket subway to my home town in Arizona. After a few minutes ride I was home again, safe and sound. I took the moon flight because it isn't very exciting."

Taking the census is remunerative to a certain degree. It is also at times a bit perilous. At least so admits Dallas Mims, director for the fifth district.

One ambitious solicitor experienced a slight injury. A small dog slipped up on her while she was getting data from one family. It ibt her in the hip and she had to be given medical treatment.

But this was a tame experience to that which another encountered. This woman knocked at a door and when it was opened by the lady of the house, informed her that she was confronted by a census taker. The resident didn't waste time but called shrilly for her dogs and set them on the visitor, who had to run for her car to avoid being bitten.

A third enumerator rang a door bell and a man appeared. She told him she was the census taker and could she come in. He told her he was sorry but as his wife was away she would not be permitted to enter in her absence. (Well trained husband, that man.)

Another enumerator had called at one home six times. Then she came the seventh time and found the family eating supper. They told her to come back another time. But she replied that she had been to so much inconvenience that she would just sit onthedoorsteptill would just sit on the doorstep till the meal was completed.

And one spinster of uncertain age asked timorously if the census woman could find a husband for her. She was told that the best that could be done was to give figures of how many men are unmarried and how many women have no husbands.

The Optimist Club is sponsor of the famous Denton Boy Choir which will be heard at the Ouachita Parish High School Monday at 8 p.m. This group has made over 200 appearances in the past three years. Once heard their marvelous music will never be forgotten, state those who have been favored by attending one of their programs.

Their programs cover the entire field of choral music and have delighted concert-goers wherever they have traveled.

This newest boy choir in the American concert field has accumulated a great wealth in repertoire and experience which explains why it is acclaimed for its artistry and versatility by an ever-growing public.

SOUTHERN R. R.

engers unable to reach their destinations or clear the Southern System's lines by the strike deadline.

Chairman Francis A. O'Neill, Jr., of the National Mediation board, which administrates the railway labor law, said he knew of no steps planned by the government to avert the union's strike.

The issue of an extra fireman on Diesels—locomotives now manned by two men, one an engineer and one a fireman—has been turned down by two White House fact-finding boards.

The union claims the second fireman is needed for safe operation of the Diesels, but both fact-finding boards said this was not so. Norris of the Southern system said today the extra fireman demand is only a "make work" device.

"We need this extra fireman as urgently as a two-legged man needs three shoes," Norris said. "And we have no intention of being coerced into yielding to this demand which two impartial fact-finding boards, one appointed by President Roosevelt and the other by President Truman, have both said is utterly 'devoid of merit.'"

The strike threat supplies also to the Pennsylvania system, west of Harrisburg, Pa.; the entire Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe System, and the New York Central west of Buffalo, N. Y., and three N.Y.C. divisions, the Michigan Central west of the Detroit river, the Big Four and the Ohio Central Lines.

The Association of American Railroads said only the Southern system among the strike-threatened railroads has definitely decided on an embargo. In New York, a spokesman for the New York Central said a decision might be made by Monday. The brotherhood is trying to get all the railroads to accept the extra fireman on Diesels. But its present policy is to try to win the concession on a few key railroads at a time, thereby seeking to avoid White House seizure that a nationwide strike emergency might incur.

The rail unions feel that a precedent for letting strikes on individual railroads run without government interference was established in the two-month strike on the Missouri Pacific last year. The unions substantially won their demands in that case.

Southern Railway system officials said their contemplated embargo Monday was based on a conclusion they would be unable to operate trains if the firemen walk out. They pointed out that the brotherhood of locomotive engineers has announced they will not replace any striking firemen.

Miss Woods' injuries included possible fractured ribs, a fractured wrist, scalp lacerations and bruises.

Shelton sustained severe lacerations on his nose and knee. Miss Bishop's condition was termed "good". Hospital attendants said she had no broken bones and was being treated for shock and bruises.

Monroe police said the accident occured when Shelton's car, a 1938 Ford, crashed through a railroad gate into a box car which was crossing DeSiard. The impact caused the automobile to spin around into a post on the north side of DeSiard street, police said.

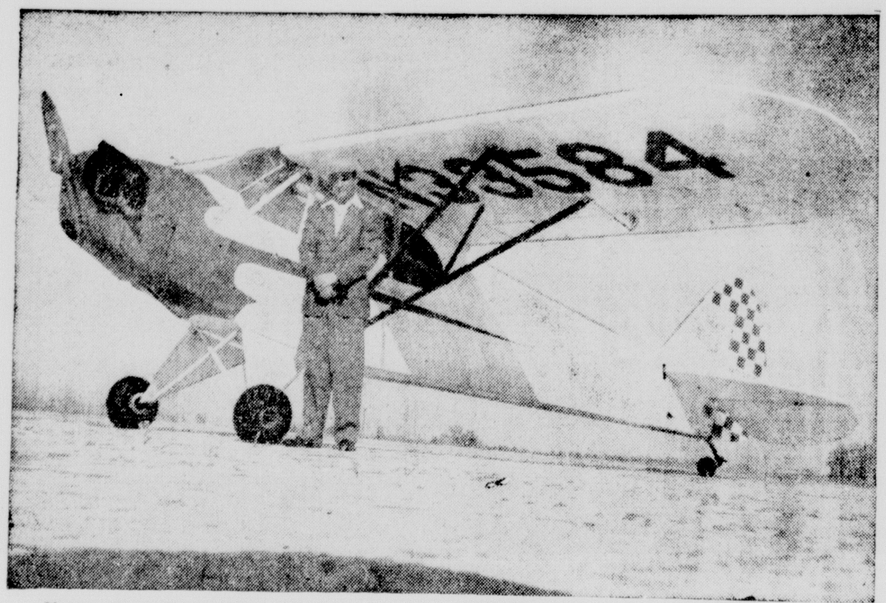

Switchman, R. L. Phifer, of 223 Pear street, told officers he was standing between the gate and box car trying to flag the car with his lantern. He said he flagged the car until it got within about 200 feet of the train and then ran out to the side to avoid being hit.

Investigating officers reported from all indications the automobile was traveling at a very fast rate of speed.

Foreman G. W. Morehead, of Route 4, West Monroe, stated that a red flare was burning on the end of the box car and one in the center of DeSiard street.

The car was traveling west on DeSiard street and the Missouri Pacific engine switching cars on the A. and L. M. switch line which crosses DeSiard.

Voters Registration Shy 27 Per Cent Of Number In 1948

1F—2-24—VOTERS REGISTRATI

SHREVEPORT, La., April 22.—(AP) — With the state-wide Democratic primary about 90 days away, the Shreveport Times made a survey of voter registration in Louisiana parishes and reported tonight the number "totals about 73-percent" of the 1948 registration at this time.

Registration began Jan. 1, 1949, and voters may register for the July 25 Democratic primary up until 30-days before the election.

U. S. Senator Russell Long will seek re-nomination, and all U. S. representatives come up for renomination similarly. Additionally various local municipal officers will be chosen in some cities.

The Democratic primary nomination is tantamount to election in Louisiana.

The Times made its parish-by-parish survey this week, and reported present registration totalled about 656,360 compared to 924,705 registered to vote in the 1948 primary when the governor and various other state officers were chosen. This is approximately 70 per cent of the 1948 total.

Five parishes were not heard from by the paper in its survey. Those were Beauregard, Plaquemines, St. Bernard, St. Charles and St. John the Baptist. The Times said in 1948 these parishes had a combined total registration of 29,691.

Similar sized parishes elsewhere in the state reported about a 50-per cent registration at this time compared to their 1948 total, the Times said. Thus the Times halved their combined 29,691 total in 1948, added that half to the 655,360 present total for the other parishes and reported the per centage for the state at this time would approximate 73 per cent of the 1948 registration total.

No similar past survey made about 90 days before election day is available.

However the Times commented "Local political observers looked on the present total as rather small in view of the fact that new registration has been going on for 16 months and that a United States senate seat and all seats in the house of representatives will be at stake in the July primaries, as well as various posts. Also, presumably, there has been increase in population since 1948."

The Times said its survey showed a larger percentage of registration in cities with recent city campaigns than in rural parishes.

The paper said Orleans parish (New Orleans) has 206,800 registered now compared to 208,436 in 1948; Caddo (Shreveport), 27,733 compared to 43,136 in 1948; Ouachita (Monroe) 17,553 compared to 28,219 in 1948; Rapides (Alexandria), 28,293 compared to 29,899 in 1948; East Baton Rouge (Baton Rouge), 33,439 compared to 45,333; Calcasieu (Lake Charles), 22,334 now compared to 29,694 in 1948.

Walter Chachere Trial Is Delayed

The trial of Walter A Chachere, former Winnsboro trade school operator, on charges of defrauding the government through the veterans administration, was continued in federal court in Monroe until May 8.

The case was originally expected to go to the jury on Friday, but a conflict on the court calendar caused the postponement of the case.

The government, represented by Prosecutor E. V. Boagni, contends that Chachere, in five specific instances, overcharged the government for supplies and equipment issued to sutdents under the G. I. bill.

The government has already concluded its presentation. Defense Attorney David I. Garrett, Jr., began presentation of the defendant's arguments before the Friday adjournment.

in vain all day and much of the night Saturday.

The Americans were equipped with mobile radios but the Japanese relied on couriers.

A 100-man Japanese party undertook to scale 5,900-foot Mt. Tanzawa, highest peak in the range. Another Japanese party tackled nearby Hirugatake, 4,800 feet high. They cannot expect to reach the tops before late Sunday.

Police Chief Shigeru Fukuda of Toya led a 34-man party halfway up Hirugatake in a hard seven-hour climb Saturday but said a white object reported by two sources proved to be only a rock.

The great search began near the coast in the vicinity of Odawara but gradually extended inland into the increasingly difficult mountains.

The plane belonged to the 21st troop carrier squadron based at Clark Field, Philippines.

Passengers included civilian, military and naval personnel.

Pickelle, 40, a bachelor from Chicago, became General MacArthur's foreign trade expert after the occupation began. At the time of the Japanese surrender he was a major with the Philippine civil affairs team. He was educated at Depauw University.

The army said others in his party included James G. Torrens, 43, occupation trade area coordinator; formerly of Boston; Barnard W. Adams, 40, chief of the occupation trade procedures branch, formerly of Underwood, N. Dak.; and Mrs. Teresa Tonole Krossner, 45, deputy chief of the trade arrangements branch.

Other occupation officials aboard included F. J. Scarr, 56, of the occupation's G-I management, organization and manning section; formerly of New York and Marietta, Ga.; and Franklin I. Rash, 53, of the occupation's G-4 planning and policy division.

Listed among the missing was Cpl. Julius A. Bailey, 29, of Rt. 2, Monroe, La.

way of possible new evidence. He is a member of the senate foreign relations subcommittee which is looking into McCarthy's charges of communism in the state department.

McCarthy has said his charges will stand or fall on the outcome of his accusations against Far Eastern expert Owen Lattimore. The Wisconsin Republican has called Lattimore Russia's top espionage agent in this country—a charge Lattimore has called a "contemptible lie."

Lattimore also has denied Louis Budenz' testimony before the senate group that he once was a member of a Communist cell. Budenz is a former Communist.

Lattimore's attorneys today asked Senator Tydings (D-Md), who heads the inquiry group, for the right to attend all the committee's hearings—even those held behind closed doors—and for the right to see all evidence submitted to the senators.

They also urged that any further charges be aired publicly and that Lattimore be given the right to them immediately in public.

"We realize," the attorneys said in their wire to Tydings, "that the procedure which we request is different from the practice followed by Senator McCarthy, who has consistently refused to make his alleged evidence available to persons whom he accuses or even to the committee.

"However, we are convinced that the committee will not follow this shocking precedent."

It was Tydings who first indicated that the Amerasia case had aroused the committee's interest. He said Monday that the group was going into the Amerasia case "very completely."

Edward P. Morgan, the committee counsel, said today that one of those who will be subpoenard in the inquiry is Frank Belaski, described by McCarthy as a former agent for the office of strategic services. McCarthy said Belaski helped to break the Amerasia case.

Morgan said the committee staff's investigation still is in the preliminary stage and that plans for subpoenaing witnesses did not necessarily mean there had been fresh developments.

Hickenlooper said "I think the whole situation surrounding the Amerasia case is now very mysterious and that it merits a thorough investigation."

Asked why he referred to it as mysterious "now," he said:

"I don't mean that it is any more mysterious now than it ever has been. It has been a mysterious case all along and it still is. It never has been satisfactorily explained."

Service, one of those who fired in the case, has been accused by McCarthy of having Communist leanings. Service has denied it.

Hickenlooper predicted that the inquiry committee probably will decide to subpoena Earl Browder, Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Jack Stachel in the Lattimore case.

Budenz told the committee that his information about Lattimore came from those three men, whom he described as high Communist officials.

Browder, former chief of the Communist party in the United States, and Field have denied that they ever told Budenz that Lattimore was a Communist.

Budenz is scheduled to come before the committee again Tuesday at a meeting behind closed doors. Lattimore is slated to take the stand again at a public hearing some time next week.

cessions or until hell itself freezes over."

He said his union considered the Indiana dispute "part of our overall struggle" with the company, which he accused of "outright welching" and of thinking it is "just too damned good to deal" with his union.

T. E. Shea, Western Electric personnel director, accused Weaver of using the South Bend dispute "as a pretext for calling an illegal strike in total disregard of the public interest."

If the strike occurs, Shea said, it will be "clearly in violation" of the union contract, which he said forbids strikes in such disputes, and calls for their settlement through "orderly grievance procedure."

Until today, negotiators had expected to have at least until Wednesday to iron out issues in the overall telephone dispute, before any new strike crisis arose.

Chief of the union demands are for a 15-cent hourly pay increase, pension improvements and other benefits.

But the Indiana flareup focused talks on that single conflict, and kept Western Electric and Division 6 representatives together throughout the day, and into the evening.

New aspects of the Indiana dispute were raised in Niles, Mich., today by Sherman S. Davis, a local C. W. A. steward.

He accused Western Electric of a technical lockout at South Bend. He said workers there and at Mishawaka, Ind., were refused installation work, and got no pay, while another crew that failed the same day to reach a television project near Angola, Ind., was paid.

The Indiana fight kindled sympathy walkouts, of varying scope, at Seattle, Portland, Ore.; Fargo, N. D., and other cities.

Emerging from a negotiation session here in mid-afternoon, a union spokesman said the parties had talked about arbitration of the South Bend dispute, but no decision had been made.

As for the broader wage battle, the talks were reported still deadlocked.

Weaver said he belives there will be a nationwide telephone strike Wednesday on the wage question, "regardless of the South Bend situation which has aggravated the picture."

Economics

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Small business can expect a new move by the administration soon to give it a shot in the arm. And considerable Republican support for the plan is likely. The ideas include a form of government loan insurance, to make it easier for small business to borrow money. Back of this move is the administration's worry about the slowly mounting unemployment. Government economists believe that one way to provide new jobs is to enable small business to expand and increase production.

COMEDY STRIPS

director of prisons, was drawn into the act. Isaacs read a statement by him voicing concern over the impact on juvenile delinquency of blood-and-thunder strips "which can easily be imitated by children."

Caniff promptly invited anybody to "quote us a single statistic to show that any child has been prompted to commit a crime by any comic strip."

Bennett rose from the floor and acknowledged the cases were few but he said he could introduce Capp to a youth who admitted staging a kidnaping on the prompting of a pictured crime in a "comic book, not a comic strip."

"I do have a feeling that there are a few cases of that kind," Bennett said. "It seems to me and to hundreds of thousands of parents that the comics are not character building."

Isaacs said the feature syndicates which sell the comics tend to deal with complaints by "filing, fumbling and forgetting." He said there are many strips which are perfectly harmless, and he included Caniff's among them, but he observed that "enough is wrong with enough strips to cause us concern."

Comic strips are, to children, their first introduction to mediocrity; Isaacs said. "We've got to stop feeding kids this mental marijuana."

As for propaganda on the comic pages, Capp said he fears a tendency in America to shrink from the lampooning of itself in the manner of the "delightful and disrespectful humorists of another day." He professed himself "terrorized" at the interpretations some seek to read into his own make-believe tales.

"I'm afraid America is losing its most precious freedom — the fifth freedom —the freedom to laugh at itself," he remarked.

"Let's not lose that freedom for without it the other freedoms aren't any fun."

Felix R. McKnight of the Dallas Morning News, who refered the sparring match, voiced the view that, when seventy million readers faithfully follow the comic characters, "we have some thinking to do—let's not kid ourselves."

APRIL BRIDES TAKE VOWS IN CHURCH CEREMONIES

MRS. VINCENT R. SYLVESTRI

MRS. LESLIE B. GIBSON

MRS. CHARLES A. ALBRIGHT

ST. PASCHAL'S CHURCH SCENE OF WEDDING OF LIBERTA GUIRLANDO AND VINCENT R. SYLVESTRI

In a late afternoon ceremony April 16 at St. Paschal's Church in West Monroe, Miss Liberta Guirlando, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Guirlando, became the bride of Vincent R. Sylvestri, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Sylvestri of Yonkers, New York.

Father Natalis Wellner officiated in the double ring ceremony in a setting of white blossoms, greenery and white tapers. Miss Lena Sciara sang two songs and the traditional wedding marches were used to begin and end the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a white satin bridal gown made with a fitted bodice buttoned down the back with the full gathered skirt which developed into a chapel length train. The yoke of the bodice was embroidered with seed pearls. Her tiered veil of illusion was caught to a crown also embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of Easter lilies with a single white orchid in the center.

Miss Rose Mary Tornatore, maid of honor, and Miss Despino Kokinos, Miss Nellie Miletello, and Miss Phyllis Jo Nastasi served as bridesmaids. They were wearing identical dresses similar to the one worn by the bride. Maria Cascio was the flower girl and Rocco Guirlando, Jr., served as the ring bearer.

Mr. Joe Costanza served the groom as best man. Ushers were Joe Guirlando, Michael Miletello, and Veto Guirlanda.

A reception was held at the Progressive Men's Club immediately following the ceremony. Receiving the guests were the bride and groom, parents of the bride, and members of the wedding party.

Centering the bride's table was the tiered wedding confection.

Immediately following the reception the bridal couple left on their wedding trip to Yonkers, New York. The bride was wearing a navy suit with accessories of blue and a lime blouse. Her corsage was the white orchid used in her bridal bouquet. They will make their home in Monroe upon their return.

Literary Club Enjoys Book Review

The Monroe Literary Club held a recent meeting in the home of Mrs. Russell Kettenring, with Mrs. D. A. Altick assisting the hostess. Mrs. F. H. Peterson entertained those present with a delightful review of "Cheaper by the Dozen" by Ernestine Carey and Frank Gilbreth, Jr. The everyday life of this actual outsize family is full of interesting and radiculous situations. It is a story that appeals to every member of the audience.

Fifty dozen home made cookies were sent to the U. S. Veterans' Hospital at Alexandria, La., as an Easter project. Reports from there tell that this was a most welcome undertaking and that the "personal touch" brought much pleasure to the patients. The veterans also especially appreciate cut-flowers from the yards.

The following members enjoyed the social hour that followed: Mrs. J. F. Choate, Mrs. John Dillon, Mrs. Guy DuPriest, Mrs. Sidney Karr, Mrs. Ben Parnell, Mrs. Arthur Kite, Mrs. P. E. Massey, Mrs. J. H. Drake, Mrs. R. M. Kettenring, Mrs. D. A. Altick, Mrs. Joe Worley, Mrs. J. E. Shannon, Mrs. J. W. Womack, and Mrs. J. D. Kelly.

CHURCH CEREMONY UNITES MISS JUDY SAWYER AND LESLIE GIBSON

Southern Smilax, English dogwood and calla lilies with cathedral tapers in branched candleabra was the bridal setting Saturday evening April 15 at 6:30 p.m. at the Ridge Avenue Baptist Church for the marriage of Miss Judy Sawyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Sawyer, and Leslie B. Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Gibson of Pensacola, Florida. The Rev. A. T. Mitchell officiated at the impressive double ring deremony.

Mrs. R. G. Luckett at the organ played a program of nuptial music and accompanied Miss Shirley Bayles, who sang "Because" and "Till the End of Time". The traditional wedding marches were used to begin and end the ceremony.

Mr. David Gibson lighted the candles before the entrance of the bridal party.

The bride, given in marrige by her father, wore a bridal gown of white nylon tulle with full skirt joining the tight fitting bodice. The yoke of illusion was attached to the soft bertha collar edged with lace and the bodice and long fitted sleeves were fastened with small self-covered buttons. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a halo brim of lace. The bride was wearing a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom. For something old she was wearing a cameo brooch, which was a wedding gift to her mother from her father. She was carrying a white Bible topped by a single white orchid, surrounded by stephanotis with white lacelon streamers.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Joseph Kvaternik, was wearing a pale yellow organdie gown similar to the brides. The bridesmaid, Miss Judy Gibson was wearing a gown of pale green organdie identical to the matron of honor. Both attendants were carrying white Bibles topped with single glamellia surrounded by split carnations, with streamers of yellow and green ribbon. They wore matching corsages in their hair.

Mrs. John Dupuy served the groom as best man. Ushers were Mr. David Gibson and Mrs. Donald Halsell.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents immediately followed the ceremony. Guests were received by the bride and groom, parents of the bride and groom and members of the bridal party.

Spring flowers and roses decorated the reception rooms. The bride's table was covered with a beautiful cut work linen cloth centered with the tiered wedding cake. White tapers in crystal candleabra were placed at either end. White satin

NINA LORRAINE MADDUX WEDS CHARLES A. ALBRIGHT IN IMPRESSIVE CHURCH CEREMONY

At a ceremony characterized by simple dignity and beauty, Miss Nina Lorraine Maddux, daughter of Mrs. Julia Maddux, exchanged marriage vows with Charles Austin Albright, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Albright. The marriage was solemnized Saturday evening at the First Presbyterian Church with the pastor, the Rev. Ernest D. Holloway, officiating.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive double ring service before the alter which was beautifully decorated with baskets of calla lilies interspersed with myriads of white tapers against a background of Southern Smilax. Billowy bows of white satin ribbon marked the pews for members of the families and close friends.

Mr. Leon Hammonds rendered a prenuptial concert at the organ and accompanied Mrs. F. V. Allison and Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale, Jr. as they sang "Still Is the Night." Following the ceremony, Mrs. Trousdale sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Serving as the maid of honor was Miss Grace Marie Young, of St. Louis, a close friend of the bride. Her gown of pale pink

NEWS FROM THE GIRL SCOUTS

Among the troops we gleaned some news from this week was Troop 11, Brownie, Mrs. Corbin Turpin and Mrs. Bernard Levi, leaders, who had a cook-out exactly as detailed in the council bulletin. First they learned to build a fire to cook on, between two bricks; then as the troop had been divided into details one group prepared Camp Fire stew, another group had charge of rubbing the kettle with brown soap before placing it on the fire (this trick eliminates all blackening when the kettle is washed!) another group heated water for dishwashing and when the time came proceeded to wash dishes and scrub the kettle, while still another group took the part of "clean ups" to remove all traces of the cook-out. Won't they make good housekeepers? Also on the menu were cookies and fruit which added up to a delectable meal. Troop 11 recently entertained one of its members, Linda Vowell, with a birthday party in the park. They served ice cream and cake, and surprised the honoree with many beautiful birthday gifts. We know Linda had a very happy birthday and we wish her many more. This week these girls are making name tags to be worn by grown-ups who will be attending the cook-out next Monday evening from 5:30 to 7:00 p.m. At the home of Mrs. Rodney Cline, 221 Chauvin Avenue, in honor of Mrs. Ann White, community advisor on the national staff who will be in Monroe at that time.

Troop 32, intermeriate, Mrs. W. H. Luton and Mrs. T. B. Gregary leaders, have made aprons as gifts for their mothers, and each girl learned to embroider so that she could put her mother's name on the apron. By the way, this is one of the troops who are boasting the international friendship program by corresponding with a family in Germany. They also sent a big box of nice gifts for Christmas. Now they tell us they got another box off before Easter containing stationery, clothes and toilet articles and they have since received an Easter card (very different from an American one) and a thank you note from this German mother to whom their letters and gifts mean so much. Good for you, Troop 32!

Brownies of Troop 38, Mrs. John W. Brown and Mrs. L. C. Bassett leader, made an interesting tour through the Southern Bell Telephone company and were thoroughly intrigued with the many fascinating things to be seen there Best of all, they said, was the opportunity given them when the operators let them listen on ear phones as numbers were asked for and given.

Notice to all out-of-town troops who are interested in this column: If you have any troop news you'd like to see written in the column just write your news in to the Ouachita Parish Girl Scout office, 412 Hall street, this city.

Troop 11 recently entertained one of its members, Linda Vowell, with a birthday party in the park. They served ice cream and cake, and surprised the honoree with many beautiful birthday gifts. We know Linda had a very happy birthday and we wish her many more. This week these girls are making name tags to be worn by grown-ups who will be attending the cook-out next Monday evening from 5:30 to 7:00 p.m. At the home of Mrs. Rodney Cline, 221 Chauvin Avenue, in honor of Mrs. Ann White, community advisor on the national staff who will be in Monroe at that time.

Troop 32, intermeriate, Mrs. W. H. Luton and Mrs. T. B. Gregary leaders, have made aprons as gifts for their mothers, and each girl learned to embroider so that she could put her mother's name on the apron. By the way, this is one of the troops who are boasting the international friendship program by corresponding with a family in Germany. They also sent a big box of nice gifts for Christmas. Now they tell us they got another box off before Easter containing stationery, clothes and toilet articles and they have since eceived an Easter card (very different from an American one) and a thank you note from this German mother to whom their letters and gifts mean so much. Good for you, Troop 32!

Brownies of Troop 38, Mrs. John W. Brown and Mrs. L. C. Bassett leader, made an interesting tour through the Southern Bell Telephone company and were thoroughly intrigued with the many fascinating things to be seen there Best of all, they said, was the opportunity given them when the operators let them listen on ear phones as numbers were asked for and given.

Notice to all out-of-town troops who are interested in this column: If you have any troop news you'd like to see written in the column just write your news in to the Ouachita Parish Girl Scout office, 412 Hall street, this city.

WELCOME BRANCH OF 20th CENTURY BOOK CLUB HAVE APRIL MEETING

Welcome Branch of the Twentieth Century Book Club met recently in the home of Mrs. A. C. Polk on Downey Lane with Mrs. A. D. Booth as co-hostess for the afternoon. The club president, Mrs. F. E. Black, presided over the business session and welcomed as a guest, a former member of the club, Mrs. H. D. Cleaver. The program chairman, Mrs. Morris Miller presented the program for the afternoon as follows: an article by the chairman of education, Mrs. A. R. Doughty, who spoke on "Education For a Better People and For a Better World." Next Mrs. H. V. Collins gave three short articles from the Clubwoman, the official magazine for Federated Club women. Mrs. George Phebus then reviewed the book. "Spring Is Not Gentle" by Ronald Kirkbride. This is the story of a Quaker family and their belief that "all men, including Negroes, are my brothers." The protagonist of the story is David Jordan, whose chief characteristic, Mrs. Phebus pointed out, was convinced consistency. His Quaker faith was so strong that he remained loyal to it even at the cost of losing his wife whom he loved.

After this most interesting program, the hostesses served delicious refreshments to the twenty-eight members and one guest present, including: Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. H. V. Collins, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. R. H. Dollar, Mrs. Sidney Douglas, Mrs. A. R. Doughty, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. A. S. Gunter, Mrs. J. G. Heiks, Mrs. Thomas Jett, Mrs. E. E. Lawson, Mrs. C. B. McEachern, Mrs. Morris Miller, Mrs. Gaston Eikel, Mrs. Leola Nixon, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. George Phebus, Mrs. E. A. Porter, Mrs. Dean Selig, Mrs. A. J. Speer, Mrs. T. C. Starnes, Mrs. A. C. Warner, Mrs. Richard Whitehurst, Mrs. Henry Williams, and Mrs. Cyril Yancey.

REVIEW CLUB HAS LAST REGULAR MEETING FOR 1949-50 CLUB YEAR

The last regular meeting of the Review Club for the 1949-50 club year was held in the home of Mrs. Z. J. Byrd on Monday afternoon. Mrs. F. V. Barnett president, discussed the news in the club bulletin, stressing the important points in the state president's message.

The most important feature of the afternoon's business was the installation of officers for the coming year. Mrs. A. R. Holloway a charter member of the Review Club was the installing officer. In a very impressive ceremony she reminded the officers-elect of the duties and responsibilities together with the pleasures of service, that would be theirs in the year to come. She highly commended each of them to the club and in turn, congratulated the Review Club on its selection of the following as its leaders: president, Mrs. Lea Thompson, Mrs. W. L. Alexander, vice-president; Mrs. L. N. Waddell secretary; Mrs. Corbin Turpin treasurer; member-elect of the advisory board, Mrs. DeWitt Henry. The club paid tribute to the retiring president. Mrs. F. V. Barnett, by a rising vote of appreciation for her conscientious service and successful leadership during the past year.

Mrs. John P. Noel, program chairman, introduced an informative study of the relationship that should exist between readers and writers. Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Jr., discussed "Aspects of the Novel," E. M. Forster's criticism of the English novel as a literary form. In this book Mrs. Forster, English novelist and critic has outlined the standards by which novels should be judged. The central idea is that in any novel there are two forces: human beings and a "bundle of things not human beings." It is the novelists business to adjust and conciliate the claims made on his work by story character, and plot: to make effective and appropriate use of fantasy, prophecy, pattern and rythm. But his success is dependent, also, on the reader's ability and willingness to grant his demands for curiosity, intelligence, memory, a sense of values, and an appreciation of beauty; for the final of a novel is the reader's affection for it.

Mrs. Lea Thompson next discussed some of the tests for good fiction, using as a starting point for her remarks The Story of a Novel," by Thomas Wolfe. Some books merely entertain, Mrs. Thompson said, but entertainment value alone, indispensable though it is, does not suffice to make a book great. The novelist's art depends on human personality—his own and his reader's and a good author will evoke emotional response from his reader. A really great book should widen and deepen the reader's understanding of life, enhance his joy of living. It should contain reflective observations stated in a manner both pleasant and intelligible. An enduring book will assist in restoring the dignity of human existence.

At the conclusion of the program a delightful social hour was enjoyed. Those present were Mrs. O. D. Brasher, a guest, and the following members. Mesdames W. L. Alexander, F. V. Barnett, J. K. Brothers, Jr., Z. J. Byrd, E. P. Cudd, W. T. Davis, C. P. Gray Jr., Durwood Griffin, DeWitt Henry, A. R. Holloway, W. L. Mitchell, Jr., J. P. Noel, Sam Smith, Lea Thompson, Corbin Turpin, L. N. Waddell.

FORMER FERRIDAY RESIDENT FETED AT RECENT MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Miss Marjorie Jayne Henderson of Baton Rouge, bride-elect of April 29th, was the honoree of a very lovely miscellaneous shower and tea given on April 6th in Ferriday, her former home.

The setting for this party was the attractive town house of Dr. and Mrs. John Harvey Johnson. Co-hostesses with Mrs. Johnson on this occasion were Mrs. Otto Lancaster, Mrs. A. E. Terres, Mrs. Sidney Gray, Mrs. Lyle Maxwell and Mrs. Tom Jones, Jr.

The spacious reception rooms of the Johnson home were effectively decorated with graceful arrangements of white spring flowers and lighted tapers. The tea table, covered with an embroidered linen cloth, was centered with an exquisite bridal arrangement of white carnations and snap dragons, flanked by handsome silver candleabra holding white tapers. Other silver appointments completed the table, from which the guests were served dainty refreshments throughout the evening.

Miss Henderson received her guests in a charming spring model of starched navy lace, made with fitted bodice and full flared skirt. Her costume was complemented by her corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. S. H. Henderson, mother of the honoree, chose for this occasion, a flattering spring print worn with a white corsage. Mrs. James H. Sumree, mother of the groom to be, was charmingly attired in navy crepe with touches of white and a white corsage.

Miss Mitsie Lancaster, in pink linen, graciously presided over the bride's book, where the guests registered during the evening. Mrs. Lyle Maxwell, Mrs. A. E. Terres, Mrs. Van Melson and Mrs. Tom Jones, Jr. assisted at the tea table.

Out of town guests for this occasion, in addition to the honoree, were Mrs. S. H. Henderson of Baton Rouge, formerly of Ferriday. Mrs. James H. Sumree, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Towler, all of Gloster, Mississippi.

This party attracted a large number of guests from Ferriday and Concordia parish, where the Henderson family made their home for many years, and Miss Henderson received many lovely gifts.

FORMER FERRIDAY RESIDENT FETED AT RECENT MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Miss Marjorie Jayne Henderson of Baton Rouge, bride-elect of April 29th, was the honoree of a very lovely miscellaneous shower and tea given on April 6th in Ferriday, her former home.

The setting for this party was the attractive town house of Dr. and Mrs. John Harvey Johnson. Co-hostesses with Mrs. Johnson on this occasion were Mrs. Otto Lancaster, Mrs. A. E. Terres, Mrs. Sidney Gray, Mrs. Lyle Maxwell and Mrs. Tom Jones, Jr.

The spacious reception rooms of the Johnson home were effectively decorated with graceful arrangements of white spring flowers and lighted tapers. The tea table, covered with an embroidered linen cloth, was centered with an exquisite bridal arrangement of white carnations and snap dragons, flanked by handsome silver candleabra holding white tapers. Other silver appointments completed the table, from which the guests were served dainty refreshments throughout the evening.

Miss Henderson received her guests in a charming spring model of starched navy lace, made with fitted bodice and full flared skirt. Her costume was complemented by her corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. S. H. Henderson, mother of the honoree, chose for this occasion, a flattering spring print worn with a white corsage. Mrs. James H. Sumree, mother of the groom to be, was charmingly attired in navy crepe with touches of white and a white corsage.

Miss Mitsie Lancaster, in pink linen, graciously presided over the bride's book, where the guests registered during the evening. Mrs. Lyle Maxwell, Mrs. A. E. Terres, Mrs. Van Melson and Mrs. Tom Jones, Jr. assisted at the tea table.

Out of town guests for this occasion, in addition to the honoree, were Mrs. S. H. Henderson of Baton Rouge, formerly of Ferriday. Mrs. James H. Sumree, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Towler, all of Gloster, Mississippi.

This party attracted a large number of guests from Ferriday and Concordia parish, where the Henderson family made their home for many years, and Miss Henderson received many lovely gifts.

Miss Billye Norris Durbin Is Bride Of Donald Logan

Impressive Double Ring Ceremony Takes Place At Claiborne Methodist Church

Miss Billye Norris Durbin, daugnter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Victor Durbin, and Mr. Donald Logan, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Logan, were united in marriage Saturday evening, April 8, at the Claiborne Methodist Church in a double-ring ceremony.

The sanctuary was converted into a picturesque setting with tall baskets of white gladioli standing against a background of Southern smilax. Myriads of tall white tapers supported by branched candelabra interspersed the arrangement. Billowy bows of white satin ribbon marked the pews for the families and close friends.

Rev. F. L. Hearne, church pastor, officiated at the ceremony and was assisted by Rev. C. Roger Johnson, pastor of Central Baptist Church of Monroe.

Mrs. Florence Ziegler Allbritton, played the nuptial concert, during which the tapers were lighted by Joe Purvis, Jr., and Bill Norris III.

Mrs. Estelle Sanders rendered "Through the Years" and when the young couple knelt for prayer after the ceremony sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Ushers for the wedding were Mr. Hobson Norris, Jr., Mr. Kline Strong, Mr. Harry Liner and Dr. Bryant W. Thompson. Mr. Floyd S. Fisher, Jr., served the groom in the capacity of best man.

Miss Jane Wallace, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor and wore rose net over taffeta with a halo of fluted net caught with tiny pink rosebuds to a shoulder-length veil.

Bridesmaids were Miss Beverly Ann Thatcher of Baton Rouge, Miss Martha Mae Logan, Miss Doris Brown and Miss Kitty McCoy, all of whom wore pale green net over taffeta. Accessories included long net gloves tied at the wrists with satin ribbons and halos of net with clusters of rosebuds. Easter baskets filled with pink and rose stock were accented with satin bows caught to the handles.

Junior bridesmaids were Miss Jean Wallace, Miss Lou Frantom, Miss Gerry Dickerson and Miss Margie Norris. Their gowns were similar to those worn by the first bridesmaids and the baskets of blossoms were exact replicas with the exception of being smaller.

Little flower girls were Kay Norris, Sue Norris, Millicent Ann Hamacker and Sally Purvis, all beautiful little blondes similarly gowned to the other attendants. They carried tiny baskets filled with pink flowers and caught with satin ribbons.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown of egg shell satin fashioned with a tight bodice and long calla lily sleeves. The yoke of imported illusion was caught to the bodice with a bias fold of the material. The skirt, long and billoys ended in a train. The veil of illusion was finger-tip fastened with a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a Bible surmounted with a white orchid and tube roses and showered with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Durbin, the bride's mother, chose navy blue with a matching picture hat, while the mother of the bridegroom wore rose. They wore lovely harmonizing corsages.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Norris home which was the childhood home of the bride's mother. Miss Marguerite Norris and Mrs. J. R. Frantom extended the courtesies and were assisted by Mrs. F. L. Hearne, Mrs. Kline Strong, Mrs. J. H. McCullin, Mrs. Larry Bost, Mrs. Frank Collins and Mrs. Lloyd T. Durbin, the latter presiding over the bride's book.

Pink stock used with greenery enhanced the beauty of the spacious reception rooms for the occasion. Tall tapers advantageously placed lighted the lovely scene.

The lace covered dining table was centered with the huge wedding cake, embossed in pale pink with white bride's roses. Two smaller tables, with lace over pink satin, held the punch bowls. Three young girls, Joy May, Jean Pace and Anne Barefoot assisted further in the serving courtesies.

For traveling, the bride chose a navy suit with navy accessories and a pale blue blouse trimmed in lace. Her navy straw hat with the veil caught in the back with a velvet bow was most becoming. She also wore the white orchid from her wedding bouquet.

After a honeymoon spent in New Orleans, the young couple will return to Baton Rouge to make their home. The bridegroom is a senior at L. S. U.

Margaret Gochenour Burner Weds John Edward Halley, Jr.

Of interest to friends in north Louisiana was the marriage of Mrs. Margaret Gochenour Burner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Gochenour, and John Edward Halley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Halley of Bastrop. The marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, April 14th at seven in the evening with the Rev. Z. T. Young officiating.

The bridal couple exchanged vows of the impressive double ring ceremony before the altar which was beautifully decorated with fern and gladioli. Branched candelabra held a myriad of slender white tapers. A program of prenuptial music was rendered while the guests were assembling and the candles lighted by Miss Doris Gunther of Fairbanks, and Miss Evelyn Gochenour, sister of the bride. The traditional wedding march of Mendelssohn's marked the beginning of the service.

The bride was beautiful in a pastel blue crepe with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Robert Wunsch, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a two-piece dusty rose faille with purple orchid corsage. The bridgroom was attended by Sgt. Marion Frost of Bastrop.

Mrs. Gochenour wore for her daughter's wedding a navy sheer with a corsage of white iris. Mrs. Halley wore navy with a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. The bride's table was overlaid with an imported line cloth of cutwork. It was centered with a three tiered wedding cake embossed in delicate pink roses and surmounted by an arrangement of sweetheart roses. White glowing tapers in crystal holders surrounded the confection. Crystal baskets at either end held arrangements of pink and white carnations. Garlands of pink sweetheart roses were draped to the corners of the table where bows of satin and tulle finished the lovely setting. The crystal punch bowl was surrounded by fern and roses. Silver trays holding an assortment of fluted open sandwiches, small cakes, and mints were passed among the guests.

Now on a three thousand mile tour of six states, the Denton Civic Boy Choir will be presented in concert at the Ouachita Parish High School auditorium at 8 p.m. Monday, April 24th under the auspices of the Optimist Club.

This newest addition to the American concert field, the Denton Civic Boy Choir, is also probably one of the youngest in organization. Founded in 1946 by its present director, George Bragg, it has become one of the country's outstanding choirs.

Boys forming the choir range in age from eight to fourteen years. The choir is non-denominational and is open to any boy whose musical and academic ability can meet the requirements.

The choir was originally subsidized by Denton's Junior Chamber of Commerce; however, within a year and a half, the choir had become so popular in the town that it became a civic project.

The choir's program will include sacred music of all periods in music history. One of the outstanding compositions of the program will be "Come, Come Ye Saints," especially arranged for the Denton Civic Boy Choir by J. Spencer Cornwall, director of the Salt Lake City Tabernacle Choir. In additoin to their sacred music repetoire, the boys will perform folk songs, as well as more recent compositions such as the "Glow-Worm" by Lincke and Adams' "The Bells of St. Mary'". SURE MARK of a GREAT BUY

YOU know many things about the man behind the wheel when this bold front comes winging your way.

He knows style—he is traveling behind the boldest and freshest forecast of things to come that is on the roads today.

He's a practical person—likes the idea of plenty of protection out front without spending money on such extra items as bumper guards.

He likes convenience—the easier parking made possible through the precious inches of over-all length saved by this design—not to mention freedom from "locking horns" with the car ahead.

And he's foresighted—knows that accidents do happen sometimes—and he goes for the idea of a front-end design that can be repaired by replacing single bars instead of a whole grille work.

Most of all, he has an eye for a buy. For this bold new design means Buick—and in every series, SPECIAL, SUPER and ROADMASTER, Buick means a better all-round buy.

For proof of that—go look, try and compare. You'll find that, dollar for dollar, your Buick dealer has the top values—and that goes for cars bracketing every price range above the very lowest.

He knows style—he is traveling behind the boldest and freshest forecast of things to come that is on the roads today.

He's a practical person—likes the idea of plenty of protection out front without spending money on such extra items as bumper guards.

He likes convenience—the easier parking made possible through the precious inches of over-all length saved by this design—not to mention freedom from "locking horns" with the car ahead.

And he's foresighted—knows that accidents do happen sometimes—and he goes for the idea of a front-end design that can be repaired by replacing single bars instead of a whole grille work.

You could add that he likes power—for behind this smart forefront there's a big bonnetful of Fireball horsepower.

Tune in HENRY J. TAYLOR, ABC Network, every Monday evening.

He likes comfort—since every car bearing this grille rides on soft coil springs all around.

Most of all, he has an eye for a buy. For this bold new design means Buick—and in every series, SPECIAL, SUPER and ROADMASTER, Buick means a better all-round buy.

For proof of that—go look, try and compare. You'll find that, dollar for dollar, your Buick dealer has the top values—and that goes for cars bracketing every price range above the very lowest.

NEW NASH MODEL INTRODUCED HERE

Much - Rumored 'Rambler' Shown To Monroe Public For First Time

Nash Motors has announced its much rumored completely new "Rambler" automobile. A luxurious 5-passenger custom convertible, first model in a new Nash series, it will compete in the lowest-priced automobile field. It is an addition and does not replace Nash Ambassador or Statesman models. The new car is on public display in dealer showrooms.

Priced below the lowest of today's 5-passenger convertibles, the new Nash Rambler includes at no extra cost about $300 worth of such custom appointments as: an electrically operated top, Weather Eye conditioned air heater, radio, one-piece windshield, direction signals, chrome wheel discs, clock, special upholstery, foam cushions and other custom car features. H. C. Doss, vice-president in charge of sales, said.

According to Doss, "the new car offers up to 30 miles per gallon (more with overdrive), ease of parking, and nimbleness in traffic without sacrificing top performance on open highways. As we see it, the Nash Rambler is a new concept of automotive quality in a compact package," he said.

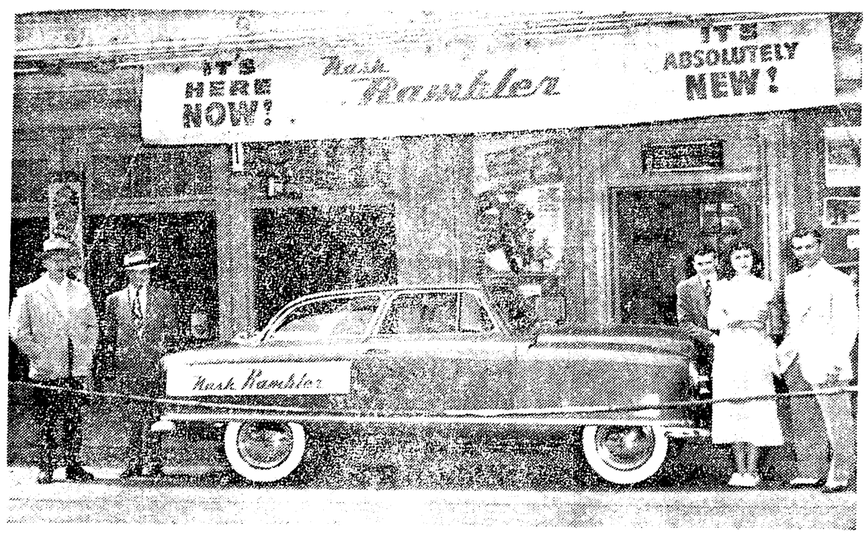

Introduction of the Nash Rambler marks the start of Nash Motors' 49th year of automobile manufacture. "We take pride in reviving one of the most famous names in automotive history," Doss said. "The first Rambler, built in our present plant in Kenosha, Wisconsin, was introduced in 1902. It was one of America's first mass produced cars."

New standards of safety are claimed for the Nash Rambler convertible. As a foremost feature, the new car combines much of the safety of an all-steel sedan, with the recreational advantages of an open car. New overhead safety protection is accomplished with two heavy steel side rails framing the top of side windows. An integral part of the body, these overhead chrome-trimmed rails also form a strong structural bridge-beam for extra body rigidity. They also carry the built-in tracks for the electrically operated top and serve as attractive frames for the side windows.

The new Rambler's Airflyte-type of unitized-body-and-frame construction results in a lower silhouette and lower center of gravity without loss of front or rear headroom or legroom, Doss said.

Exterior appearance is highlighted with sweeping front to rear fender lines. It is further enhanced by a broad low hood, shorter than other Nash cars, sloping forward offering greater visibility. Body lines flow back from the gracefully rounded front end to the tapered back. Frontal view of the car points up its road-hugging width and stability. The radiator grille, an oval shaped racing-type air scoop, has heavy horizontal bars and blends with the massive front bumper. Headlamps, parking lights and direction signals are recessed in the fenders.

NEW NASH MODEL PLACED ON DISPLAY

DELTA SEEKING NEW AIR LINE

Would Link Shreveport With Oklahoma City In 298 Route

Delta Air Lines filed application Saturday with the Civil Aeronautics Board for a new air route from Shreveport to Oklahoma City, a distance of 298 airline miles.

C. E. Woolman, president and general manager of Delta, said the proposed extension, if granted, would permit first direct service to Oklahoma City from Shreveport, Alexandria, Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Monroe, Jackson, Meridian, Birmingham, Montgomery, Columbus and Atlanta. The extension would also provide one-company service from Oklahoma City to the entire southeast.

Present air travelers to Oklahoma City from Shreveport and other cities to the south and east must take a roundabout routing through Dallas and change planes at that point.

Woolman pointed out that both Oklahoma City and Shreveport had many common interests, including the oil well industry; and that the route would give Oklahoma City fast air service to the international port of New Orleans.

M'ADAMS ATTENDS CHICAGO MEETING

Local Sears Manager To Attend 'Congress Of Merchants' This Week

C. D. McAdams, manager of the local Sears, Roebuck and Co. store, will depart for Chicago this week where he will attend a week-long "Congress of Merchants."

All of Sears top retail and mail order executives from all sections of the country will attend this conference which is being held by Sears for the purpose of determining long range merchandising and sales policies. This is the first meeting of its kind to be held by Sears since 1940.

Mr. McAdams, who has been manager of the local Sears Retail operation since June 19 1944, stated that in his absence the store will be managed by R. W. Myers. He reported that Mr. Myers and other members of the store staff are planning to "take advantage" of his absence by staging a specially conceived selling event.

"There are a lot of mysterious conferences and meetings going on around our store these days," said Mr. McAdams, "and it is apparent that the store staff is planning something very special in the way of a selling event during my absence. I am told that as soon as I start on my way to Chicago, these plans will be disclosed."

NEW NASH MODEL INTRODUCED HERE

Much - Rumored 'Rambler' Shown To Monroe Public For First Time

Nash Motors has announced its much rumored completely new "Rambler" automobile. A luxurious 5-passenger custom convertible, first model in a new Nash series, it will compete in the lowest-priced automobile field. It is an addition and does not replace Nash Ambassador or Statesman models. The new car is on public display in dealer showrooms.

Priced below the lowest of today's 5-passenger convertibles, the new Nash Rambler includes at no extra cost about $300 worth of such custom appointments as: an electrically operated top, Weather Eye conditioned air heater, radio, one-piece windshield, direction signals, chrome wheel discs, clock, special upholstery, foam cushions and other custom car features, H. C. Doss, vice-president in charge of sales, said.

According to Doss, "the new car offers up to 30 miles per gallon (more with overdrive), ease of parking, and nimbleness in traffic without sacrificing top performance on open highways. As we see it, the Nash Rambler is a new concept of automotive quality in a compact package," he said.

Introduction of the Nash Rambler marks the start of Nash Motors' 49th year of automobile manufacture. "We take pride in reviving one of the most famous names in automotive history," Doss said. "The first Rambler, built in our present plant in Kenosha, Wisconsin, was introduced in 1902. It was one of America's first mass produced cars."

New standards of safety are claimed for the Nash Rambler convertible. As a foremost feature, the new car combines much of the safety of an all-steel sedan, with the recreational advantages of an open car. New overhead safety protection is accomplished with two heavy steel side rails framing the top of side windows. An integral part of the body, these overhead chrome-trimmed rails also form a strong structural bridge-beam for extra body rigidity. They also carry the built-in tracks for the electrically operated top and serve as attractive frames for the side windows.

The new Rambler's Airflyte-type of unitized-body-and-frame construction results in a lower silhouette and lower center of gravity without loss of front or rear headroom or legroom, Doss said.

Exterior appearance is highlighted with sweeping front to rear fender lines. It is further enhanced by a broad low hood, shorter than other Nash cars, sloping forward offering greater visibility. Body lines flow back from the gracefully rounded front end to the tapered back. Frontal view of the car points up its road-hugging width and stability. The radiator grille, an oval shaped racing-type air scoop, has heavy horizontal bars and blends with the massive front bumper. Headlamps, parking lights and direction signals are recessed in the fenders.

NEW NASH MODEL PLACED ON DISPLAY

DELTA SEEKING NEW AIR LINE

Would Link Shreveport With Oklahoma City In 298 Route

Delta Air Lines filed application Saturday with the Civil Aeronautics Board for a new air route from Shreveport to Oklahoma City, a distance of 298 airline miles.

C. E. Woolman, president and general manager of Delta, said the proposed extension, if granted, would permit first direct service to Oklahoma City from Shreveport, Alexandria, Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Monroe, Jackson, Meridian, Birmingham, Montgomery, Columbus and Atlanta. The extension would also provide one-company service from Oklahoma City to the entire southeast.

Present air travelers to Oklahoma City from Shreveport and other cities to the south and east must take a roundabout routing through Dallas and change planes at that point.

Woolman pointed out that both Oklahoma City and Shreveport had many common interests, including the oil well industry; and that the route would give Oklahoma City fast air service to the international port of New Orleans.

M'ADAMS ATTENDS CHICAGO MEETING

Local Sears Manager To Attend 'Congress Of Merchants' This Week

C. D. McAdams, manager of the local Sears, Roebuck and Co. store, will depart for Chicago this week where he will attend a week-long "Congress of Merchants."

All of Sears top retail and mail order executives from all sections of the country will attend this conference which is being held by Sears for the purpose of determining long range merchandising and sales policies. This is the first meeting of its kind to be held by Sears since 1940.

Mr. McAdams, who has been manager of the local Sears Retail operation since June 19 1944, stated that in his absence the store will be managed by R. W. Myers. He reported that Mr. Myers and other members of the store staff are planning to "take advantage" of his absence by staging a specially conceived selling event.

"There are a lot of mysterious conferences and meetings going on around our store these days," said Mr. McAdams, "and it is apparent that the store staff is planning something very special in the way of a selling event during my absence. I am told that as soon as I start on my way to Chicago, these plans will be disclosed."

The story of Cinderella goes back at least to the year 610 B. C., in the legend of the Egyptian pharaoh Psammetichus. He ordered the country searched for the owner of a leather sandal dropped at his feet by an eagle. When he found her, he made her his queen.

Dr. Anderson Quits Parish Health Post

Dr. W. Carroll Summer, director of the Ouachita Parish Health Unit, announced yesterday the resignation of Dr. Dewey L. Anderson, who has been consultant in tuberculosis for the Ouachita Parish Health Unit since Oct. 1, 1946.

Dr. Anderson's resignation will become effective May 1. He plans to devote his full time to his private practice.

Dr. Anderson interpreted chest x-ray films for tuberculosis for Ouachita parish, and in addition, x-ray films from the adjoining parishes in this area were sent to the local health unit for interpretation. In this way, more efficient and faster service could be rendered to the physicians and patients, since prior to this, it was necessary that all films be sent to New Orleans for interpretation.

Dr. Anderson was responsible for the reorganization of the tuberculosis control program in this parish. The state tuberculosis trailers which visit the parishes once a year for the purpose of x-raying high school children were greatly augmented during his work with the health unit.

When Pope Gregory started the Gregorian calendar in 1582, he directed that Oct. 4 should be followed by Oct. 15.

CAMP KI-RO-LI ADVENTURE SPOT

Will Again Be Scene Of Scouting Activities This Summer

Camp Ki-Ro-Li, for many years a spot of high adventure for boys in northeast Louisiana, will provide wholesome fun and Scoutcraft activities for several hundred boys again this summer, D. C. Harper, chairman of the Ouachita Valley Council camping and that the council's summer camp will open June 4 and continue for six one-week camp periods. Council Scout officials expect the largest camp attendance in the 25 year history of the popular camp.

Harper stated that extensive repair work has been done in most of the facilities at the camp in order that they might pass the most rigid tests of health and safety. Repair work completed includes new screening, roofing, painting, construction of new buildings, and work on the water supply source.

Scouts attending Ki-Ro-Li will come with their own troops and their own leaders. Troops will be permitted to select their own program of activities fitted to their needs. Scoutmasters have already received camp schedules, advising what activities are available on the camp program.

Among activities troops may select while in camp are woodcraft, axemanship, nature, compass, mapping, judging, first aid, swimming, life saving, pioneering, hike craft, handicraft, tracking, stalking, archery, camp craft, outdoor cooking, fire building, knots and splicing, trail camps, orientation, marksmanship.

Gerald Harrigill, field Scout executive, will be camp director. Members of the central camp staff are all men who have completed a course of instruction at the National Boy Scout Camp School, and they are eminently qualified to handle the responsibilities entrusted to them. Leading senior Scouts in the council will also serve on the camp staff and be available for instructions in the many crafts and skills incident to a well-rounded camp program. Special program assistance has also been promised by the forestry service and the National Rifle Association.

Swimming and life saving will again be a feature of the program. Two swim periods each day in the camp's swimming pool will give ample opportunity for every Scout to learn to swim or improve his swimming considerably.

The camp program at Ki-Ro-Li is provided for Scouts at a very low cost. The camp fee paid by each Scout only pays for his food, while the Ouachita Valley Council spends a large amount of money out of its operating budget to provide the camp program, which is a vital part of the character building Scout movement.

Scouts attending camp will check in with their troops on Sunday afternoon and remain until the following Saturday. Troop camp reservations are already coming into the council office and two camp periods are already full. Troop leaders should make reservations as early as possible, in order to be sure of a place in camp for the week desired.

ROBED CHOIR TO GIVE CONCERT

L. S. U. A Cappella Group Scheduled At N. J. C. Tuesday Night

The 65-voice A Capella Choir of L. S. U. will present a concert at Northeast Junior College Brown Hall auditorium, April 25, at 8 p.m. This outstanding choral organization is now making a tour through the northern part of Louisiana and Mississippi. Since its organization under its present conductor, Mr. Dallas Draper, the choir has soared to great heights as a musical organization striving and attaining perfection in the art of pure a cappella singing.

At the beginning of each school year, auditions are held for positions in the choir. These auditions include tone quality and sight-singing tests and how well the individual voice blends in as ensemble. Members of the choir include students from all phases of campus life. It is, however, a very select group.

Plus its two annual concerts at L. S. U., the choir is in constant demand for performances outside Baton Rouge. Last year successful singing engagements were given in Lafayette, Opelousas, Eunice and New Orleans. Last March the choir held a 30-minute concert over the national hook-up of the Mutual Broadcasting Company, receiving many letters of praise from outstanding choral men all over the country.

The performance at Northeast Junior College is free of admission charge and is open to the public.

CAMP KI-RO-LI ADVENTURE SPOT

Will Again Be Scene Of Scouting Activities This Summer

Camp Ki-Ro-Li, for many years a spot of high adventure for boys in northeast Louisiana, will provide wholesome fun and Scoutcraft activities for several hundred boys again this summer, D. C. Harper, chairman of the Ouachita Valley Council camping and that the council's summer camp will open June 4 and continue for six one-week camp periods. Council Scout officials expect the largest camp attendance in the 25 year history of the popular camp.

Harper stated that extensive repair work has been done in most of the facilities at the camp in order that they might pass the most rigid tests of health and safety. Repair work completed includes new screening, roofing, painting, construction of new buildings, and work on the water supply source.

Scouts attending Ki-Ro-Li will come with their own troops and their own leaders. Troops will be permitted to select their own program of activities fitted to their needs. Scoutmasters have already received camp schedules, advising what activities are available on the camp program.

Among activities troops may select while in camp are woodcraft, axemanship, nature, compass, mapping, judging, first aid, swimming, life saving, pioneering, hike craft, handicraft, tracking, stalking, archery, camp craft, outdoor cooking, fire building, knots and splicing, trail camps, orientation, marksmanship.

Gerald Harrigill, field Scout executive, will be camp director. Members of the central camp staff are all men who have completed a course of instruction at the National Boy Scout Camp School, and they are eminently qualified to handle the responsibilities entrusted to them. Leading senior Scouts in the council will also serve on the camp staff and be available for instructions in the many crafts and skills incident to a well-rounded camp program. Special program assistance has also been promised by the forestry service and the National Rifle Association.

Swimming and life saving will again be a feature of the program. Two swim periods each day in the camp's swimming pool will give ample opportunity for every Scout to learn to swim or improve his swimming considerably.

The camp program at Ki-Ro-Li is provided for Scouts at a very low cost. The camp fee paid by each Scout only pays for his food, while the Ouachita Valley Council spends a large amount of money out of its operating budget to provide the camp program, which is a vital part of the character building Scout movement.

Scouts attending camp will check in with their troops on Sunday afternoon and remain until the following Saturday. Troop camp reservations are already coming into the council office and two camp periods are already full. Troop leaders should make reservations as early as possible, in order to be sure of a place in camp for the week desired.

LEON COLE TO APPEAR AGAIN

Popular Entertainer To Give Program On Friday Night

The people of Monroe will again have an opportunity to hear Leon Cole from Nashville, Tenn., popular entertainer at the Hammond organ, on Friday evening, April 28th, at the O. P. H. S. auditorium.

Mr. Cole is quite a comedian as well as a wizard at the console of the Hammond, and his program is one that everyone will enjoy, including popular novelty numbers, semi-classics, and songs everyone loves to hear.

Having been staff organist on radio station W. S. M. for over twenty years, and also presenting the famous twilight concerts at the Centennial Park, Nashville, for fifteen years, Mr. Cole is past master at the organ, and knows what the public likes.

The proceeds from the program go to the Gordon Avenue Methodist Church organ fund, and may be bought from any member of the church, or at the door, Friday evening, April 28th, eight p.m., and the prices are $1.22 including tax, for adults, and 61 cents for students.

SWEET POTATO GROWERS WORRY

Fear Lack Of Price Support For Crop Raised This Year

Sweet potato farmers may get no support help in 1950, according to I. E. Lucas, administrative officer of the Production and Marketing Administration in Ouachita parish. The mandatory price support program was eliminated by the Agricultural Act of 1949.

Mr. Lucas stated that it appears the only help sweet potato farmers can hope for is a type of surplus removal program similar to that sometimes put into effect with respect to cabbage and other vegetables. This is the type of program in which the department of agriculture attempts to prevent ruinous prices to farmers by removing commodities glutting the market. Returns to sweet potato farmers under these surplus removal operations would likely be less than under the mandatory support programs of past years. The extent to which the department can enter into surplus removal programs depends on available funds, available outlets for the surpluses, and other considerations.

Sweet potato farmers will not even qualify for the surplus removal type of program in 1950 if they substantially increase their acreage of sweet potatoes over what was planted in 1949, Mr. Lucas emphasized. Each year the department of agriculture announces by areas suggested acreages for various vegetable crops. Surplus purchases of a commodity are made only if the planted acreage does not substantially exceed the suggested acreage. The 1950 suggested acreage for sweet potatoes is the same as the 1949 acreage.

On or about March 1, Louisiana farmers reported to the bureau of agricultural economics that they intended to substantially increase the acreage of sweet potatoes in 1950. They indicated a 13 per cent increase above the 1949 acreage. If they carry out these intentions they will likely get no help from the government in supporting the price of the 1950 crop of sweet potatoes.

Sheep and goats increased steadily in Texas for 40 years but have dropped the past few years.

Boy Scout Court Of Honor Slated

The April court of honor of the Central Boy Scout District will be held at the Lida Benton School Friday, April 28, 7:30 p.m., it has been announced by Judge Jesse Heard, advancement chairman for the district.

On the program will be numerous advancements in rank and merit badges from many different troops in the central district. There will also be recognition of new tenderfoot Scouts, a special "chalk talk" given by G. F. Crawford, information on Camp Ki-Ro-Li, and an Eagle Scout award. Judge Heard, who will preside over he court, also stated that an attendance award will be given.

Scout Fred G. Perry, Jr., of Troop 67, Sterlington, will be the recipient of the Eagle Scout badge, Scouting's highest rank, on the court of honor program. Young Perry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Perry, of Sterlington. He first joined Troop 67 in September 1947. He advanced to second class in October of that year and to first class in March 1948. After completing work on the merit badges required, he advanced to Star in July 1948. In April 1949, he received his Life Rank.

In qualifying for his Eagle Scout badge, he has earned the following merit badges: physical development, first aid, life saving, safety, swimming, personal health, public health, bird study, camping, civics, cooking, home repairs, firemanship, public speaking, animal industry, photography, music, farm layout, poultry keeping, reading, pathfinding, dog care, scholarship, rabbit raising. In addition to completing the required work for the Eagle badge, Scout Perry has been very active in all troop affairs and has an outstanding record in the troop.

Due to density of population and the importance of marine products in the Japanese diet, coastal fishing off Japan is the most intensified in the world.

Fairbanks Now Ending Revival

Fairbanks Baptist will close out its two week revival Sunday with an all day program at its church. Fairbanks Baptist have been cooperating with over 8,500 other Baptist churches west of the Mississippi river in a simultaneous revival crusade.

Sunday's program will begin with a prayer meeting with the teachers and officers of the church participating at 6:45 a.m. Sunday school and the morning worship services at 11:00 a.m. will carry a theme of evangelism and enlistment of all who have accepted Christ during the revival.

An old fashioned dinner on the ground will be observed at the noon hour and many friends of Fairbanks Church and out of town visitors are expected.

At 2:30 p.m. the church will listen over the American Broadcasting Company to a network program beamed to over 25,000 Baptist churches who will be listening at the same program at the same time to the same speaker in which an evangelist appeal will be made over the radio.

A major crime was committed in the U. S. every 18 seconds in 1949.

Males arrested in the U. S. during 1949 numbered 713,444 or an increase of 4.5 per cent over 1948. Female arrest prints increased only 2.1 per cent over 1948. Fingerprint cards showing the arrests of women made up 9.9 per cent of all the fingerprint cards received during the year.

LEON COLE TO APPEAR AGAIN

Popular Entertainer To Give Program On Friday Night

The people of Monroe will again have an opportunity to hear Leon Cole from Nashville, Tenn., popular entertainer at the Hammond organ, on Friday evening, April 28th, at the O. P. H. S. auditorium.

Mr. Cole is quite a comedian as well as a wizard at the console of the Hammond, and his program is one that everyone will enjoy, including popular novelty numbers, semi-classics, and songs everyone loves to hear.

Having been staff organist on radio station W. S. M. for over twenty years, and also presenting the famous twilight concerts at the Centennial Park, Nashville, for fifteen years, Mr. Cole is past master at the organ, and knows what the public likes.

The proceeds from the program go to the Gordon Avenue Methodist Church organ fund, and may be bought from any member of the church, or at the door, Friday evening, April 28th, eight p.m., and the prices are $1.22 including tax, for adults, and 61 cents for students.

SWEET POTATO GROWERS WORRY

Fear Lack Of Price Support For Crop Raised This Year

Sweet potato farmers may get no support help in 1950, according to I. E. Lucas, administrative officer of the Production and Marketing Administration in Ouachita parish. The mandatory price support program was eliminated by the Agricultural Act of 1949.

Mr. Lucas stated that it appears the only help sweet potato farmers can hope for is a type of surplus removal program similar to that sometimes put into effect with respect to cabbage and other vegetables. This is the type of program in which the department of agriculture attempts to prevent ruinous prices to farmers by removing commodities glutting the market. Returns to sweet potato farmers under these surplus removal operations would likely be less than under the mandatory support programs of past years. The extent to which the department can enter into surplus removal programs depends on available funds, available outlets for the surpluses, and other considerations.

Sweet potato farmers will not even qualify for the surplus removal type of program in 1950 if they substantially increase their acreage of sweet potatoes over what was planted in 1949, Mr. Lucas emphasized. Each year the department of agriculture announces by areas suggested acreages for various vegetable crops. Surplus purchases of a commodity are made only if the planted acreage does not substantially exceed the suggested acreage. The 1950 suggested acreage for sweet potatoes is the same as the 1949 acreage.

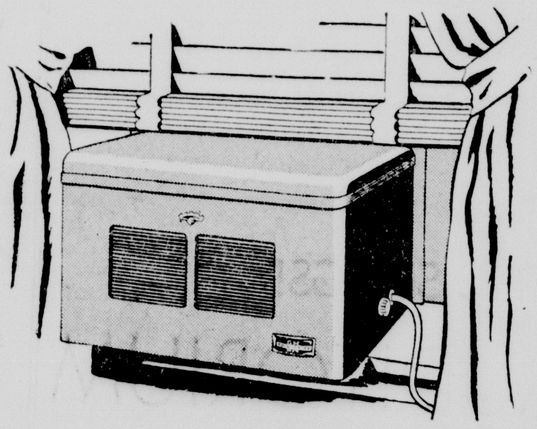

On or about March 1, Louisiana farmers reported to the bureau of agricultural economics that they intended to substantially increase the acreage of sweet potatoes in 1950. They indicated a 13 per cent increase above the 1949 acreage. If they carry out these intentions they will likely get no help from the government in supporting the price of the 1950 crop of sweet potatoes.

Sheep and goats increased steadily in Texas for 40 years but have dropped the past few years.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST
224 Auburn Ave.

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, April 23, 1950.
The Golden Text is: "God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power" (I Cor. 6:14).
Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me" (Ps. 23:4).
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "Mortal man can never rise from the temporal debris of error, belief in sin, sickness, and death, until he learns that God is the only life" (p. 289).

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa

Ernest D. Holloway, minister.
May, the 14th, is the day toward which we are moving and entrance into the educational building. A program has been prepared for the Sabbath. With your cooperation and earnest labors the goal set will be reached: The goal is 500 present for the Church School hour.
"His Thrilling Program" is the subject of the morning message. After the Lord Jesus had risen from the grave he gave orders to his people. A study of that command is thrilling, for it points to the part the believer plays in the progress of His work. Among the ideas in His order are the mission of the Christian, the places of activity, and the dynamic. Our Lord thinks highly of His own, and knows they will carry on.
"Grandstand Religion" is the theme of the evening meditation. Jesus is not favorable to religion that plays to the people, religion that is motivated by selfishness or applause.
The minister will speak at the vesper hour, the Pine Grove Chapel. The hour is six o'clock.
If this is the church of your persuasion the Lord expects you to be loyal. If you have no church home a cordial welcome is extended to worship and a sincere greeting awaits you.

"Man, by philosophy and the exercise of his natural intelligence may gain an understanding, to some extent, of the laws of nature. But to comprehend God, heavenly wisdom and intelligence are necessary. Earthly and heavenly philosophy are two different things, and it is folly for men to base their arguments upon earthly philosophy in trying to unravel the mysteries of the kingdom of God." —John Taylor (third president of the church).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me" (Ps. 23:4).
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "Mortal man can never rise from the temporal debris of error, belief in sin, sickness, and death, until he learns that God is the only life" (p. 289).

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa

Ernest D. Holloway, minister.
May, the 14th, is the day toward which we are moving and entrance into the educational building. A program has been prepared for the Sabbath. With your cooperation and earnest labors the goal set will be reached: The goal is 500 present for the Church School hour.
"His Thrilling Program" is the subject of the morning message. After the Lord Jesus had risen from the grave he gave orders to his people. A study of that command is thrilling, for it points to the part the believer plays in the progress of His work. Among the ideas in His order are the mission of the Christian, the places of activity, and the dynamic. Our Lord thinks highly of His own, and knows they will carry on.
"Grandstand Religion" is the theme of the evening meditation. Jesus is not favorable to religion that plays to the people, religion that is motivated by selfishness or applause.
The minister will speak at the vesper hour, the Pine Grove Chapel. The hour is six o'clock.
If this is the church of your persuasion the Lord expects you to be loyal. If you have no church home a cordial welcome is extended to worship and a sincere greeting awaits you.

"Man, by philosophy and the exercise of his natural intelligence may gain an understanding, to some extent, of the laws of nature. But to comprehend God, heavenly wisdom and intelligence are necessary. Earthly and heavenly philosophy are two different things, and it is folly for men to base their arguments upon earthly philosophy in trying to unravel the mysteries of the kingdom of God."
—John Taylor (third president of the church).

Tulane President Says University's Aim Is Utilization

By Jim Reynolds
(Of The Morning World Staff)

"Our aim at the moment is not expansion. Our primary hope is to utilize our present facilities to the greatest extent." That sounds like a businessman's statement. In a way, it is, but the speaker's business is education.

The gentleman we quoted is Dr. Rufus C. Harris, president of Tulane University, who visited Monroe this week. The subject under discussion was Tulane and its plans for the future.

Dr. Harris and Robert W. French, dean of the School of Commerce and Business Administration, were in Monroe visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Snelling, Jr. Snelling, a prominent local attorney, is a former member of the Tulane Law School faculty. We had a chance to sandwich in an interview with the visiting educators while they were arriving at the Snelling home and almost immediately departing temporarily on a local speaking engagement.

Perhaps it's lost the fact that we're out of school now, but Dr. Harris seemed a lot more pleasant, considerably less ferocious than college presidents have a reputation for being. Since 1938, he has been the head man of the south's outstanding institution, a school held in high regard throughout the world.

The president's comment about Tulane's expansion was made during a discussion of the school's general objectives under Dr. Harris' leadership. "Our aim," said Dr. Harris, "and the general trend of liberal education now, is toward a less specialized undergraduate curriculum. For too many years, our young people have been intensively trained in specific and technical matters to the exclusion, quite often, of sound basic principles of civilization. The result is that we see many technicians who find themselves unable to apply moral and ethical principles to their work."

Tulane's problem of recent years has not been a lack of students. In fact, the school's practise has been to limit enrollment to about 7000, the university's present size, and the maximum number for fullest use of present facilities. An example furnished by Dr. Harris of the fame and popularity of Tulane: Nearly 4000 students applied this year for admittance to the medical school. The freshman class can accomodate only 125.

Despite the overabundance of would-be students, Tulane finds itself, said Dr. Harris, in the position of so many other privately endowed colleges and universities —the cost of operation has risen, in many cases, more than double, while income has remained the same or decreased. "Because of the present high tax structure," said the president, "wealthy people are unable to donate large sums to education. More and more higher education has come to depend on other sources for revenue. Now it's a question of whether universities will be driven into the arms of the government for the money they need."

Dr. Harris views the prospect of government-financed schools with as little enthusiasm as many of the more publicized educators of the day. "When the government supplies money, it expects to help regulate the way that money is spent. Thus the school becomes responsible to the government, and soon to the party in power."

In order to receive the support of the people in its time of need, the school of today must prove its worth to the public, Dr. Harris feels. Recently, Tulane has received nationwide acclaim for its work in the fields of civic benefit. Its schools of architecture and medicine have pioneered in campaigns to improve conditions in New Orleans. At the present time, the School of Commerce and Business Administration is working closely with Crescent City businessmen in a move to improve and stimulate overseas trade.

In addition to the commercial, concrete benefits of a college and university, said Dr. Harris, the cultural projects of higher education bring direct benefits to the people. "Worthwhile cultural programs bring to the people a better understanding of the problems of the day, the problems of their lives, and the means for finding a solution."

"Education has the principal task, especially now, of training people broadly, and overcoming the narrow view. We live from one crisis to another . . . in a period of constant fear. The humane studies must train the citizens of tomorrow to live together in happiness and peace. It sounds like a big order, and it is. Education alone can bring the peace we all are seeking."

Before we left the president to his brief holiday, we commented on the beauty and comfort of the Tulane buildings we'd seen. The answering comment was one we'd like to have made to some of our well-remembered teachers. "Comfort," said Dr. Harris, "is a necessity, if you expect good work. We want the best from our students, so we try to offer them the best in convenience."

Maybe my fourth-grade teacher will read that and regret her ways. Maybe, even, my editor will read it and. . . .

OTTER MAKES GOOD EXHIBIT

Glen Ham, 17-year-old senior at Ouachita Parish High School, is shown above with a large otter he mounted for E. D. McKnight, of Selman field. McKnight said he killed the animal accidentally over a month ago when he struck it with his car on the Milhaven road. The otter weighs at least 25 pounds and is about four a half feet long. School Boys Run Fire Department

SPENCER, W. Va.—The fire-eating dreams of high school boys come true in Spencer. There's none of this business of "don't go too near the fire," or "kids, get out of the way." The "kids" are the fire department of this West Virginia town.

The boys go first—their teachers and parents follow.

It all dates back to 1939 when the town council and business men wanted to provide better fire protection for the community.

A policeman usually jumped to the wheel of the town's truck when the siren sounded. And persons nearest the fire house at the time jumped aboard to man the pumps and hose. It wasn't the most efficient system.

Someone suggested that since the high school boys were together all day, they would be readily available.

The theory paid off. During the past decade, the schoolboy department has been credited with mastering at least four major fires and innumerable smaller ones.

French Jones, a high school teacher, serves as the instructor. He prepped for his duties with a special course at West Virginia University.

To belong to the fire department is rated quite an honor in high school. The permanent force numbers about 20, with selected freshmen replacing graduating seniors each year. It's a competitive proposition and only the most fit are chosen.

The firemen range in age from 14 to 20. The present chief is Junior Evans, 20, a senior. He's a veteran of four years service.

The high school firefighters' most spectacular performance was in 1946. A large tank containing propane gas ruptured. The gas spread through a residential area, became ignited and exploded. The blast leveled two buildings and damaged several houses.

Within a few minutes of the blast, the boys moved into the area and risked their lives to extinguish blazes in several houses and evacuate injured persons.

Indians Came From Asia, Scientists Say

By Miss Frances Flanders
(Ouachita Parish Public Librarian)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two instalments prepared by Miss Flanders and dealing with the Indians of the lower Mississippi valley. The second instalment will be published in next Sunday's Morning World.)

Ever since Columbus discovered America and misnamed the New World aborigines "Indians," the question as to when America was first peopled has been of great interest to both students and laymen. The term "Indian," although patently a misnomer, is still so commonly used and popularly understood that it seems preferable to continue its use.

There are many speculations concerning the settling of the new world. One theory that has been advanced is that they are part of the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, who in some miraculous way made their way to America. Another group believe in the lost continent of Atlantis. While still others believe in the hypothetical continent of "Mu" as the original home of the early Americans.

Serious scientests however discard all these beliefs and are convinced that the early Americans came from Asia, since they are closely related to Asiatic peoples. It is most probable that they wandered across the Bering Strait in search of game. The new world was not populated all at one time. There were successive waves of migration, but no large group came at one time.

From the evidence supplied by excavations of the Folsom and Chochise cultures it is safe to estimate that man entered the new world about fifteen or twenty thousand years ago. Although he has been in this country for a long period, it was many years before any sort of civilization developed. For a period of at least twelve thousand years the Indians camped along streams and lakes, they hunted, they gathered seeds and nuts; they probably made wooden and bone objects; and they got along without farming, pottery and permanent houses. They evolved some new type tools from time to time, but their culture remained basically the same from beginning to end.

Archaeologists and students of Indian history divide the Indians into four groups, geographically, the Southwest, Eastern North America, the Pacific Slope, and the Far North. Each of these is divided into smaller groups. Since I do not have time to discuss the cultures of all the groups, I thought you would be most interested in the Indians of the lower Mississippi Valley in Eastern United States.

The Mississippi Valley of Louisiana and Mississippi is a forested coastal plain with a mild climate. The native vegatation consists of river-bottom forest (cypress, tupelo, and red gum), southeastern pine forest (longleaf, loblolly, and slash) southern hardwood forest, prairie grassland (tall grass) and marsh grassland along the coast. This area is dissected by a broad network of rivers, streams, bayous, and swamps, all of which were navigable by the dugout canoes of the Indians. The fauna furnished ample food for prehistoric Hunting, fishing, and food collect- alluvial soils of the bottom lands were suited to the food-producing activities of the prehistoric farmers.

Archaeologists have divided the cultural periods in the lower Mississippi Valley into five periods. The Archaic period from 500 B. C. to 500 A. D., when the Copell culture prevailed; the Burial Mound I period from 50° to 900 A. D., during the period of the Tchefuncte and Poverty Point cultures; the Burial Mound II period from 900 to 1300 A. D. When the Marksville and Troyville cultures were in existence; the Temple Mound I period from 1300-1500 A. D., when the Coles Greek culture prevailed and the Temple Mound II period from 1500-1700 A. D., at the period of the Plaquemine and Natchezean cultures.

The coppell culture, which probably lasted for a thousand years before the year 500 A. D., had the following characteristics: The people were of medium stature, with large broad faces and high heads. Hunting, fishing, and fool collecting furnished subsistence. Deer, raccoon, otter, muskrat, and other animals supplied food, clothing, and bone for tools. Clams, other shellfish and wild plants, supplied additional food. The dog was the only domesticated animal. They made no pottery. The spear and spearthrower were the principal weapons used in hunting. Leaf shaped knives of a flat base were made of chipped stone. Small tools used for scraping were made of flint flakes with retouched edges. Bone awls were used for drilling or punching holes. Containers or vessels were made of sea shells or turtle shells. They had no pipes. Their beads and necklaces were made of shell or perforated dogs teeth. The deceased were buried in cemeteris, placed upon layers of red and yellow pigment. Burial offerings consisted of tools, weapons, utensils, ornaments, and some additional items, such as clam shells filled with asphaltum, inner whorls of conch shells, jaws of muskrats, worked sections of jaws and teeth of dogs, and teeth of drumfish.

The functe culture of the burial mound I period from 500 A. D. to 900 A. D. had these distinguishing characteristics:

The Indians were of medium stature. The men had medium-long heads and the women had short or round heads. The villages were placed on top of large shell heaps or middens composed of cultural refuse and clam shells. Scattered postholes suggest that their dwellings were crude shelters or windbreaks, probably constructed of a sapling frame covered by thatch, for these materials were most easily obtainable.

Numerous ash beds are found throughout the middens. The inland Indians lived in small villages along the rivers and boyous. A conspicuous feature of the inland sites were the dome-shaped burial mounds of earth ranging in height from a few feet to fifteen feet in diameter from about fifty feet to more than a hundred. The Indians living along the coast hunted, gathered food and fished. The inland tribes were farmers who supplemated their vegetable foods by hunting and gathering. The pottery is rather distinctive. The most characteristic form was a vessel shaped like a flowerpot with a flat bottom or four short legs.

Less common were shallow bowls with rounded bottoms. The pottery was tempered with sand or clay and poorly fired. The colors were buffs and grays. Small hammerstones, flaking implements of bone and antler, sandstone hones forsharpening bone instruments and sandstone saws were used for cutting bones and shells. With these basic tools other implements, weapons and ornaments were produced. The principal hunting weapon was probably the spear and spear thrower made of wood and antler. Pipes were made of clay, and resembled an elongated cigar holder. Ornaments were made of stone, bone, shell, and animal teeth. Pendants were made of tortoise shell, cut animal jaws, bone conch shell, crystal and perforated bear canines or alligator teeth.

The coastal Tchfuncte buried the dead in small pits dug in the midden, with the bodies usually flexed. The inland tribes buried their dead in mounds. These mounds were small, but they foreshadowed a tremendous development in mound building, which did not reach its climax until several hundred years later.

Hexecontandyohedron Keeps Dooler Busy

BALTIMORE — Ulysses Othon's hobby is accomplishing nothing. Just now the nothing he's busy with is a hexecontadyohedron. That's Greek for a geometric figure with 62 sides.

Building such doodads from old venetian blind strips is Othon's sparetime joy. Geometric doodlings fascinate the young New Yorker, who's studying music at the Peabody Conservatory here.

The figures he makes are: Too light for doorstops. Too bulky for bookmarks. Not absorbent enough for penwipers. In short, they're utterly useless. Which is just the charm about them, Othon maintains.

In fact—to add substance to this weightless story—there seems to be a thin line of tradition from Ulysses Othon to Pythagoras and Plato, the ancient Greek philosophers for whom numbers and geometry represented keys to wisdom. Geometric meditations, they and their schools held, were valuable tonics for the soul.

Students Use Research, Not Books To Build Model House

On the face of it, building a model house does not appear to be an implement of progressive education.

But whether it is or isn't Neville High School students found that such a project can be an immense lesson in practicality.

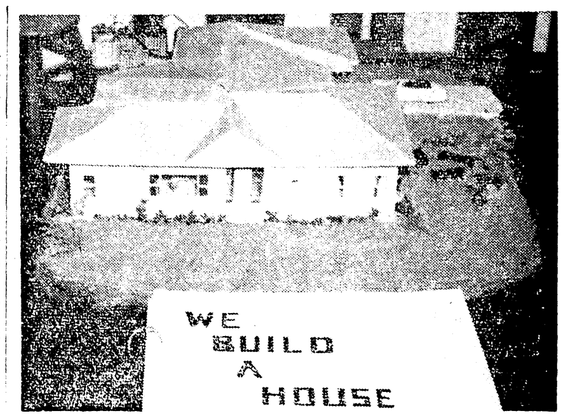

As a teaching device in the general science class, building a model house has proven "well worth the time put in," according to A. E. Culpepper, Jr., science instructor. His belief is that "such a project is far more effective as a teaching device than stuffy classroom lectures."

Just such a routine lecture on modern building methods was interrupted, Culpepper said, when a student one day exclaimed, "why don't we build a model house?" The challenge set up a chain reaction which started an organization of architects, electricians, heating engineers, plumbers, landscapers, interior decorators, color technicians, painters, efficiency experts, and carpenters. Two student general contractors were appointed to supervise the student operations.

Once the students were segregated professionally, the work began.

The architects began looking through magazines, finding and judging house plans. They had talks with Merle Padgett, prominent local architect. Plans were revised, accepted, then revised again. Visits to the construction site of the Howard Griffin home on Glenmar street and interviews with Lamar Moore, general contractor for the Griffin residence, gave the students information that would have been unobtainable in textbooks.

Similarly, the electricians had talks with city and union electricians. They became familiar with the Monroe Electrical Code, received explanations of how Monroe is served with power. Electrical appliances were investigated and experiments made.

This is the model house as it appeared at Louisiana Tech, Ruston, where it recently won first prize in the Louisiana Academy of Science exhibits. Neville students constructed it.

Plumbing codes and union wage scales were looked into; they found that high prices for plumbing in Monroe were reasonably justified.

Floor furnaces, central heating systems, attic fans and air conditioning were those items receiving the attention of student heating engineers.

Of these things heating engineers agreed: airconditioning for the modern home in Monroe is an impractical expense; attic fans are much more sensible to have; a central heating system is the thing for modern homes in this area.

An official at Durrett Furniture Company gave interior decorators information on the evolution of furniture, while Frank Davis of Keystone Paint Company told them about the blending and mixture of colors.

Kitchen and bathroom appliances were the object of the girls' eyes.

They consulted the Consumer Guide for costs and serviceability of appliances on the market, then pelted appliance stores with questions.

With all this preparation, the students settled down to building a miniature home. When an obstacle presented itself, a trip back to a tradesman for additional information helped remove the obstacle.

Several days ago, the house was completed. Officials at the Academy of Science holding exhibits in Ruston awarded the model house first prize. The award came at the pinnacle of weeks of laborious inquiry into modern-day problems in housing—the hundreds of practical, everyday things most of the students will be confronted with later in life.

All this was done with not one peek at their text book.

Rent For Negroes' Homes Set At Dollar A Day

By Rex Thomas

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — If you'd need in a back-alley shack all your life how would you like to buy a new two-bedroom house for nothing down and $1 a day?

That's the deal offered to 451 Negro families in this birthplace of the Confederacy. The bankers say it's merely a symbol of the racial outlook of the "New South."

The all-Negro housing project, one of the biggest ever undertaken this side of the Mason-Dixon line, is the work of two ex-GI contractors, 33-year-old Jimmy Folmar and Henry L. Flinn, Jr., 31.

Their $2,000,000 subdivision near the outskirts of Montgomery is the newest venture in an amazing business career that began three years ago when Folmar and Flinn borrowed $5,000 and started building homes.

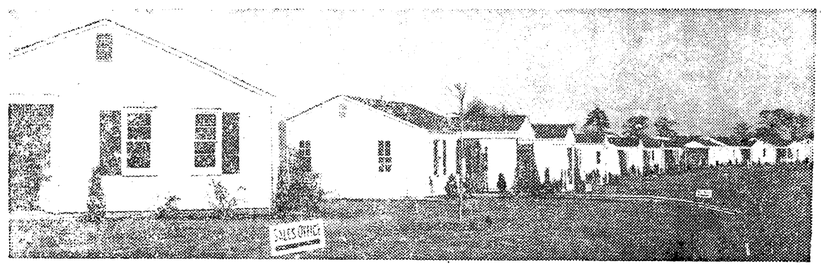

Planned as Slum Clearance

The Negro project will enable the 451 buyers to live in comfort on a par with the white population of a proud city where orders were given to start the Civil War. It will partly erase the blight of the tinny, half-tallen-down shanties that have been the Negro's lot.

What's more, the new houses are financed so the Negroes who need them most can afford them. The gleaming white dwellings, on landscaped lots complete with shrubbery, sell for $5,200, and payments include everything — taxes, insurance, handling costs.

Prices in even the lowest income brackets can get in on the bargain, too, because it's strictly a nothing-down-dollar-a-day proposition. Payments can be made monthly, weekly, even daily if need be.

The low price is made possible by the mass-producing operations of the Folmar - Flinn team, which is completing the new homes at the rate of 15 a day.

The new south, as typified in Montgomery's homes for Negroes sold for nothing down and $1-a-day.

How Cost Breaks Down

Actually, the houses themselves cost only $3,800. The rest of the sale price takes in $1,000 for a lot plus $490 for taxes, insurance and handling fees.

There's one restriction: The dwellings must be occupied by the buyers. Otherwise one man could gobble up several and make a fat profit.

Folmar and Flinn are proud of the new development, but "mainly because it shows to the world that the south is taking care of its own."

"Many outsiders have a funny idea about the way the south is handling what they call its Negro proglem," the Alabama-born builders continued. "Actually, living conditions are being bettered at an almost incredible rate throughout the south."

It's The New South

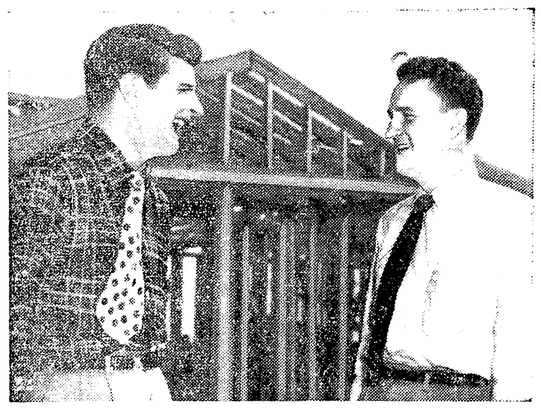

They pointed across the street to a new $1,000,000 Negro high school and a Negro hospital nearby which will cost more than that when completed.

"The new south is not something in the future," they observed. 'It is already a reality."

"Flormat and Flint" — that's what they call themselves — were flat broke when they got out of the Air Force after World War II and decided to go into the building business.

They'd never even put up as much as a doll house before, but that didn't bother them. They went to an insurance company and asked to borrow $5,000,000. They got the money and paid it back in two years.

Since they started, the young contractors have built homes for themselves and 1,497 other families at a cost of $10,500,000. They hire 400 to 500 workmen and the payroll tops $50,000 a month.

Planning A Garden Is A Job

By Cynthia Lowry

Planning a garden, an annual ever-changing job, is a pretty complicated activity.

A garden is a highly personal thing, as much a part of its owner as his handwriting. It reflects his taste, his pride and his personality. If one gardens at all, one must put plenty of thought into it.

Arm-chair gardening, pleasant as it is, is deluding. Most of us outline on paper a program far too ambitious to carry out satisfactorily. Once we dig up and plant more than we can tend in available time, we're faced with letting the whole grounds look seedy and run-down, hiring expensive and usually unsatisfactory assistance, or losing much of our pleasure by having to work too hard keeping things in control.

Everyone should have a realistic conversation with himself about the amount of work he wants to do in the garden. A small-well-tended garden is infinitely to be preferred to a big one, if it isn't going to get the attention it needs. Even a small bed of flowers requires an big investment in time and work, and if that time is grudgingly spent, it's better to invest in trees, shrubs and grass and let it go at that.

So before drawing the essential, garden map and plan, decide how much work you want to do. If you want to be a Saturday gardener, don't spade up the entire north forty. If you propose to put in a couple of hours each night after work and spend a two-day week-end with spading fork and handweeder, the garden can be larger.

No one can measure your strength and enthusiasm but yourself, and at this time of year you are very apt to be deceived by your own estimates. Take it easy and have your garden too small rather than too large. You can always expand later.

Another important decision is the location of the garden itself. It's not entirely a matter of the richness of soil and how the sun hits your property. Think also of the family's outdoor living habits. A garden may be an outdoor living room — and as such should be planned as an extension of the house.

It may be a cutting garden, a mass of color you want to enjoy from a distance. In any event, it should be placed in harmony with the rest of the ground's landscaping. It should be planned in related units so that its owner will not spend most of the time tidying up a chopped up series of beds and plantings.

It's never too late to repair mistakes. If the rose garden at the corner was a mess because everyone took short-cuts across, you can always transplant the roses, reseed and try a new area. If the vegetable garden proved to be an extension of the children's play ground, that too can be moved or fenced in.

The point is to know what you want from a garden. If it's vegetables, its location will be slightly different than the spot you'd pick for the mass plantings of gladiolus.

Once these matters are ironed out, it's time to reach for the tape measure, the paper and pencil and get ahead with the businesses of planning the garden itself—what goes into it and what you want to take out of it.

Tulane President Says University's Aim Is Utilization

By Jim Reynolds
(Of The Morning World Staff)

"Our aim at the moment is not expansion. Our primary hope is to utilize our present facilities to the greatest extent." That sounds like a businessman's statement. In a way, it is, but the speaker's business is education.

The gentleman we quoted is Dr. Rufus C. Harris, president of Tulane University, who visited Monroe this week. The subject under discussion was Tulane and its plans for the future.

Dr. Harris and Robert W. French, dean of the School of Commerce and Business Administration, were in Monroe visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Snelling, Jr. Snelling, a prominent local attorney, is a former member of the Tulane Law School faculty. We had a chance to sandwich in an interview with the visiting educators while they were arriving at the Snelling home and almost immediately departing temporarily on a local speaking engagement.

Perhaps it's just the fact that we're out of school now, but Dr. Harris seemed a lot more pleasant, considerably less ferocious than college presidents have a reputation for being. Since 1938, he has been the head of one of the south's outstanding institutions, a school held in high regard throughout the world.

The president's comment about Tulane's expansion was made during a discussion of the school's general objectives under Dr. Harris' leadership. "Our aim," said Dr. Harris, "and the general trend of liberal education now, is toward a less specialized undergraduate curriculum. For too many years, our young people have been intensively trained in specific and technical matters to the exclusion, quite often, of sound basic principles of civilization. The result is that we see many technicians who find themselves unable to apply moral and ethical principles to their work."

Tulane's problem of recent years has not been a lack of students. In fact, the school's practise has been to limit enrollment to about 7000, the university's present size, and the maximum number for fullest use of present facilities. An example furnished by Dr. Harris of the fame and popularity of Tulane: Nearly 4000 students applied this year for admittance to the medical school. The freshman class can accomodate only 125.

Despite the overabundance of would-be students, Tulane finds itself, said Dr. Harris, in the position of so many other privately endowed colleges and universities —the cost of operation has risen, in many cases, more than doubled, while income has remained the same or decreased. "Because of the present high tax structure," said the president, "wealthy people are unable to donate large sums to education. More and more higher education has come to depend on other sources for revenue. Now it's a question of whether universities will be driven into the arms of the government for the money they need."

Dr. Harris views the prospect of government-financed schools with as little enthusiasm as many of the more publicized educators of the day. "When the government supplies money, it expects to help regulate the way that money is spent. Thus the school becomes responsible to the government, and soon to the party in power."

In order to receive the support of the people in its time of need, the school of today must prove its worth to the public, Dr. Harris feels. Recently, Tulane has received nationwide acclaim for its work in the fields of civic benefit. Its schools of architecture and medicine have pioneered in campaigns to improve conditions in New Orleans. At the present time, the School of Commerce and Business Administration is working closely with Crescent City businessmen in a move to improve and stimulate overseas trade.

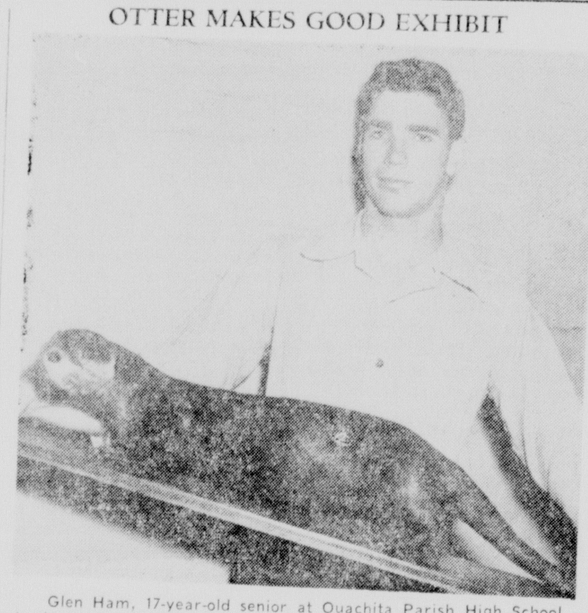

In addition to the commercial, concrete benefits of a college and university, said Dr. Harris, the cultural projects of higher education bring direct benefits to the people. "Worthwhile cultural programs bring to the people a better understanding of the problems of the day, the problems of their lives, and the means for finding a solution."

"Education has the principal task, especially now, of training people broadly, and overcoming the narrow view. We live from one crisis to another . . . in a period of constant fear. The humane studies must train the citizens of tomorrow to live together in happiness and peace. It sounds like a big order, and it is. Education alone can bring the peace we all are seeking."

Before we left the president to his brief holiday, we commented on the beauty and comfort of the Tulane buildings we'd seen. The answering comment was one we'd like to have made to some of our well-remembered teachers. "Comfort," said Dr. Harris, "is a necessity, if you expect good work. We want the best from our students, so we try to offer them the best in convenience."

Maybe my fourth-grade teacher will read that and regret her ways. Maybe, even, my editor will read it and. . . .

School Boys Run Fire Department

SPENCER, W. Va.—The fire-eating dreams of high school boys come true in Spencer. There's none of this business of "don't go too near the fire," or "kids, get out of the way." The "kids" are the fire department of this West Virginia town.

The boys go first—their teachers and parents follow.

It all dates back to 1939 when the town council and business men wanted to provide better fire protection for the community.

A policeman usually jumped to the wheel of the town's truck when the siren sounded. And persons nearest the fire house at the time jumped aboard to man the pumps and hose. It wasn't the most efficient system.

Someone suggested that since the high school boys were together all day, they would be readily available.

The theory paid off. During the past decade, the schoolboy department has been credited with mastering at least four major fires and innumerable smaller ones.

French Jones, a high school teacher, serves as the instructor. He prepped for his duties with a special course at West Virginia University.

To belong to the fire department is rated quite an honor in high school. The permanent force numbers about 20, with selected freshmen replacing graduating seniors each year. It's a competitive proposition and only the most fit are chosen.

The firemen range in age from 14 to 20. The present chief is Junior Evans, 20, a senior. He's a veteran of four years service.

The high school firefighters' most spectacular performance was in 1946. A large tank containing propane gas ruptured. The gas spread through a residential area, became ignited and exploded. The blast leveled two buildings and damaged several houses.

Within a few minutes of the blast, the boys moved into the area and risked their lives to extinguish blazes in several houses and evacuate injured persons.

Indians Came From Asia, Scientists Say

By Miss Frances Flanders
(Ouachita Parish Public Librarian)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two installments prepared by Miss Flanders and dealing with the Indians of the lower Mississippi valley. The second installment will be published in next Sunday's Morning World.)

Ever since Columbus discovered America and misnamed the New World aborigines "Indians," the question as to when America was first peopled has been of great interest to both students and laymen. The term "Indian," although patently a misnomer, is still so commonly used and popularly understood that it seems preferable to continue its use.

There are many speculations concerning the settling of the new world. One theory that has been advanced is that they are part of the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, who in some miraculous way made their way to America. Another group believe in the lost continent of Atlantis. While still others believe in the hypothetical continent of "Mu" as the original home of the early Americans.

Serious scientests however discard all these beliefs and are convinced that the early Americans came from Asia, since they are closely related to Asiatic peoples. It is most probable that they wandered across the Bering Strait in search of game. The new world was not populated all at one time. There were successive waves of migration, but no large group came at one time.

From the evidence supplied by excavations of the Folsom and Chochise cultures it is safe to estimate that man entered the new world about fifteen or twenty thousand years ago. Although he has been in this country for a long period, it was many years before any sort of civilization developed. For a period of at least twelve thousand years the Indians camped along streams and lakes, they hunted, they gathered seeds and nuts; they probably made wooden and bone objects; and they go along without farming, pottery and permanent houses. They evolved some new type tools from time to time, but their culture remained basically the same from beginning to end.

Archaeologists and students of Indian history divide the Indians into four groups, geographically, the Southwest, Eastern North America, the Pacific Slope, and the Far North. Each of these is divided into smaller groups. Since I do not have time to discuss the cultures of all the groups, I thought you would be most interested in the Indians of the lower Mississippi Valley in Eastern United States.

The Mississippi Valley of Louisiana and Mississippi is a forested coastal plain with a mild climate. The native vegatation consists of river-bottom forest (cypress, tupelo, and red gum), southeastern pine forest (longleaf, loblolly, and slash) southern hardwood forest, prairie grassland (tall grass) and marsh grassland along the coast. This area is dissected by a broad network of rivers, streams, bayous, and swamps, all of which were navigable by the dugout canoes of the Indians. The fauna furnished ample food for prehistoric Hunting, fishing, and food collect-alluvial soils of the bottom lands were suited to the food-producing activities of the prehistoric farmers.

Archaeologists have divided the cultural periods in the lower Mississippi Valley into five periods. The Archaic period from 500 B. C. to 500 A. D., when the Copell culture prevailed; the Burial Mound I period from 50[illegible] to 900 A. D., during the period of the Tchefuncte and Poverty Point cultures; the Burial Mound II period from 900 to 1300 A. D. When the Marksville and Troyville cultures were in existence; the Temple Mound I period from 1300-1500 A. D., when the Coles Greek culture prevailed and the Temple Mound II period from 1500-1700 A. D., at the period of the Plaquemine and Natchezean cultures.

The coppell culture, which probably lasted for a thousand years before the year 500 A. D., had the following characteristics: The people were of medium stature, with large broad faces and high heads. Hunting, fishing, and fool collecting furrished subsistence. Deer, raccoon, otter, muskrat, and other animals supplied food, clothing, and bone for tools. Clams, other shellfish and wild plants, supplied additional food. The dog was the only domesticated animal. They made no pottery. The spear and spearthrower were the principal weapons used in hunting. Leaf shaped knives of a flat base were made of chipped stone. Small tools used for scraping were made of flint flakes with retouched edges. Bone awls were used for drilling or punching holes. Containers or vessels were made of sea shells or turtle shells. Burial offerings consisted of tools, weapons, utensils, ornaments, and some additional items, such as clam shells filled with asphaltum, inner whorls of conch shells, jaws of muskrats, worked sections of jaws and teeth of dogs, and teeth of drumfish.

They'd never even put up as much as a doll house before, but that didn't bother them. They went to an insurance company and asked to borrow $5,000,000. They got the money and paid it back in two years.

Since they started, the young contractors have built homes for themselves and 1,497 other families at a cost of $10,500,000. They hire 400 to 500 workmen and the payroll tops $50,000 a month.

BALTIMORE — Ulysses Othon's hobby is accomplishing nothing. Just now the nothing he's busy with is a hexecontadyohedron. That's Greek for a geometric figure with 62 sides.

Building such doodads from old venetian blind strips is Othon's sparetime joy. Geometric doodlings fascinate the young New Yorker, who's studying music at the Peabody Conservatory here.

The figures he makes are: Too light for doorstops. Too bulky for bookmarks. Not absorbent enough for penwipers. In short, they're utterly useless. Which is just the charm about them, Othon maintains.

In fact—to add substance to this weightless story—there seems to be a thin line of tradition from Ulysses Othon to Pythagoras and Plato, the ancient Greek philosophers for whom numbers and geometry represented keys to wisdom. Geometric meditations, they and their schools held, were valuable tonics for the soul.

Planning A Garden Is A Job

By Cynthia Lowry

Planning a garden, an annual ever-changing job, is a pretty complicated activity.

A garden is a highly personal thing, as much a part of its owner as his handwriting. It reflects his taste, his pride and his personality. If one gardens at all, one must put plenty of thought into it.

Arm-chair gardening, pleasant as it is, is deluding. Most of us outline on paper a program far too ambitious to carry out satisfactorily. Once we dig up and plant more than we can tend in available time, we're faced with letting the whole grounds look seedy and run-down, hiring expensive and usually unsatisfactory assistance, or losing much of our pleasure by having to work too hard keeping things in control.

Everyone should have a realistic conversation with himself about the amount of work he wants to do in the garden. A small-well-tended garden is infinitely to be preferred to a big one, if it isn't going to get the attention it needs. Even a small bed of flowers requires an big investment in time and work, and if that time is grudgingly spent, it's better to invest in trees, shrubs and grass and let it go at that.

So before drawing the essential, garden map and plan, decide how much work you want to do. If you want to be a Saturday gardener, don't spade up the entire north forty. If you propose to put in a couple of hours each night after work and spend a two-day week-end with spading fork and handweeder, the garden can be larger.

No one can measure your strength and enthusiasm but yourself, and at this time of year you are very apt to be deceived by your own estimates. Take it easy and have your garden too small rather than too large. You can always expand later.

Another important decision is the location of the garden itself. It's not entirely a matter of the richness of soil and how the sun hits your property. Think also of the family's outdoor living habits. A garden may be an outdoor living room — and as such should be planned as an extension of the house.

Planning Planting—It's best to know before you grow.

It may be a cutting garden, a mass of color you want to enjoy from a distance. In any event, it should be placed in harmony with the rest of the ground's landscaping. It should be planned in related units so that its owner will not spend most of the time tidying up a chopped up series of beds and plantings.

It's never too late to repair mistakes. If the rose garden at the corner was a mess because everyone took short-cuts across, you can always transplant the roses, reseed and try a new area. If the vegetable garden proved to be an extension of the children's play ground, that too can be moved or fenced in.

The point is to know what you want from a garden. If it's vegetables, its location will be slightly different than the spot you'd pick for the mass plantings of gladiolus.

Once these matters are ironed out, it's time to reach for the tape measure, the paper and pencil and get ahead with the businesses of planning the garden itself—what goes into it and what you want to take out of it.

(Next week: What to plant for succession of bloom)

Academy Award Winner, 'Red Shoes,' Opens Here

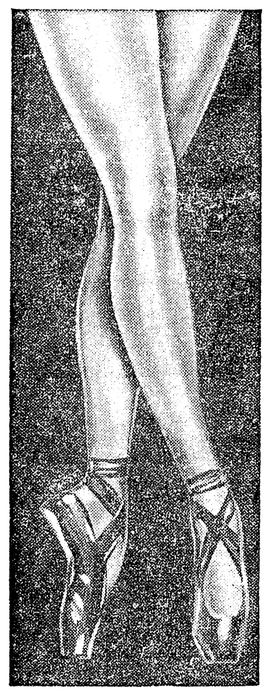

Film Which Has Shown At Road-Show Prices Coming To Paramount

Few films in the history of the screen have won the uniformly great honors heaped on "The Red Shoes," the J. Arthur Rank dance-and-drama romance in Technicolor opening here on Monday at the Paramount Theater. This showing of "The Red Shoes" will be the first time the remarkable film has been available at popular-prices. It comes direct from a sensational more-than-a-year run in New York and elsewhere at reserved-seat scales.

From the day of its debut in the U. S., "The Red Shoes' swept up laurel after laurel. The National Board of Review put it on its list of ten-best. The New York critics adorned it with unstinting priase and also chose it for their ten-best category. No less than three Academy Awards went to it when these were given out. Newspapers not only reviewed and acclaimed it but several wrote editorials about it, an almost unheard-of procedure. The Encyclopedia Britannica chose it to illustrate the motion picutre section of the 1949 Britannica Book of the Year.

Heading the cast of "The Red Shoes," an Eagle Lion Films release, which was adapted from Hans Christian Andersen's most beloved story, are Anton Walbrook, Marius Goring, Moira Shearer, Leonide Massine, Robert Helpmann, Albert Basserman, Ludmilla Tcherina and Esmond Knight. The full-lenght Ballet of The Red Shoes, which is one of the film's highlights, is presented with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra under the baton of Sir Thomas Beecham.

'RED SHOES'

"The Red Shoes," winner of three Academy awards and seen by millions at $2.40, opens Monday at the Paramount theater for a three-day engagement at popular prices.

'AMBUSH' RATED EXCELLENT FILM

Robert Taylor Is Starred In Rousing Drama Of The Old West

The ingredients of a superlative outdoor drama—trigger-quick action gun fights, Indian forays, spectacular horsemanship and magnificent scenic backgrounds—are effectively combined in "Ambush," which brings Robert Taylor, John Hodiak and Arlene Dahl to the Joy next Sunday.

M-G-M shrewdly entrusted this super-western, the first big picture of its type it has made in almost a decade, to Sam Wood, the discerning director who did such a fine job with "The Stratton Story," and who once again infuses human interest, a quality of credibility and distinctive atmospheric color into his new drama of a wily scout employed by an army post commander to lead troops to the capture of a marauding and murderous Apache renegade.

The daring escape of Robert Taylor, cast as the scout, from his Apache pursuers, a spectacular battle between Indians and troopers, the animosity between Taylor and John Hodiak, playing the post's stuffed-shirt second-in-command leading to a blood-drawing slugging match, a suspense-filled ambush set by Diablito, the Apache renegade and his followers, and Taylor's final deadly encounter with the Indian, are action highlights of a story revolving around a triangle comprising Taylor, Hodiak and Arlene Dahl.

"Ambush" offers Taylor his first western characterization since the memorable "Billy the Kid," and he gives the part of the scout a rugged- two-fisted validity. Hodiak is excellent as Capt. Lorrison, who sticks by what West Point has taught him, and the fetching Miss Dahl is alluring enough to make the feud between the two men over her charms seem more than reasonable. There are also a number of fine supportnig portrayals, among them those of Don Taylor as a trooper in love with the unhappily married Jean Hagen, John McIntire as an intrepid Indian fighter, Bruse Cowling as a drunken wife beater, Leon Ames as the post commandant and Charles Stevens as the murderous Diablito.

Filmed almost entirely on location in New Mexico, "Ambush" offers its spectators a visual as well as dramatic treat. Its breathtaking shots of mountains and canyons in which the Apache battles take place are among the finest ever seen on the screen.

MARIA MONTEZ IN 'ALI BABA' HERE

Jon Hall Co-Starred In TechC nicolor Film Playing At Paramount

All the enchantment and exotic allure that filmgoers have come to identify with the name of Maria Montez returns to the screen—in Technicolor—at the Paramount Theater when Realart's "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" opens its engagement today.

Miss Montez, if anything, exceeds the spitfire charm she exhibited in such earlier Technicolor successes as "Arabian Nights," "White Savage" and "Cobra Woman," and profits well by the lavish Oriental background which marks the picture throughout.

Co-starred with the lovely Maria are Jon Hall, who again is teamed with her effectively in the love theme, and handsome Turhan Bey, a handsome favorite in the realm of top-billed screen personalities whose engaging performance well merits his success.

Locale of the elaborate film fantasy is ancient Bagdad in the days of its most resplendent glory. Miss Montez appears as a princess whose treacherous father brings about the slaying of the Caliph and the conquest of Bagdad by Mongol hordes. Hall, son of the dead Caliph, joins forces with a band of jolly thieves and, in league with the princess' slave, convincingly portrayed by Bey, finally ousts the cruel Khan from the city. Not, however, before the generous amount of fast-gripping action which has come to be expected from these Hollywood period adventures has been reeled off.

Highlights of the pictorially superb story come when Miss Montez bathes by moonlight in an oasis pool, and recreation of the delightful fable about Ali Baba, the forty thieves and the miracle of their mountain Sesame, which opens and closes upon command.

Featured importantly in the excellent cast are Fortunio Bonanova, as head of the thieves; Andy Devine, Ramsay Ames, Moroni Olsen, Frank Puglia, Kurt Katch and two talented youngsters, Yvette Duguay and Scotty Beckett.

Edmund L. Hartmann authored the screenplay of "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves." It is a Paul Malvern production, directed by Arthur Lubin. Photographic credit goes to George Robinson and Natalie Kalmus, as Technicolor director.

U. S. HAS 80,000 RADIO AMATEURS

WEST HARTFORD, Conn.—(AP)—The American Radio Relay League estimates that the total number of owners of amateur radio stations, both telegraph and phone, runs close to 80,000 in the United States. The rest of the world has 20,000.

MARILYN MAXWELL and LORETTA YOUNG have CLARK GABLE right where he wants to be, in MGM's "KEY TO THE CITY."

Gable And Loretta Young Starred In Joy Feature

'Key To The City' Opens Today And Runs Through Entire Week

Clark Gable and Lorette Young, two Academy Award-winning stars, are teamed in "Key to the City," the new M. G. M. attraction at the Joy Theater. It's the rollicking story of two mayors, one a former longshoreman, the other a girl graduate of Harvard, who meet at a San Francisco convention and leave that city practically handing on the Golden Gate bridge after a whirlwind romance.

In his most hilarious comedy role since the memorable 'It Happened One Night," Gable is seen as the two-fisted longshoreman who becomes mayor of a large city and defeats a gang of crooked politicians, then finds himself making a losing fight against love. Miss Young, following her recent hit in "Come to the Stable" enacts the prim lady mayor from Maine who loses her dignity after a series of breathtaking and rib-tickling escapades with Gable. The picture marks the first appearance together of the two stars since their joint success in "Call of the Wild."

Marilyn Maxwell, who scored as the prizefighter's moll in 'Champion," and Pamela Britton, returning to the screen after starring on the stage in "Brigadoon," have outstanding roles as two beautiful but dumb girl friends of Gable. Miss Maxwell, as a night club entertainer, introduces the sensational Atom Dance, while Miss Britton has a riotous characterization as "Miss Unconscious."

Others in a hand-picked supporting cast include Frank Morgan, playing a fire chief, Raymond Burr as Gable's political enemy, James Gleason as a police sergeant, Lewis Stone, back in the role of a judge, and Raymond Walburn, a henpecked husband.

"Key to the City" was directed by George Sidney, credited with such successes as "The Red Danube," "Cass Timberlane," and "The Three Musketeers." It was produced by Z. Wayne Griffin, most recent addition to the ranks of M. G. M. producers and for years one of the most successful producer-directors in radio. His first film production was the highly popular "Family Honeymoon."

Indians Asked To Give Peace Agreement Try

CALCUTTA, India, April 25.—(AP)—Deputy Prime Minister Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel today asked Indians living in this Bengal city to give the India-Pakistan agreement a chance to work. Bengel is split between India and Pakistan.

Patel said in a broadcast:

"The question before West (Indiana) Bengal is not so much whether the agreement is bad or good, beneficial or harmful, but whether in the face of the stark reality of a partitioned Bengal under two independent governments and placed in the present circumstances, any other peaceful means is open to bring faith, succor and relief to the victims in the recent disturbances on both sides of the border."

'DAKOTA LIL' GOMING SOON TO PARAMOUNT

An action-packed western, Twentieth Century - Fox's release of the Alson production, "Dakota Lil," photographed in Cinecolor, is coming Thursday to the Paramount Theater. George Montgomery, as a secret service agent; Marie Windsor in the title role of dance hall queen; and Rod Cameron, who portrays a vicious outlaw chieftain always looking for trouble and often getting it, co-star in this Edward L. Alperson presentation written by Maurice Geraghty and directed by Lesley Selander.

"Dakota Lil" is a saga of a colorful era in western annals. It deals with the lawless elements of the Wyoming badlands and with the role played by the United States secret service in conquering the area for the side of law and order and making it a fit place in which to live.

The story was written out of authentic material and the Geraghty screenplay is thus virtually a historical document about the territory during the transitional period when the law was beginning to come into its own in a lawless country.

Gable And Loretta Young Starred In Joy Feature

'Key To The City' Opens Today And Runs Through Entire Week

Clark Gable and Lorette Young, two Academy Award-winning stars, are teamed in "Key to the City," the new M. G. M. attraction at the Joy Theater. It's the rollicking story of two mayors, one a former longshoreman, the other a girl graduate of Harvard, who meet at a San Francisco convention and leave that city practically handing on the Golden Gate bridge after a whirlwind romance.

In his most hilarious comedy role since the memorable 'It Happened One Night," Gable is seen as the two-fisted longshoreman who becomes mayor of a large city and defeats a gang of crooked politicians, then finds himself making a losing fight against love. Miss Young, following her recent hit in "Come to the Stable" enacts the prim lady mayor from Maine who loses her dignity after a series of breathtaking and rib-tickling escapades with Gable. The picture marks the first appearance together of the two stars since their joint success in "Call of the Wild."

Marilyn Maxwell, who scored as the prizefighter's moll in 'Champion," and Pamela Britton, returning to the screen after starring on the stage in "Brigadoon," have outstanding roles as two beautiful but dumb girl friends of Gable. Miss Maxwell, as a night club entertainer, introduces the sensational Atom Dance, while Miss Britton has a riotous characterization as "Miss Unconscious."

Others in a hand-picked supporting cast include Frank Morgan, playing a fire chief, Raymond Burr as Gable's political enemy, James Gleason as a police sergeant, Lewis Stone, back in the role of a judge, and Raymond Walburn, a henpecked husband.

"Key to the City" was directed by George Sidney, credited with such successes as "The Red Danube," "Cass Timberlane," and "The Three Musketeers." It was produced by Z. Wayne Griffin, most recent addition to the ranks of M. G. M. producers and for years one of the most successful producer-directors in radio. His first film production was the highly popular "Family Honeymoon."

Indians Asked To Give Peace Agreement Try

CALCUTTA, India, April 25.—(AP)—Deputy Prime Minister Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel today asked Indians living in this Bengal city to give the India-Pakistan agreement a chance to work. Bengel is split between India and Pakistan.

Patel said in a broadcast:

"The question before West (Indiana) Bengal is not so much whether the agreement is bad or good, beneficial or harmful, but whether in the face of the stark reality of a partitioned Bengal under two independent governments and placed in the present circumstances, any other peaceful means is open to bring faith, succor and relief to the victims in the recent disturbances on both sides of the border."

'DAKOTA LIL' GOMING SOON TO PARAMOUNT

An action-packed western, Twentieth Century - Fox's release of the Alson production, "Dakota Lil," photographed in Cinecolor, is coming Thursday to the Paramount Theater. George Montgomery, as a secret service agent; Marie Windsor in the title role of dance hall queen; and Rod Cameron, who portrays a vicious outlaw chieftain always looking for trouble and often getting it, co-star in this Edward L. Alperson presentation written by Maurice Geraghty and directed by Lesley Selander.

"Dakota Lil" is a saga of a colorful era in western annals. It deals with the lawless elements of the Wyoming badlands and with the role played by the United States secret service in conquering the area for the side of law and order and making it a fit place in which to live.

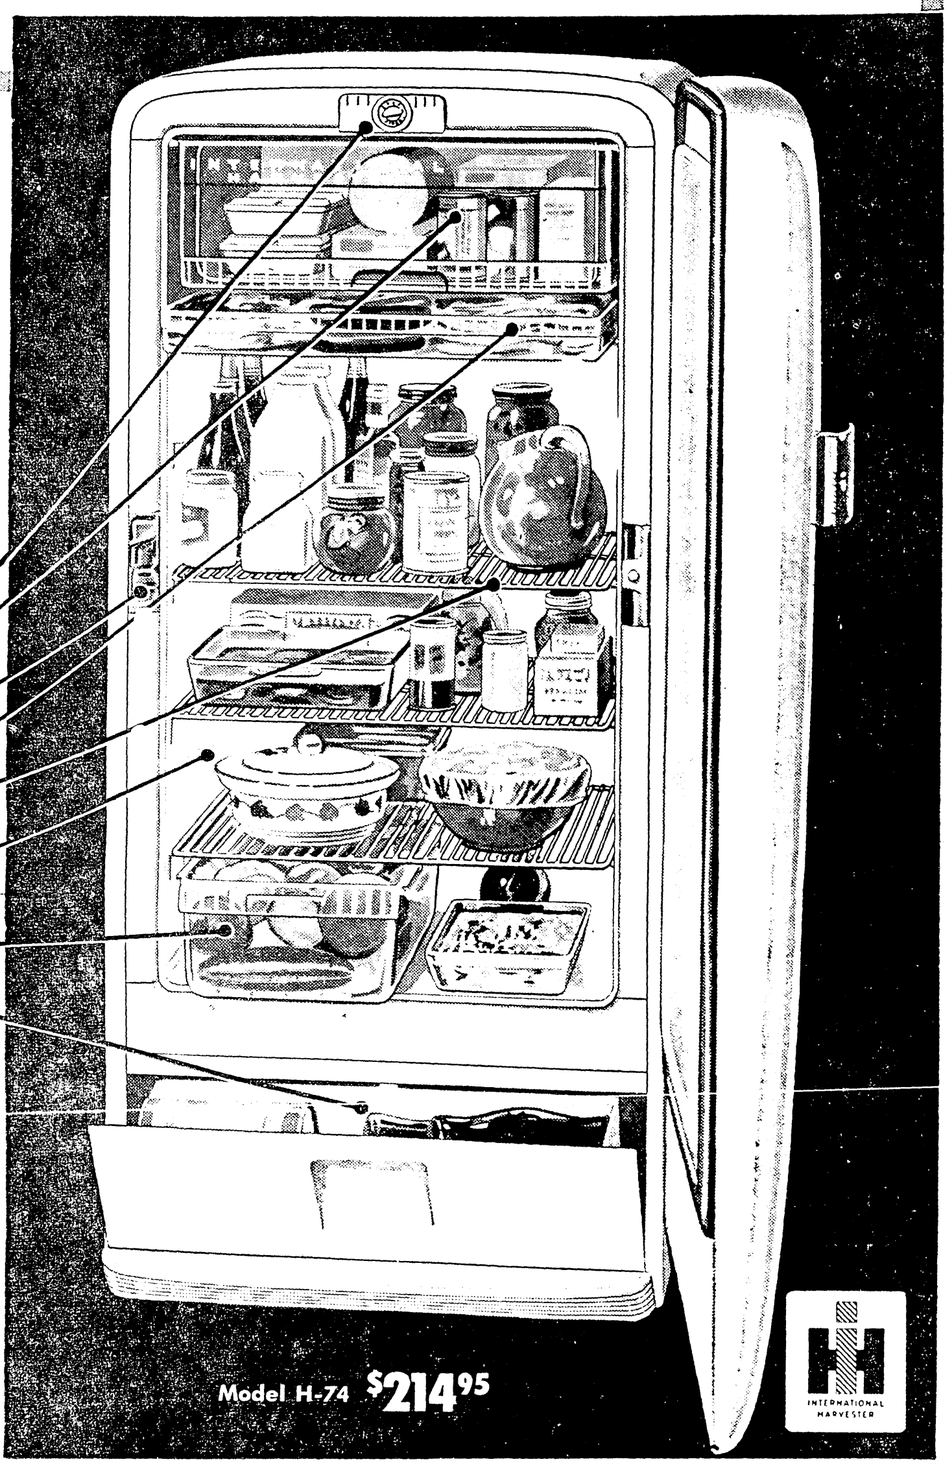

The story was written out of authentic material and the Geraghty screenplay is thus virtually a historical document about the territory during the transitional period when the law was beginning to come into its own in a lawless country.

UH, HUH. . GUESS THIS MAJOR LING, IN COMMAND OF THE CONVOY, REALLY TRIED TO FOLLOW HIS ORDERS AND CROSS THE BORDER INTO TIBET, BUT HE RAN INTO TOO MUCH TROUBLE.

ACCORDING TO THE CODE MESSAGE THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT RADIO PEOPLE PICKED UP, WHAT'S LEFT OF HIS CONVOY, SHOT UP AND OUT OF GAS, IS HIDING OUT AT AN ABANDONED AIRSTRIP NEAR THE TIBETAN BORDER.

LUCKY THE STRIP WAS AN OLD A.A.F. EMERGENCY FIELD BUILT DURING THE WARTIME HUMP OPERATION. AT LEAST WE'VE GOT IT PLOTTED ON THE MAP.
